House Enacts Postmasters' Civil Service Bill for 13,730

Rally of Administration Supporters Prevents Emasculation.

3-Party Coalition Opposes Measure

Trio of Classes Put on Career List; Now Goes to Senate.

By James D. Secrest.

A last-minute turn-out of Democrats loyal to the Administration last night upheld the President in his move to take the selection of first, second and third class postmasters out of the hands of majority members of the House.

Climaxing an afternoon of surprise actions, the House passed by voice vote the Ramspeck bill to place the postmasters under the civil service act. The legislation, if adopted by the Senate, will put into law, with some modifications, the provisions of the executive order issued last July by the President.

It affects 13,730 postmasters and sets up a system under which employes in the Postal Service may hope to be promoted to postmasterships.

Passage of the measure, requested by Mr. Roosevelt as preliminary to the vast Government reorganization, came only after a strange coalition of patronage-hungry Democrats, Republicans and Progressives succeeded in amending the measure so drastically in the committee of the whole that its whole effect was nullified.

Only the perseverance of the diminutive Civil Service Committee chairman, Representative Ramspeck, kept the bill from being scuttled before a final vote was taken.

Although he was beaten on every test vote as the nullifying amendments were offered, Rampseck held firmly to the remnants of the bill until a final roll call vote vindicated him, and the amendments were stricken out by a vote of 216 to 184.

He then withstood a final attempt by the Republicans to substitute a measure drafted by Representative Bacon (Republican), of New York.

Session Is Boisterous.

The action was taken in the most boisterous session of the House since the Seventy-fifth Congress convened and just a few hours before the members were to be the guests of the President at the annual Congressional reception in the White House.

As a climax to an afternoon of surprises the lights went out and left the House in complete darkness for about 5 minutes shortly after the members had completed emasculation of the civil service bill.

When the lights came on again, opponents of the Ramspeck measure discovered that majority whips had brought in all Democratic members from their offices to provide enough votes to reject the amendments and carry the bill in the form desired by the Administration.

Several members privately suggested that the sudden power shutoff was not unpremeditated by Democratic leaders.

The assault on the bill was led by Representatives Ross Collins, of Mississippi, and Jack Nichols, of Oklahoma, both Democrats.

Their criticism of the measure was frankly on the ground that it would take away the time-honored privilege of letting members of the House pick the postmasters in their districts.

Backs Spoils System.

"What's wrong with the spoils system?" Nichols shouted in a hoarse voice after an afternoon of haranguing for a return to the old-fashioned system.

"I can pick better postmasters every time in my district than the whole Civil Service Commission," he added.

"The civil service system throws a cloak around more inefficiency than any other thing in our Government."

The Republicans and Progressives attacked the bill with as much zeal from an entirely different angle. They contended that it was a mere "sham" and "camouflage," intended to "freeze" incumbent Democrats in office and demanded that the bill drafted by Representative Bacon (Republican), of New York, be substituted.

Chairman Ramspeck warned the House Democrats that the President was determined to take postmastership appointments out the "spoils system" and that he would brook no interference from Congress.

He reminded the members that it was only by courtesy and not by law that the Postmaster General consulted them before recommending the postmasters to the President for appointment.

"Talk about the spoils system as

G. M. Renews Efforts to Oust Strikers in 2 Fisher Plants

Court Order Obtained; Gov. Murphy Rebuffs Flint Alliance.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Jan. 28.—General Motors Corporation, referring to "sit-down" strikers occupying two Fisher Body Co. plants in Flint, Mich., as "former employes," renewed tonight its efforts to eject them by court action.

A petition filed with Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola of Genesee County by Roy Brownell, Flint attorney for the corporation, requested an injunction prohibiting the strikers from further possession of the plants. The United Automobile Workers of America, whose widespread strikes have paralyzed General Motors production, was directed to show cause at a hearing at 2 p. m. (Eastern standard time) Monday, why an injunction should not be granted.

At Lansing today Gov. Frank Murphy, asserting he had information of plans by undisclosed groups to incite riots in Flint in order to involve 2,300 National Guardsmen stationed there in the strike situation, rebuffed a delegation from the strike-oposed Flint Alliance.

The Governor declined to answer an Alliance demand that he guarantee "full protection" for all workers to and from their jobs, said that settlement negotiations arranged under his "Lansing agreement" with opposing leaders were upset "in part" by the Alliance, and added:

"If that had not happened you might all have been at work now."

George E. Boysen, founder of the Alliance, said in a statement at Flint that the organization "will continue to demonstrate in every way possible that it expects and demands that the forces of law and order in Michigan be used to permit the great majority * * * to return unmolested to their jobs."

Motor Strike Delays Repairs to Lewis' Car

The seven-passenger Cadillac sedan of John L. Lewis, leader in the Committee for Industrial Organization movement which is backing the General Motors strike, has been tied-up in an automobile repair plant here for several days because of a lack of spare parts, it was learned last night.

Lewis sent the car, a General Motors product, to the garage to have its motor overhauled. Mechanics found that several parts needed replacing, and sent to Detroit for them. These have not arrived yet. Officials of the garage promised to complete the job in a "couple of days."

Asked about the situation, Lewis refused to comment.

Soviet Seeks Death for 17 In Plot Trial

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Jan. 28.—Prosecutor Andrey Vishinsky demanded death tonight for 17 confessed conspirators to overthrow the government—the same fate which Defendant Karl Radek urged in his newspaper writings for 16 other conspirators who pleaded guilty and were shot last August.

Requiring five hours to summarize the government's charges that Radek and his colleagues sought by traitorous acts to involve Russia in war with Germany and Japan, overthrow the government and restore capitalism, Vishinsky turned suddenly to the suddenly aged man of letters.

Editor's Head Bowed.

"Radek demanded that traitors pay with their heads," he rapped out. "Do you remember that, Radek?"

The former editor of the authoritative newspaper Izvestia sat with bowed head. He did not look up or reply.

In demanding death for the 16 confessed conspirators, tried last August, Radek "made a small mistake," Vishinsky roared.

"Radek thought he was writing about Zinovieff and Kamenieff (two of the former defendants). He made a small mistake which this trial corrects. He wrote about himself."

Striding to the center of the court, Vishinsky shouted out his demand for death and concluded his case. For two minutes the crowded courtroom applauded.

"Law Demands Shooting."

"The law demands, in case of proof of guilt, shooting—which can be commuted only in case of extenuating circumstances," the prosecutor declared.

"I believe there are no such circumstances.

"I am not alone in accusing them of these base crimes. There are the victims—the people who were killed and maimed in wrecks you planned—who stand beside me now.

"The dead stand here with me, pointing at you with their terrible hands, demanding with me and my country only one punishment—death by shooting."

Testimony by the defendants, who pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy and treason, recounted hundreds of train wrecks in which more than 60 persons were killed—part of the plan for sabotage the defendants said they counted upon to aid their cause.

"I accuse the defendants of having organized in 1933 a parallel Trotzkyist center for forcible overthrow of the soviet government with the aid of foreign bayonets.

"I accuse Gregory Piatikoff (former assistant commissar for heavy industry), Gregory Sokolnikoff (former Ambassador to Lon-

Senate Group Approves Bill On Auditorium

Measure Goes to Floor Today; Honor Asked for Roosevelt.

The first step toward construction of a large Washington auditorium was negotiated yesterday when the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds approved the Robinson bill after hearing Secretary Harold L. Ickes and others indorse the project.

The measure will be reported on the floor today, said Chairman Tom Connally, exactly one week after its introduction by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas.

In the committee's executive session, held immediately after Ickes, Robinson, Representatives Sol Bloom and Fritz Lanham and Chairman Charles Moore of the Fine Arts Commission had stated the need of a great assembly hall here, one change was made in the bill.

The amendment provides that the Capital Auditorium Commission, establishment of which is authorized by the bill, shall make recommendations as to the financing of the enterprise.

"Personally, I think the Federal Government should bear the full cost," Connally said last night.

Another "Solution" Offered.

Meantime, a member of Congress yesterday contributed still another "solution" to the auditorium problem, which has been linked persistently to plans now under way for a memorial to Thomas Jefferson.

In the wake of various proposals by Senators King, McCarran, Davis and Robinson and Representative Bloom, Senator Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, urged the building of a combined stadium and auditorium with a total capacity of 150,000.

One of three Senate members of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, Lonergan suggested that the plant be known as the Roosevelt Building, in honor of the President. He said he will discuss his plan with the District Commissioners.

Ickes said he hoped the auditorium would be built as a Jefferson memorial and, if such action were taken, that its use be denied to prize fights and wrestling matches.

"Aren't sports dignified?" asked Senator Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island.

"Depends on the Sport."

"It depends upon the sport," replied the Secretary of the Interior. "I cannot envisage Jeffe: n interested in prize fights or wrestling."

Ickes said he believed the Federal Government should own and control the auditorium, but "it would not be inappropriate to give the business interests of the city an opportunity to contribute to the cost."

The Robinson bill provides that the chairmen of the Senate and House committees on public buildings and grounds and the Secretary of the Interior shall constitute the auditorium commission and that the

RA Key Man Is 'Suspended Temporarily'

Irregularities Charged to Frank Schmitt; Inquiry Begun.

Resettlement Announces Proof of 'Favors' Is Lacking.

The "temporary suspension" of Frank Schmitt, director of $60,000,000 construction program for the Resettlement Administration, became known yesterday.

Schmitt, a $7,500-a-year engineer in charge of the construction of everything from resettlement chicken houses to huge projects like the "Greenbelt" model town at Berwyn, Md., was relieved of his job temporarily two weeks ago yesterday.

Dr. W. W. Alexander, successor to Rexford G. Tugwell as administrator of the Resettlement Administration, signed the suspension papers, it is understood, after charges of irregularities in the procurement of supplies had been filed against him.

Filed by Employe.

The charges, it was learned, were filed by a Resettlement Administration employe who previously had been suspended.

Resettlement officials emphasized last night that they did not want to prejudge the case, and that an investigation of the charges still was being made.

There was no proof, they said, of any irregularity on the part of Schmitt. The supplies procured under his supervision, they said, had cost Resettlement no more than similar supplies cost other Government departments.

Schmitt's accuser, it was learned, charged that a certain building supply firm had done him favors. The investigation thus far, officials said, showed that the acceptance of such favors might be unethical, although they would not necessarily be criminal.

Directed "Tugwelltown."

It is not expected that the investigation will be completed for a week. At that time, it is believed, a statement will be given to the public and announcement will be made as to Schmitt's future status.

Schmitt, it was said at Resettlement headquarters, came here in May, 1935, from Philadelphia, and was highly recommended. He was appointed from the First Congressional District, the old Vare stronghold of that city.

Schmitt makes his home here at the Wardman Park Hotel. He could not be located for a statement.

Besides directing work at "Green-

12 Navy Airplanes Away to Honolulu In Greatest Flight

By the Associated Press.

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 28.—The Navy's 12 newest sky cruisers winged westward tonight bent on a new record—the greatest non-stop over-water massed air flight in American aviation history—San Diego to Honolulu.

Two miles high, in trim squadron formation, they started for the Hawaiian Islands at 8:35 a. m. (Pacific time), 11:35 a. m. Eastern standard time). There were 60 men aboard, 7 in some ships and 6 in others.

With 1,125 nautical miles of open sea traversed, Lieut. Cmdr. William M. McDade radioed at 8:30 p. m. (11:30 p. m. Eastern standard time) "We've psssed the half-way mark with no trouble."

It took an hour and 33 minutes for Lieut. Comdr. McDade to get his ships into formation from the time the first took off the harbor waters.

In widening circles they flew to the rendezvous, 10,000 feet above Point Loma. Their goal was the still waters of Pearl Harbor, the naval station near Honolulu, 2,553 miles from here.

Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the aircraft squadrons of the United States fleet base force, emphasized that the flight was not a stunt, but a normal transfer of new sky patrols of the fleet to the mid-Pacific outpost.

"We expect to have breakfast in the islands," said Lieut. Comdr. McDade.

He figured the flight would take some 20 hours. Three years ago a squadron of Navy patrols of the skies, six seaplanes, flew from San Francisco Bay to Pearl Harbor, 2,400 miles, in 24 hours and 25 minutes.

The sky cruisers that moved out today are larger and faster.

Towns on Lower Mississippi Preparing for Flood Crisis; Soldiers Guarding Louisville

Danger Seen From Diseases and Fires

HealthRemarkablyGood as Typhoid Peril Is Deferred.

By James J. Cullinane.

A Staff Correspondent.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28.—While untamed waters of the roaring Ohio River surged over two-thirds of her area and armed soldiers patrolled pitch-black streets, Louisville talked bravely by candle light tonight of "building a bigger and better city."

The turbid waters had dropped six-tenths of a foot from the crest of 57.1 feet reached early Wednesday and as muddy streets emerged in the business district, civic pride began to swell.

There was looting in some sections of the city.

Six thousand persons fled to safety on a pontoon bridge built on barrels.

Unclaimed bodies were bing buried in a cemetery ditch.

But at city hall the mayor's emergency committee boasted of the tomorrow.

Denies Martial Law.

Everyone believes the crisis has passed. Even Mayor Neville Miller, whose dramatic broadcast brought 416 policemen from other cities here by airplane, bus and train, denied that the city was under martial law.

At the mayor's press conference, William A. Stolt, president of the Board of Trade and co-ordinator of public information, declared:

"We have not the slightest idea what the property damage will amount to, but rest assured, gentlemen, Louisville is going ahead to be a greater Louisville. The future is bright."

Dr. Hugh R. Leavell, city health officer, although unable to surpress his grave concern, said the city's health has been remarkably good since the flood started.

Dr. Leavell pointed out, however, that the incubation period of typhoid germs is from ten days to two weeks and the full menace of the flood may not be felt for several days. Only one case of typhoid has been reported since Sunday, Dr. Leavell said, and added:

"That, of course, was the result of an infection suffered several days before the flood."

Disease and fire are the two greatest menaces in the stricken city, authorities said.

Smoking is prohibited within the city limits because of fears that a match or smoldering cigarette may be carelessly tossed in the oil-soaked ooze left behind by the flood or on gasoline floating on top of the submerged streets.

Engineers Arrive.

Arrival of 125 unarmed soldiers of the Fifth Regiment of Army Engineers, from Fort Belvoir, Va., this afternoon with a giant water purification unit and 600 pounds of TNT made authorities breath easier. The TNT, it was explained, could be used to snuff out fires and prevent their spread in submerged districts where firemen are unable to get any pressure in their hose lines.

The engineers, who left Accotink, Va., Tuesday afternoon and traveled through six States for two days to reach Louisville, were busy during the rainy day pitching tents on a vacant lot on a hill three blocks from the flood waters. Capt. Robert K. McDonough, commanding the detachment, conferred throughout the day with Army and municipal authorities and will receive an assignment for his unit tomorrow.

With more than 250,000 of Louisville's citizens already driven out of their homes and most of them out of the city by the flood, Mayor Miller estimated that the work of evacuating those still in the danger zone will be slackened until Saturday morning.

Mayor Miller at the start of his

Four Are Injured As Gotham-Bound Train Is Derailed

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Four passengers were slightly injured tonight when two coaches and a club car of the Constitution, crack Washington - New - York - Pennsylvania train, were derailed at Millham junction near here.

Police said no one was killed. They said the cause of the accident had not been determined.

The train, delayed about an hour, continued on to New York.

When the coaches were derailed, the coupling linking the last car—the club car—and the one preceding it, broke. The club car left the tracks and came to rest across the rails at a 40-degree angle, but remained upright.

H. R. Berlin, of New York, who was slightly injured, said there were about 15 persons in the club car when it left the rails.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 28.—A private was killed and his superior and five other enlisted men were seriously injured when a huge Army bomber, lost in a dense fog, crashed into a mountainside and burst into flames at the edge of the Front Royal Remount Reservation 5 miles southeast of here this afternoon.

Private Henry L. Nied burned to death. Seriously burned and suffering other injuries, the extent of which was not immediately determined, were Lieut. Joseph B. Zimmerman, Sergt. J. E. Harvey and Privates Albert H. Fenton, William C. Cartwell, John W. Anderson and Alton M. Wright.

The ship, a single-motored transport of Army's Type C-24, was en route from Pittsburgh, Pa., where it had been on flood-relief duty, to Langley Field, Va., its base. It was being piloted by Lieut. Zimmerman, its commanding officer.

Lost in Fog.

According to Col. Warren W. Whiteside, commanding officer at the remount reservation, the plane became lost in the fog, had turned back to make a landing at Bolling Field, Washington, and rode into the side of a mountain at the edge of the Army post.

The plane wreckage was found in an isolated, wooded section 1,000 feet up the mountain side. The bomber had been completely destroyed by fire, Col. Whiteside said.

"All of the men in the ship managed to scramble out of the burning wreckage, except Nied," Col. Whiteside said. He apparently was so badly injured that he was unable to help himself and the fire probably drove the others away.

"We heard the ship flying over the post for a long time," the officer told The Post. "The fog was so dense we couldn't see it, but we could tell from the roar of the motor that she was flying very low.

"About 20 minutes later a mountaineer called and said he had heard a plane crash. We sent out a searching party at once in the vicinity of where the crash had been heard."

The searchers went out on horseback. They found the wreckage and the injured lying about it a mile from the nearest road. The injured and dead were taken out on horseback and transferred to ambulances waiting on the roadway. They were then rushed to the hospital on the remount reservation and were to be removed to Levee Between Cairo and Memphis Called Next Danger Point.

Ohio River Falling In Cincinnati Area

Death Toll Mounts to 400; Million Homeless in Eleven States.

By the Associated Press.

The Nation's record flood crept forward last night toward the next danger area—levees between Cairo, Ill., and Memphis on the Mississippi—as Army and civilian corps piled sandbags and gumbo mud on 300 miles of set-back levies in a desperate effort to avert disaster.

The Ohio River—a vast lake 50 miles wide in places from Pittsburgh to Cairo—eased its pressure along its upper stretch.

At Cincinnati the waters slowly began to recede.

Louisville, Ky., still was largely inundated, but the crest was past and headed for isolated Paducah.

The death tolls rose to near 400. Nearly 1,000,000 continued homeless in 11 States. Damage mounted above $400,000,000.

More Rain Forecast.

Threat of more rain and snow along the Ohio River came from weather forecasters, but they added the cheering note the precipitations would not affect flood conditions.

Days will pass before the Ohio is back in its channel at Cincinnati and Louisville, but already rehabilitation was begun. Appalling stories as yet unrealized apparently were in store for residents of vast sections.

Cairo, its women and children mostly evacuated, settled down behind a 3-foot bulkhead atop its 60-foot seawall and waited for the 62-foot crest on the Ohio, predicted for Sunday or Monday.

Most pathetic was the plight of 6,000 farmers and fishermen driven from the 131,000-acre tract in the Birds Point floodway on the Mississippi. They fled, mostly on foot, over rutted roads covered with 6 inches of frozen sleet. The reservoir filled rapidly, bringing the levee crisis near.

Three thousand refugees were at Charleston, Mo., where facilities were taxed to the utmost. Others were at Sikeston, Mo., crowded and jammed into relief headquarters.

Watch Set-back Levee.

These—as at New Madrid, Mo., at the lower tip of the floodway—cast anxious eyes toward the set-back levee. Would it hold? A levee break would put New Madrid under 6 feet of water.

Government engineers blasted holes in the lower end of the old "fuse plug" at New Madrid to remove a barrier between the river and the spillway so floodwaters released to the north may flow back into the Mississippi River's channel.

The town of normally 2,500 persons—half of them have already moved to safer grounds as high waters threatened levees—hoped the blasting would relieve tension.

Engineers were noncommital on possible results. It was an experiment and they watched closely.

The levee north of New Madrid has been threatened. It is weakened by the snow, rain and thaws.

All but 110 who live in the spillway were thought safely out. These clung to roofs and treetops and waited rescue boats, hampered by ice cakes, cold rain and shallow water in stretches of ground between them and the refugees.

Army engineers along the Mississippi speeded reinforcemnt of the billion-dollar levee system. Commanding generals from Cairo to New Orleans stood ready to move out upward of 500,000 dwellers if broken dikes brought danger.

Meteorologist F. W. Brist, at Memphis, predicted the Mississippi will crest there at 48 feet, 5 feet lower than the estimate of Lieut. Col. Eugene Reybold, Army district engineer.

2,500,000 Acres Flooded.

More than 2,500,000 acres of Mississippi bottom land was flooded and at Mellwood, Ark., the levee was thr tening collapse, endangering two more counties.

The threat of disease continued unabated. Except for a Coast Guard report of influenza of epidemic proportions at Paducah, Ky., no widespread outbreaks were prevalent.

While the Army was prepared for any eventuality along the Mississippi, Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, its chief of staff, said any general evacuation was a remote possibility. Removal operations, it was explained, were more likely to be confined to small low-lying sections.

At the far southern New Orleans tip of the river, engineers said water could be diverted into Lake Pontchartrain.

Mrs. Bugher and Her Son Balk at Signing For Jewels; Shield Faces From Cameras

A fortune in jewels and gold heirlooms remained stowed in a Police Department safe last night when their owner, Mrs. Henrietta Bugher, refused to sign ownership papers.

Appearing at police headquarters yesterday afternoon to claim the $300,000 worth of gems stolen from her Massachusetts avenue apartment, both Mrs. Bugher and her son, Frederick, balked when Chief Clerk Howard E. Crawford presented them with property return papers to sign.

Mrs. Bugher identified the property as that taken from her apartment allegedly by John Morcischeck, her butler, but refused to sign the return which would release the jewelry to her.

Craword said she would give no reason for not signing the paper, but said she would return in a few days.

Mrs. Bugher, clad in a mink wrap, and her son covered their faces with wrapping paper when photographers attempted to snap them leaving the building. She would make no statement.

Crawford stated it is necessary before stolen property is released to its owner that the owner sign for it.

The jewelry, heirlooms of the Dewey and McLean estates, was valued at $300,000 by Mrs. Bugher. She reported its disappearance to police last Friday, and the property was recovered in New York two days later.

In New York, after the loot was recovered by Detective Sergt. Joseph W. Shimon, United States appraisers, it was said, fixed the value of the jewels and heirlooms at $460,000—$160,000 more than the value reported at the time the robbery was discovered.

Simultaneously with the report of the higher value fixed by Federal men, it was learned that agents of the Internal Revenue Department have taken an official interest in the gems.

No official reason was given by police for Mrs. Bugher's refusal to sign for the jewelry.

Meanwhile, police prepared to arraign Mrs. Bugher's butler in Police Court on a charge of grand larceny growing out of the theft. Morcischeck admitted to police he had sent the gems to a "friend" in New York when he found them in the Bugher apartment.

The Washington Post will assist in raising the required amount by receiving and acknowledging in its columns the contributions of Washingtonians. Make checks payable to District Chapter, American Red Cross, for flood relief. Bring or mail them to the business office of The Washington Post.

Those who wish to submit their contributions directly to the American Red Cross may send or deliver cash or checks to the District Chapter, American Red Cross, 1730 E street.

Hopkins Urges Senate to Rush Funds for WPA

Says Some Projects May Be Embarrassed; Fight Delays Action.

By Robert C. Albright.

A plea for immediate Senate action to save WPA from exhaustion of funds was received from Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins yesterday, as a Senate Appropriations sub-committee sought justification of the $899,717,000 deficiency bill designed to carry Federal relief operations through another five months.

Hopkins told the Senate group some WPA projects will be embarrassed for funds after close of this week, and by the end of next week all available money will be spent. The WPA administrator asked Senate passage of the appropriation this week, but leaders indicated action before Monday is unlikely.

An independent Senate effort to increase the $790,000,000 WPA allotment to $1,200,000,000 yesterday gained support of a small group of Northwestern Senators and Midwestern Progressives, but lacked Administration favor. Indications are the Senate committee will hold the appropriation within a $900,000,000 maximum, and floor support will defeat any drive for an increase.

"Fixed Formula" Waits.

A proposal for a "mandatory formula" for distribution of WPA funds, among the States, on a population and valuation basis, meantime awaited action of the committee. The plan was advanced by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., Massachusetts Republican, and is understood to have some Democratic support. A fixed allotment formula is opposed by Hopkins, who favors distribution, as at present, on a basis of National need.

Following Hopkins, W. W. Alexander, acting resettlement arministrator, and Daniel Bell, acting budget director, appeared before the committee yesterday. Alexander, who seeks $80,000,000 of the $790,000,000 relief deficiency to resettlement, was asked to bring further data before the committee today. Alexander claimed drought spending, and absorption of WPA relief cases, have reduced available resettlement funds to about $70,000,000. Bell also was asked to return.

Hopkins told the committee WPA now is carrying a relief load of 2,200,000, and this will be cut further to 2,150,000 in March, to 2,000,000 in April to 1,800,000 in May and to 1,600,000 in June. He asked nothing in addition to the $790,000,000 carried in the bill. Senator Alva B. Adams, of Colorado, chairman of the sub-committee, said he assumed another appropriation will be asked "shortly" to cover emergency flood expenditures.

Westerners Seek Increase.

The independent move to increase the appropriation to $1,200,000,000 is being led by Senators Homer T. Bone and Lewis B. Schwellenbach, of Washington, and Senator James P. Pope, of Idaho, (Democrats). They said they will offer their amendment on the assumption at least $400,000,000 more will be needed to defray flood relief costs. An even larger figure may be asked by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., Wisconsin Progressive.

The Lodge proposal to establish a "mandatory formula" for distributing WPA funds among the States, the District and the territories would work out as follows:

"One-half in the ratio which the population of each State bears to the total population of all of the States, as shown by the latest Federal census, and one-half in the ratio which the total valuation of all property subject to general property levies bears to the total valuation of all property subject to taxes in all of the States.

Under the Lodge "formula," the sums would be given directly to the States, to be administered and distributed by the States themselves and their political subdivisions.

Similar plans are said to be favored by Senators Millard F. Tydings, of Maryland, and Pat McCarran, of Nevada, Democratic members of the sub-committee.

Glass Workers Get Pay Increase

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28 (AP).—Glen W. McCabe announced late tonight after a long meeting with operators that a new agreement granting wage increases of 8 cents an hour to 4,000 to 5,000 employes of independent flat glass manufacturers had been signed.

The president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America asserted the new contract "provides also for the preferential employment of our members before any others are hired."

Asked if that meant his union has obtained a "closed shop" agreement, McCabe replied:

"Oh, yes; it amounts to the same thing."

The companies signing the agreement were the American Window Glass Co., of Pittsburgh, and the Fourco Glass Manufacturers, a joint organization representing the Harding Glass Co., of Fort Smith, Ark., and the Rolland Glass and Adamston Glass companies, both operating plants at Clarksburg, W. Va.

McCabe asserted the agreement, beside the straight increase, makes numerous upward adjustments in miscellaneous wage rates for various workers "and establishes uniform basic rates for workers on the same kind of jobs in all the factories affected." No decrease in any basic rate was made, he said.

Moroland in Turmoil As Sultan Kiram Quits

Manila, Jan. 28 (AP).—Warlike Moroland buzzed with political intrigue tonight after newspapers reported the resignation of the bachelor Sultan, Emil Kiram, and said two powerful factions had proclaimed their candidates as successor to the throne of Sulu.

Constabulary forces were ordered to be on the alert.

Drug Robbery Unsolved.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 28.—Police authorities here have been unable to solve the robbery of the Strother Drug Co.'s wholesale store here 10 days ago, when 56,300 grains of drugs were stolen. The drugs were taken from the narcotic safe in the store after the thieves broke the door of the safe open.

Rep. O'Toole Beat Jewish Foe In Hebrew-Populated District

REPRESENTATIVE DONALD L. O'TOOLE.

Brooklyn Native, Champion of Workingman's Rights, Won in Area Containing More Than a Million and Where Competition Is Keen.

By Herman Perlman.

One in a million—that's "Little Irish" Donald L. O'Toole, Democrat, Representative for the Eighth District of New York. The Eighth District is the most populous portion of the Empire State, boasting of more than a million people. Winning an election in that district is just about as easy as winning the Presidency of the United States—political competition is extremely keen in Brooklyn, where politicians are as numerous as chain drug stores.

The pugilistic appearing Representative O'Toole is a 34-year-old family man—the father of three children—a graduate of Fordham University's Law School. He has done postgraduate work at New York and Columbia universities.

His political career was started three years ago when he served on the board of aldermen. His power became evident when he won a battle with the chairman of his organization—a battle in which he championed the interests of the workingman. O'Toole is intensely interested in the workingman's problems and is carrying this interest into Congress.

Being a native of Brooklyn and having been associated with Jewish people all his life he has introduced a resolution in Congress to the effect that the United States suspend diplomatic relations with Nazi Germany because of her barbaric practices and persecution of Jews. No man understands Jews better than this little Irishman—over 60 per cent of his constituents are Jewish. He speaks a fluent Yiddish.

In the voting that made O'Toole "one in a million," he defeated his Jewish opponent, Nathan Greenbaum by two to one.

He is proud to represent the district in which the famous world playground, Coney Island, is situated. In his childhood he spent much of his time there. As a young Irisher among many Jewish kids he never dreamed that his associations in typical American fun would eventually be a foundation to his leadership, not on the beaches and roller coaster of Coney Island, but in the Congress of the United States.

As this interview ended, "Little Irish" extolled the virtues of Sheepshead Bay, the largest yachting basin of New York, where the finest of shore dinners are to be had. Then he peeled off his coat, rolled up his sleeves and said, "Now I'm ready for Congress."

16-Ounce Baby Boy Thrives in Shoebox In Colorado Camp

Telluride, Colo., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Housed in an improvised incubator, made from a shoe box and a whisky bottle, a 16-ounce baby boy thrived tonight at the mining camp of Ophir Loop.

The baby was born prematurely at the little mining camp, 12 miles south of Telluride in the mountain country, during the early hours of Tuesday morning.

Dr. J. J. Parker, of Telluride was called. He arrived in time to make the delivery after struggling through snow drifts along the mountain road.

The parents of the tiny infant, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Buss, have made their home at the camp where Buss has been interested in gold mining.

Dr. Parker reported tonight that the mother was in excellent condition and that the baby had a good chance to live.

The camp is situated in the heart of the rich gold mining country and is tucked away in the mountains at an elevation of 9,238 feet.

After the birth, Dr. Parker met the problem of providing an incubator to keep the child alive by using a shoe box as a "house" and providing heat through the means of hot water in a whisky bottle.

Bank's Name Held Security Sales Aid

By the Associated Press.

Hayward A. Hibberd, a vice president of the Chase National Bank of New York, said yesterday he was inclined to believe the bank's name probably helped sell an investment trust over which it had scant powers.

Testifying in the Securities Commission's investigation of investment trusts, he said the bank served as trustee for ten "fixed" trusts sponsored by Ross Beason and associates of New York.

His institution merely was the physical custodian of the underlying securities behind trusts, he added, and lacked all other powers commonly associated with trusteeships.

"If the portfolio contained even the 'world's worst dogs,' had the bank the power to remove them?"

"No," replied Hibberd.

"And if you believed the sponsors were 1,000 per cent wrong in their choice of investments, could you do anything about it?"

"No."

Commissioner William O. Douglas commented that the trustee in this case was merely an "automaton—a slot machine wherein, when certain forces are put into effect, certain acts take place."

Fruit Pickers Strike.

Mexico City, Jan. 28 (AP).—A strike of 2,000 employes of three American controlled fruit growing and transport companies in the State of Tabasco was settled today through concessions to the strikers.

The Southern Banana, Standard Steamship and Transportes Fluviales (river transport) companies agreed to collective labor contracts, longer vacations, better living conditions, payment of 80 per cent of wages during the two weeks of the strike and other demands.

Alabama Repeal Measure Approved

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Twenty-one years of prohibition in bone-dry Alabama appeared nearing an end tonight as the Legislature approved a compromise county option bill and sent it to Gov. Bibb Graves.

The measure provides for a Statewide referendum on March 10. The act permits counties which vote wet in the referendum to establish State-controlled liquor stores. Counties rejecting repeal would be permitted to remain dry.

Neutrality Act Parleys Held By President

Hull to Test Sentiment of Congress on Proposed New Regulations.

By Franklyn Waltman.

President Roosevelt yesterday turned his attention to the thorny problem of permanent neutrality legislation, commissioning Secretary of State Cordell Hull to sound out sentiment on Capitol Hill and then formulate an Administration attitude.

Mr. Roosevelt did this in a series of conferences with Secretary Hull, American Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis and Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The President talked with Hull and Davis together, subsequently continuing his conversation with the Secretary of State at luncheon. He saw Senator Pittman separately.

Following these White House conversations, Secretary Hull revealed he will go to Capitol Hill in a day or two for talks with Senator Pittman, Chairman Sam D. McReynolds, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and other members of House and Senate who have shown an active interest in neutrality legislation.

Hull Explains Purpose.

The purpose of his visit to Capitol Hill, the Secretary of State explained, will be an exchange of viewpoints on the subject with the interested legislators. He said that after these talks he believed he would be in a position to outline the Administration's neutrality position in some detail.

It is well known the President and State Department wish as flexible a neutrality law as they can get. In general they prefer discretionary authority for the President to meet war situations abroad as they develop, rather than rigid, mandatory provisions. The present law is of this latter character, except that it makes no provision whatever for embargoes or restrictions on exports of raw materials, regarded of equal importance with arms and munitions.

The President so far has not been able to control Congress regarding neutrality legislation. Widespread sentiment has existed in House and Senate for mandatory legislation, except that both bodies have shied away from taking any action which would interfere with exports of such essential war material as cotton, copper, oil, foodstuffs and steel.

Will Test Sentiment.

Secretary Hull's mission on Capitol Hill apparently is to make a survey to determine whether the sentiment in Congress for rigid mandatory neutrality legislation has in any way diminished since the Administration last fought this question out—losing, it may be said, the major points for which it strove.

Secretary Hull said his undertaking in regard to neutrality legislation was not tied-in with the visit here of Walter Runciman, chairman of the British Board of Trade. Those familiar with Anglo-American trade relations, however, held that a rigid mandatory embargo on raw materials during war might make a big difference in the relationship. A neutrality policy based on the "cash and carry" proposals put forth by Bernard M. Baruch and others, on the other hand, would not interefere with Anglo-American trade, it was held.

Committee Hears Baruch.

By the Associated Press.

A House committee heard Bernard M. Baruch declare yesterday that because the world is in a state of "alarm," the United States should state its neutrality policy clearly.

The white-haired New York financier, who was chairman of the World War Industries Board, also recommended legislation to curb war profits in case the United States is drawn into conflict.

To eliminate profiteering, he said, higher income taxes and regulation of prices would be necessary.

He testified before the House Military Affairs Committee on the Sheppard-Hill bill. This would permit the President to establish a "ceiling" beyond which prices might not go in wartime.

Baruch recommended regulation of payments for "services," which he said would include wages, but opposed "conscription" of labor.

As for neutrality, Baruch expressed the belief no neutrality legislation is "worth anything unless you can defend it and interpret it."

Antarctic Rich in Oil And Coal, Asserts Byrd

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 28 (AP).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd told interviewers here there are 1,000,000 square miles of unexplored Antarctic territory rich in coal and oil.

"There is plenty of coal down there," he said, "and I am sure there is oil under the ice."

He said as soon as physicians pronounced him recovered from the effects of poisoning incurred during his trip to the South Pole two years ago he will return to the region.

Embargo on Spanish Aid Sought by Committee

London, Jan. 28 (AP).—Technical experts of the international "hands-off Spain" committee decided tonight to seek immediate approval of interested European powers for their scheme to supervise embargoes on aid to the belligerents in Spain.

The scheme was understood to provide for a naval patrol in Spanish waters.

TVA Power Sale Negotiations With Private Firm Speeded

By the Associated Press.

Administration officials said yesterday it was probable that the Tennessee Valley Authority's contract with the privately controlled Commonwealth & Southern Corporation would be extended temporarily.

The contract, for sale by the corporation of power generated by TVA, will expire automatically on February 3 unless some kind of agreement is reached. Negotiations were accelerated today after the arrival from Knoxville, Tenn., of Director David Lilienthal of the TVA.

Lilienthal declined to comment on "a matter that is in negotiation," but from other Administration quarters it was learned the "standstill agreement" in the contract was the most serious obstacle to negotiations.

Under the standstill agreement, TVA is selling power at cheap rates to Commonwealth & Southern subsidiaries, and has agreed not to invade the territory of these companies. In return, Commonwealth & Southern agreed to turn over to the Government transmission lines in certain non-competitive fields.

A disturbing factor was the report that President Roosevelt's power policy committee was studying proposals for a national policy that would insist on competitive bidding for Federal power after the needs of publicly owned utilities were filled.

In addition it was reliably reported TVA officials were not willing to continue the "standstill agreement" unless the power company is willing to "make' certain concessions"—not named.

Nevertheless both sides have been privately represented as believing that a middle ground for a long-range agreement may be found. Negotiations proceed, meanwhile, with the prospect of producing a temporary extension of the present contract.

Reserves Jump; Federal Board May Raise Limit

2-Billion Excesses Held by Banks Despite Curbing Measures.

By the United Press.

The Nation's idle funds have risen $20,000,000 within a week, the Federal Reserve Board reported last night.

The increase carried the excess reserve of funds held by Federal Reserve member banks to $2,150,000,000 in the week-ended January 27. This excess is the basis for a potential credit boom of $17,200,000,000. Economists estimate each dollar has a credit worth of $8.

Reserve member banks are required to maintain a certain percentage of their funds in reserve. This is known as required reserve. Any additional funds they possess not committed to any use, are designated excess reserves.

Ordered Double Reserves.

Last August, the Reserve board of governors temporarily reduced excessive reserves by ordering a 50 per cent increase in required reserve. This action caused member banks to dip into their excess funds to meet the new requirements.

Within a few months the excess reserves again were above the $2,000,000,000 figure. At this point, in December, the Administration stepped in to help alleviate the situation. The Treasury, with the approval of the President, initiated a gold "sterilization" program.

But the program, it was revealed last night, has failed to affect existing excess reserves.

Visit While House.

The Reserve System's open market committee met this week and is known to have decided the dumping of large quantities of Government securities at this time would tend to depress the market for these obligations.

Officials close to the board maintain the only avenue open is to increase reserve requirements to the limit. The board was summoned hurriedly yesterday by Chairman Marriner S. Eccles but no announcement was made as to the nature of the discussions. The meeting, however, was regarded as significant in view of the fact that Eccles, accompanied by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., visited the White House last night.

The board holds its regular meeting today and financial circles are looking for a definite decision on the excess reserve question then.

A 50 per cent increase in reserve requirements, on the basis of latest Federal Reserve figures, would increase the legal reserves from $4,623,000,000 to $6,773,000,000 and reduce the excess reserves from $2,150,000,000 to $609,000,000. This reduced figure would be sufficient, it was said, to maintain "easy money" conditions without the threat of inflation.

The total involved is $234,846,656.10, of which $222,143,024.76 represents new issues.

State to Retain Control Over County Roads

Opposition to Maryland System Appears to Have Subsided.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Jan. 28.—Sentiment which strongly favored the return of county roads to the control of individual county commissioner groups at meetings of the Western Shore County Commissioners apparently has turned in recent months, and it was predicted today that no attempt would be made at this session of this General Assembly for their return.

A possible weakening in the attempt is seen as an adjunct of the highway planning survey, the results of which will be subject to legislative review.

The Western Shore County Commissioners' Association, meeting at Frederick last July, went on record as favoring the return, but the subject never came up at the joint meeting of Eastern and Western Shore associations at Cambridge later in the year.

It is understood that the State roads commission, which has for some years built and maintained the county road systems, has been assured in recent weeks that no attempt would be made by the counties for the return of the control of their roads. The commission sought this assurance so that some systematic improvement plan, looking into the future as far as ten years, can be developed.

The commission contends that it is better equipped to maintain the roads uniformly and economically than the counties, most of which sold their road-making equipment when the State took over the roads.

The program launched last year by the commission, with new type road equipment, which included widening many secondary roads to 60 feet, at an average cost of $182 a mile, compared with former costs ranging between $800 and $900, won favorable reaction from scores of farmers.

Louisville Plans For Rebuilding As Waters Fall

press conferenoe said that a "lot of misinformation has been broadcast," about the city being under martial law.

"The Army is not running this city and neither is the National Guard," said Mayor Miller. "The city is still under the control of the city administration and the courts still are functioning."

Mayor Miller hastened to add that his relations with Army officials since armed infantrymen marched into the city to relieve the over-worked police force have been entirely harmonious. There are approximately 800 regular Army soldiers here.

Then he produced correspondence which revealed that Gen. Malin Craig had given orders that Federal troops were to co-operate with the Mayor after Gov. Chandler, of Kentucky, declared martial law and appointed him provost marshal. The Mayor said he has refrained from using the broad powers conferred upon him by the declaration of martial law.

Calls Deaths Few.

Mayor Miller said he is convinced the flood death toll thus far has been exceedingly small. He pointed that Dr. Leavell had listed the total death attributable to the flood at 130, but Dr. Leavell later said he believed the figure should have been 49.

Dr. Leavell said the city embalms and preserves the bodies of all persons who might possibly be identified, but buries those decomposed or otherwise mutilated beyond recognition in a cemetery ditch. He said he did not know how many bodies had been disposed of in that fashion this year.

It may be a week or 10 days until the water recedes sufficiently to even estimate the damage to property, Mayor Miller said.

Apprehension over flood dangers was greatly enhanced today by the steady rain which beat down hour after hour. Over the pontoon bridge across swollen Bear Grass Creek—a bridge 5 blocks long—fled 6,000 persons, but toward evening when the radio informed them that the rains were purely local and that the river was dropping slowly but steadily, thousands poured back over the bridge into the flooded district.

Refused to Leave.

It was a harrowing procession that came over the bridge away from the city, however. It was formed of men and women who had steadfastly refused to leave their flooded homes or who had not been reached earlier by rescue boats.

There were women carrying waxen faced children whose eyes were glassy with fever. Some aged persons were brought across the swollen stream on stretchers and carried to waiting ambulances.

In the line returning to the city were men and women who knew their homes had been completely submerged after they fled Sunday and who wanted to see for themselves, if possible, the full extent of the havoc wrought by the flood.

Regular Army veterans kept one way lines moving across the bridge, constantly chanting, "keep 10 feet apart and don't walk in haste."

Men crossing the bridge toward the city were asked to carry large 2-by-4 planks to be used in reconstruction.

Flee by Train.

Most of the city's flood refugees —two-thirds of its total population —have been sent by shuttle trains to other cities in Kentucky and Indiana.

There seemed to be ample food here today for the approximately 100,000 remaining. Long lines formed in front of the various relief stations in flood-free sections and none was turned away without a generously large bag filled with provisions and baskets of clothing and other necessities.

Scarcer and more precious than food or clothing, ironically, was water. The city's water mains are opened only two hours a day, but so weak is the pressure in the mains that from many faucets only a tiny trickle flows, and from an even larger number nothing at all. All water must be boiled. Fruit juices, bottled soft drinks, coffee, tea and milk are the only drinks obtainable in restaurants.

All liquor and beer stores have been closed and the sale of these beverages is forbidden.

Police Bring Auto.

Out-of-town policemen who responded to Mayor Miller's plea came here by airplane, automobile, bus and their own cars; 12 Boston policemen brought their own scout cars. Two men came from Phoenix, Ariz.

Reports of looters being shot are commonplace, but police steadfastly deny that anyone has been hurt.

A pathetic phase of the evacuation was the abandonment of thousands of household pets. Dogs are heard barking on the upper floors of homes in the flooded district and gaunt cats can be seen in the windows. Nothing can be done about the animals until all danger to human life has been eliminated, Mayor Miller said.

Today and tonight passed without an outbreak of the fires which added to the city's terror earlier in the week.

Flooded Prison Safely Cleared; Seven Missing

By the Associated Press.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 28.—Evacuation of 2,906 convicts from the flooded State prison here was completed without a fatality, officials disclosed today.

All but seven prisoners, who were taken away almost overnight from the prison after three days and nights of rioting, have been accounted for, Warden James Hammond announced. Those seven, Hammond believes, escaped during the confusion attendant upon the flood that forced permanent abandonment of the 135-year-old prison. Four of them, Hammond announced, already have been traced.

A final and thorough inspection of the debris-strewn prison buildings today failed to reveal any bodies. Nevertheless, reports persisted that at least a dozen men had been slain and a score more were missing. These reports were based mainly on tales told by evacuated prisoners and were denied by Hammond and Gov. A. B. Chandler, who personally directed the evacuation.

Newspapermen searched through the debris in the prison and found no bodies. All they saw was unbelievable chaos.

Whether those listed unofficially and officially as "missing" had escaped or drowned and their bodies washed away, probably will never be known.

Degenerate Sought As Child's Slayer

Boston, Jan. 28 (AP).—Police tonight hunted a set of shiny buttons to find a clew in their search for the degenerate slayer of 5-year-old Chester Harris, golden-haired Cambridge twin.

For missing from the discovery yesterday of a pile of half-buried bones were the metal buttons on the blue overalls the child wore when he wandered away from home three months ago.

Investigators, spurred by the commands of high State and city officials to "get Chester's killer," pointed out that location of the buttons might determine the place of slaying and furnish a valuable clew toward solving the crime.

Youngstown Tube Net $10,564,501 in Year

Cleveland, Jan. 28 (AP).—A preliminary consolidated income account statement of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and subsidiaries, made public today, showed net earnings for 1936, after all charges, of $10,564,501, compared to 1935 net earnings of $1,597,521.

The statement said taxes, interest, depletion and depreciation were included in deducted charges. Depreciation and depletion charges for 1936 were $6,837,763, compared to $5,683,843 for 1935.

New York, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Mrs. Hulda Conway, 70, asked for a separation in Supreme Court today because her husband, Benjamin, 82, played cards all night and refused to come home when she entertained her card club. She was awarded $400 and $25 monthly alimony.

Engineers' Figures Hopeful

Army engineers say that the Mississippi, Father of Waters, will swallow the Ohio River's record flood waters without serious difficulty.

Their prediction is based on the capacity of the Mississippi's billion-dollar levee system and the flood crest now in the lower Ohio.

Now, between 2,100,000 and 2,200,000 cubic feet of water is flowing each second at the Ohio peak. When this water strikes the Mississippi it will open in a basin designed to carry 2,400,000 cubic feet per second.

These figures in themselves are not reassuring, the engineers say, but added to the different character of the Mississippi's valley, mean that the big river will handle the water better than its tribuary will, it was forecast.

These physical characters are the Mississippi's broader valley and lower gradient. These factors, causing the flood crest to spread out to the levee and assume a slower pace, will keep the flow to the river's capacity of 2,400,000 cubic feet per second and hence eliminate the possibility of disastrous floods.

This is the engineers' prediction. The result will be known Monday or Tuesday when the flood peak hits the Mississippi at Cairo, Ill.

Six Others Are Injured as Army Aircraft Falls En Route to Langley Field From Duty in Flood Area.

Walter Reed Hospital in Washington by ambulance later tonight.

Nied was attached to the Thirty-fifth Pursuit Squadron. Privates Cardwell, Fenton and Wright were members of the Fifty-ninth Service Squadron. Anderson was from the Headquarters Squadron and Sergt. Harvey of the First Air Base, Langley Field.

The War Department in Washington gave Lieut. Zimmerman's residence as Sterling, Kans. It was believed he was badly injured and burned.

Wright, Sergt. Harvey and Anderson were believed to be the most seriously burned, with the a possible exception of Lieut. Zimmerman. Fenton and Cardwell appeared only slightly injured.

Officers at the remount post here assumed that Fenton and Cardwell were the principals in getting the men from the plane's flaming wreckage. The plane burned so quickly and the heat became so intense that rescuers were unable to reach Nied.

The condition of the men, all of whom suffered severe shock in addition to their injuries, made it impossible for officers here to question them on details of the crash. It was assumed Lieut. Zimmerman had failed to see the mountain top in the fog.

Troyanovsky Calls Soviet Democratic

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Soviet Union was placed "definitely on the democratic side of the street" by Ambassador Alexander A. Troyanovsky tonight in the world struggle between fascim and democracy.

This struggle, the Soviet emissary said, is the most important in the world today, more acute than the struggle between capitalism and socialism.

Troyanovsky, speaking at a dinner of the American Russian Institute, proclaimed his country "one of the most sincere guardians of peace" and said it represented "a powerful counterbalance against warlike and disturbing factors."

Commutation Bill Voted By House Committee

The House immigration committee approved yesterday a bill which would prevent persons from commuting across American borders to work in this country.

The ban would apply to American citizens residing in Canada or Mexico as well as to aliens.

The committee also approved a bill to take away citizenship of Americans who vote in foreign political elections or in a plebiscite to determine the sovereignty of a foreign territory.

Stable Money Seen Bonnet's Mission

Paris, Jan. 28 (AP).—Georges Bonnet, recently named French Ambassador to the United States, was considered today to have been handed as his principal goal permanent stabilization of English, French and American currencies.

Bonnet's mission—he sails from Havre February 10 to assume his new post—was linked to the visits of Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade in the British Cabinet, with President Roosevelt.

(Runciman was understood to be an unofficial commercial ambassador seeking better trade relations.)

Searchers Comb Mine For Man Lost 24 Hours

Flemington, W. Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Searchers groped through an abandoned coal mine tonight hunting 38-year-old Robert Johnson, who entered the mine 24 hours ago with two others but failed to emerge.

Johnson leased the operation, intending to work it, and last night entered with Buddy Cleavenger, 16, and an unidentified neighbor, to determine water conditions. Cleavenger said he and the man left the mine without difficulty, supposing Johnson followed. They said they last saw him about the 800-foot level.

Flood - Control Authority Plan Is Considered

Agency Like TVA Would Co-ordinate Ohio Valley Projects.

By the Associated Press.

Akron, Ohio, Jan. 28.—Undersecretary of the Interior Charles West, one of President Roosevelt's "contact men," said tonight the Federal Government may adopt a new flood control plan for the disaster-stricken Ohio River Valley.

West, here to address a Jackson Day dinner, said the play may be put into execution in the near future.

"In order to be constitutional," he said, "such a program must involve the national defense."

Damming up of flood waters and navigation, not power, as in the Tennessee Valley Authority, are the focal points of the proposal, West said.

The plan proposes completion of the Muskingum flood control project, tying in with the Miami conservancy district and embracing the Scioto Basin, all in Ohio, the Undersecretary added.

He pointed out that the Government already has invested approximately $80,000,000 in the three undertakings.

The initial step to establish a flood authority, comparable to the Tennessee Valley Authority, he continued, would be the appointment of a committee of Army engineers to furnish the President with preliminary data.

Car of Apples Given To Help Lift Distress

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 28.—Under the leadership of Stewart Bell, Winchester and Frederick County orchardists have done their bit toward relieving distress of flood victims by donating a carload of apples. It was turned over to the Winchester-Frederick Chapter of the Red Cross.

Meanwhile, Walker Bond, chairman of the chapter, has announced that a truckload of clothing and a large quantity of blankets made from material contributed by local woolen manufacturers have been forwarded to Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Helen Wright, executive secretary of the local Red Cross Chapter, left yesterday to report for relief duty at Huntington, W. Va.

Railways Speed Trains to Move Flood Victims

Hundreds of Cars Mobilized in Washington for Relief Work.

By William V. Nessly.

An unprecedented mobilizaiton of American railroad equipment in the flood disaster region was under way last night while thousands of men labored through daylight and darkness to strengthen levees along the mighty Mississippi River and other thousands stood ready for rescue and relief work if the levees break.

Through Washington and the Potomac Yards, railroad gateway to the South, were pouring hundreds of empty railroad cars which, within 48 hours, will be in the threatened zone and start moving out imperiled property and—if necessary—human refugees.

Three hundred empty cars were speeded through the Potomac Yards from the North last night alone. This consignment will pick up 240 more en route. From all parts of the country the movement is being duplicated, through activities of the Washington offices of the Association of American Railroads, and will continue for days, until the problem of transportation from the entire Mississippi Valley has been met.

The Red Cross last night announced establishment of two new refugee centers to care for 7,000 persons.

One will be established at Birmingham, Ala., to house 5,000 while the other will be at Chattanooga, Tenn., to aid 2,000 persons. The camp at Birmingham consists of 300 houses in an unoccupied "company village" of the Tennessee Coal Iron & Railroad Co. which have been turned over to the Red Cross.

Crest Moving South.

Meanwhile, the crest of the flood was moving ominously south from the desolated Ohio River Valley. Relief agencies were strained to care for the hundreds of thousands driven from their homes. The Red Cross reports showed 806,576 persons affected but to this must be added a huge number cared for by relatives or caring for themselves. The disaster zone yesterday included 184 counties in 11 States, while other States and counties farther south were preparing desperately for trials to come.

Gen. Malin Craig, Army Chief of Staff, still was hopeful that the Army's evacuation task, for which adequate preparations have been made, will not have to be made general but can be localized. But his hope is predicated on favorable developments throughout the critical stages.

The Army, now that its evacuation plans are perfected, is devoting its efforts in the threatened zone to keeping down alarm of the populace. It is advising people how to reach the trucks and trains that will take them to higher ground whenever the need arises. Many won't go when the first warning is given, it is conceded, and will have to be taken out when the waters actually start advancing on their homes. Still others likely will remain even then, when, Gen. Craig said, it will become a boat job to remove them from the upper floors and roofs of their homes. But the Army, Navy and Coast Guard are prepared for all these steps.

Health conditions, on the whole, continue good, Surgeon General Thomas Parran, of the Public Health Service reported. Widespread immunization against typhoid is continuing.

A great-hearted Nation, moved by the plight of 1,000,000 homeless persons in the Midwestern flood area, yesterday swelled the relief fund of the American Red Cross almost to the $3,000,000 mark.

Contributions, it was reported, totaled $2,831,361. The goal is $10,000,000.

To The Washington Post yesterday came $702.25, making the total of contributions collected by this newspaper $5,081.34.

The sum collected by the District Chapter mounted to $94,526.02. Twenty large cases of bedding were sent from here yesterday to the flood area, making 80 in all since the Ohio and other streams burst over their banks. Twenty-four active volunteer workers have gone from here to the flood region, and altogether 190 have offered their services.

Many Large Gifts.

Large gifts to the relief fund announced by Red Cross headquarters yesterday were: J. P. Morgan & Co., $25,000; United Fruit Co., Boston, $25,000; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, $5,000; Standard Brands, New York, $10,000; members of New York Stock Exchange, $10,000; Charles Steel, New York, $5,000, and Bernard M. Baruch, of New York, $2,500.

From Tokyo yesterday came the following message from the Japanese Red Cross:

"Reported by newspapers suffering flood Ohio, Mississippi valleys increasing. Can we help?"

An unidentified man here yesterday sent his watch to Brig. Gen. Frank B. Keefer, chairman of the District of Columbia Chapter. It arrived in a bulky envelope with the following note:

"Maybe you can sell this for something toward the flood relief fund."

"Acme of Generosity."

Gen. Keefer said he thought this man had reached "the acme of generosity."

The Strand Theater, Ninth and D streets northwest, through Manager Silling, offered its earnings from 9 p. m. on for the flood relief fund. Mrs. O. J. Jordan, a member of the Red Cross Motor Corps, was assigned to stand in the ticket booth with police protection to receive the money.

At the request of national headquarters, the District chapter has prepared 80 layettes for shipment to four relief centers in the flood area. Some of these will be transported by airplane.

In the last Mississippi flood, 800 babies were born in the stricken area. This time the Red Cross wants to be prepared for similar emergencies.

W. A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States, yesterday contributed $1,500 to be divided among Cincinnati, Kentucky and Washington.

Other Large Contributions.

Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, sent Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross, a check for $750, making the total of his contribution $1,000. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, also sent Admiral Grayson a contribution.

Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Pittsburgh, a member of the Red Cross central committee, sent a check here for $1,000 and at the same time contributed through Pittsburgh and Palm Beach.

Newcomb Carlton, chairman of the board of Western Union, sent Admiral Grayson a check for $5,000.

The Kiwanis Club of this city, at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel, donated $100 and the relief committee of the Washington Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, met last night at 1508 Fourteenth street northwest to collect money and supplies for flood sufferers.

Grayson Tabulates Wide Flood Effect

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross, gave President Roosevelt yesterday the following figures on the number of persons being aided by his organization in the flood area:

Arkansas	17	74,961	*72,745
Illinois	6	24,339	.....
Indiana	22	67,775	49,261
Kentucky	73	347,589	256,000
Louisiana	2	270	270
Mississippi	2	4,050	4,050
Missouri	5	41,792	.....
Ohio	29	143,437	100,000
Pennsylvania	1	18	.....
Tennessee	13	35,842	†50,000
West Virginia	12	64,661	20,703
Totals	184	806,576	553,029

*Includes homeless in Illinois and Missouri.

†Includes homeless brought to refugee camps from other places.

2 U. S. Planes in Mexico Seen Headed for Spain

Mexico City, Jan. 28 (AP).—Two airplanes, purchased in the United States for the Spanish Socialist government, were crated and moved to a Vera Cruz dock today presumably for shipment to Spain on the steamer Mar Cantabrico.

A last minute order from the communications department halted movement of four other planes. The two crated ships, the communications department declared, were under Mexican registry, having changed from American registry soon after they arrived from the United States last December.

Price Cancels Speech.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (AP).—Lieut. Gov. James H. Price canceled today an engagement to address the retail merchants of Suffolk tomorrow night because of illness for the past few weeks.

Nation Praised For United Aid In Flood Relief

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday ordered all communication services on 24-hour duty to facilitate relief work in the flooded areas, Hampson Gary, general counsel, told a luncheon meeting of the Georgetown Law School Alumni Club at the Raleigh Hotel.

Gary praised the "valiant and effective" services that are being rendered by radio broadcasters, especially in the Mississippi and Ohio River areas. Hundreds of the 45,000 amateur radio operators licensed by the commission, he said, are volunteering their services day and night for relief work.

In discussing the rules of procedure for the guidance of lawyers practicing before the commission, Gary said the agency is aware of the inadequacy of its present rules, but is "earnestly desirous to render maximum usefulness." As science keeps forging ahead, he said lawyers should keep pace by providing "safeguards for the common good."

Because the radio, the telephone and the telegraph have made all nations close neighbors, he predicted that the communications industry would "become more and more a mighty force in preserving the peace of the world."

The newly elected officers of the District of Columbia Bar Association, headed by President Henry I. Quinn, were honor guests at the luncheon. With the exception of Wilbur L. Gray, secretary, they all are graduates of the Georgetown Law School. E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel and president of the alumni, presided.

Truijilo Sends $20,000.

Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, Jan. 28 (AP).—President Rafael Trujillo today sent $20,000 to President Roosevelt as a personal contribution for the relief of United States flood sufferers.

New Postoffice Site Asked for Falls Church

A bill calling for an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of a postoffice site at Falls Church, Va., was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia.

Smith also offered a bill to extend the authority for the Great Falls Bridge Co. to build a bridge across the Potomac River "within a mile" of the falls.

Gale-Blown Ice Wall Does $5,000 Damage

Barrow, Alaska, Jan. 28 (AP).—A wall of ice, blown inland 200 to 300 feet by a southerly gale, destroyed several shacks, boats and other equipment, and buried sled dogs on the beach here today.

Frightened Eskimos patrolled the beach, prepared to sound an alarm if there is a recurrence.

The icy mass, 60 feet long, did an estimated $4,000 to $5,000 damage in its 30-minute invasion, then subsided.

persons. Four thousand remaining, mostly men, completed 3-foot bulkhead atop 60-foot sea wall. Ohio scaled up past 58 feet. Crest of 62 feet expected by Sunday. Lone highway only means of egress.

Harrisburg—Gas and water cut off as Ohio backwater rose. Looting reported. Boats sole means of transportation. WPA assigned 15,000 workers to menaced levees along Ohio.

Mound City—Five Negro refugees drowned when motorboat capsized. Coast Guard removing 250 still beleaguered.

Metropolis, Brookport—Partially inundated.

OHIO.

Known dead, 14. Estimated homeless, 250,000.

Cincinnati—Restoration of 15,000 flooded homes and buildings in metropolitan area planned to start in several days. Ohio inched back toward its banks. Damage estimated $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

INDIANA.

Known dead, 9. Estimated homeless, 75,000.

Evansville—Thirty-five thousand residents of west portion of city virtually isolated when Pigeon creek engulfed connecting bridge. Ohio rose past 53 feet with crest of 53.5 charted. Seaplanes brought in vaccine. Damage estimated at $16,000,000.

Jeffersonville—Virtually deserted. Reconstruction surveys planned in all river towns on southern border.

New Albany—Seventy-five per cent submerged.

TENNESSEE.

Known dead, 10. Estimated homeless, 125,000.

Memphis—Tension of Mississippi Valley residents eased by meteorologist's prediction river would crest at 48 feet here by February 5-7. This would be 3 feet above any previous stage but five feet under previously estimated peak. River rose more than 6 inches to beyond 44 feet. Mayor Overton granted wide power to care for 12,000 refugees on hand and 38,000 more expected.

Tiptonville—Workmen strove to save dike.

MISSOURI.

Known dead, 17. Estimated homeless, 41,000.

New Madrid—Ohio flood swelled Mississippi. Exodus on. Most of stores closed. New Madrid—Birds Point spillway—131,000-acre safety reservoir—filled rapidly with water diverted to save Cairo. United States Army troops sent to aid 2,500 men laboring to hold setback levee here and at Charleston. Thousands marched from flood basin. Rescue boats sought 110 marooned.

ARKANSAS.

Known dead, 25. Estimated homeless, 75,000.

Mellwood—National Guard planes dropped warning notes to residents of this city threatened by crumbling Mississippi River levee. Soldiers moved thousands from lowlands.

Cummins—State prison farm dispatched 935 prisoners and 3 carloads of farm implements to aid huge force building defenses along Mississippi.

MISSISSIPPI.

Known dead, 3. Estimated homeless, 4,500.

National Guard units ordered to stand by for flood duty.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Known dead, 13. Estimated homeless, 64,000.

Wheeling—City council estimated $100,000 would be needed for street clearance as Ohio moved back to banks. WPA and CCC workers started cleaning flood debris from 8,000 homes.

Huntington, Parkersburg—Ohio overflow receding.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Known dead, 3. Estimated homeless, 3,000.

Pittsburgh—Damage and wage losses unofficially calculated at $1,500,000. Business virtually normal again as rivers dropped steadily.

Metropolitan Opera Star tells why he prefers a light smoke

Lauritz Melchior says:

"The hardest test I can give a cigarette is to try its effect on my throat after hours of intense rehearsal. I've found that a light smoke meets this test. And so, although I'm not a constant smoker, I favor Lucky Strike for the sake of my throat. And, incidentally, so does my wife. When we go back to Europe we never forget to take along a good supply of Luckies."

Lauritz Melchior

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Melchior verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat!

Japan's Move To Form New Cabinet Fails

Ugaki Blocked by Army's Refusal to Appoint Senior General.

By the United Press.

Tokyo, (Friday) Jan. 29.—Gen. Issei Ugaki today informed Emperor Hirohito he is unable to form a cabinet.

Ugaki was commissioned by the Emperor to form a new cabinet following the resignation last week of the government headed by Premier Koki Hirota. His efforts were blocked by the army's refusal to appoint a senior general for the portfolio of war. Constitutional procedure grants the armed forces the right to name their own representatives in the cabinet.

Ugaki had even announced he would relinquish his army title to forestall criticism that the army would be unable to maintain discipline in event he should head the government.

Ugaki assumed his task last Friday with full support of the Emperor. He was selected as a compromise candidate after a fight between parliamentarians and militarists seeking to impose a militarist-Fascist dictatorship resulted in the fall of Premier Koki Hirota's cabinet.

Ugaki's efforts failed despite support of the general public and the Emperor. Public opinion blamed the militarists for crushing taxes and an unbalanced budget because of their huge armaments expenditures and demands for a still larger arms expansion program during the next five years.

Hosiery Workers Hear Labor Aide

By the Associated Press.

Edwin S. Smith, National Labor Relations Board, told the American Federation of Hosiery Workers yesterday organized labor is a bulwark of democracy and its continued growth would be a guarantee against fascism.

Smith said he believed the Wagner labor relations act, because of its social and economic implications, "is the most important piece of legislation passed by Congress since the Civil War."

If the act fails to pass its test in the Supreme Court, he said, "then labor will indeed be confronted in unescapable fashion with the question of what it wants to do about the Supreme Court.

"Labor already has indicated rather vigorously through various sources its belief in the necessity of amending the Constitution to permit adequate social legislation, once passed, to stay on the statute books. Labor could hardly take any other stand and be true to the fundamentals of its present situation.

"As long as interpretations of our Constitution by the court stand in the way of labor making its proper strength in the body politic effective, then surely labor must seek means to prevent the frustration of its will by the courts."

Two High Schools Forfeit Recognition

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 28.—Superintendent of Schools O. L. Emerick has received notice from the supervisor of high schools that the schools at Lucketts and Waterford will no longer be recognized as high schools because of the small enrollment in the high-school grades. This decision of the State school authorities will not apply to the present graduating class who will receive full credit for their work.

The high schools of Leesburg, Lincoln, Aldie, Ashburn, Lovettsville and Round Hill have been accredited by the State Department of Education for the present school year.

Legion Sends Truck Of Supplies to Ohio

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Jan. 28.—The Morris Frock Post, American Legion, and local Volture, 40 and 8, will send a truckload of clothing and supplies to Columbus, Ohio, Friday, for flood sufferers. The supplies and food to fill the five-ton truck have been donated by local manufacturers, merchants and individuals.

A dance was announced for tomorrow night at a local tavern for the benefit of flood sufferers.

Hagerstown and Washington County quickly met its $2,000 quota and was informed today that the quota for this county had been raised for the second time to $5,000 or more.

County P.-T. A. Formed At Prince Frederick

Prince Frederick, Md., Jan. 28.—About 250 persons were present Tuesday night at the organization of a Parent-Teachers Association here in the Calvert County High School.

Mrs. Robert B. Meade, of North Beach, was elected president; Calvert C. Buckler Huntingtown, vice president; Miss Dorothy Ordwein, Prince Frederick, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. Gordon Bennett, Lusby, recording secretary, and Miss Frances I. Gruver, Prince Frederick, treasurer.

Harry R. Hughes, county superintendent of schools, emphasized the need for more space for both the high and elementary schools here.

Lions, Kiwanis Oppose Proposal for Park Fee

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester Jan. 28.—The proposal to charge for admission to the Shenandoah National Park continues to draw the fire of Vinchester business men and civic leaders. Two service clubs of the city have followed the recent example of the Chamber of Commerce by expressing to Federal officials their views.

The Lions Club and the Kiwanis Club have adopted resolutions and it is reported that other organizations are about to do likewise. It is feared that the proposed fee would decrease tourist traffic.

Montgomery Board Approves Salary Increases for Police

Commissioners' Recommendation Will Be Forwarded to Assembly Delegates; Indorsement Includes Restoration of $500 Pay Slice.

Salary increases of $300 a year for Montgomery County policemen were approved yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners at their meeting in Rockville, Md. The approval also included return of the $500 reduction forced by the last session of the Legislature in the salary of the chief of police.

The $300 increase would apply to all policemen. The recommendation will be forwarded to the county delegates to the General Assembly now in session at Annapolis.

Commissioner Frank H. Karn, Paul M. Coukhlan and Robert D. Hagner voted to recommend raises while Commissioners Richard H. Lansdale and Charles E. King voted against it.

Bonds totalling $180,000 for school construction were sold by the county commissioners yesterday to the John Nuveen Co., of Chicago, at par with a 3¼ per cent interest rate.

The bonds are to provide funds for the construction of a junior high school at Kensington, costing about $160,000; $12,000 for work at the Chevy Chase Elementary School and $2,000 for improvement of the grounds at the Sherwood High School in Sandy Spring.

The commissioners unanimously adopted a protest resolution against the legislative recommendation of the Civic Federation, which would abolish the county liquor control board and place the duties of that board on the commissioners.

The commissioners declined to alter the regulation for dairies, which requires them to purchase milk from farms within a 40-mile radius of Rockville, but agreed to reduce the inspection fee for dairies outside of the county to $1.50 instead of the present $2. A delegation of dairymen, headed by W. Lawson King, appeared to ask for the change.

Weaver Bros., real estate firm of Washington, withdrew their application for change of zoning of a section of the Patton tract on East-West highway in Bethesda from residential "A" to "D."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Choral Society, under the direction of Louis A. Potter, sings the "Deutsches Requiem" of Johannes Brahms Thursday night in Washington Cathedral as a musical service in memory of King George V of England on the anniversary of his burial. Chorus assisted by 30 members of the National Symphony Orchestra and by Robert Barrow, organist. Soloists: Ruby Potter and Edwin Steffe. ...

Opportunities to hear Brahms' choral masterpiece are not frequent, and that the Washington public is aware of this was evident by the size of the audience that filled every seat and available standing place last evening in Washington Cathedral. As was befitting the memorial occasion, no applause interrupted the continuity of the work or broke in harshly upon the meditations of the spirit which the music inspired.

The German Requiem is one of the mast warmly human works ever arising from a personal grief. As is well known, it came into being as an expression of the composer's sorrow over the death of his mother, and no greater tribute to maternal affection and solicitude was ever paid. Brahms chose his texts from the Bible and constructed a liturgy of his own, thus creating an individual threnody which, though heterdox in form, is orthodox in reverence and in faith.

One of the salient excellencies of this requiem is the appropriateness of every human theme to the exact emotional state to be expressed. As far as the value of mundane life is concerned, Brahms was a pessimist, for in his experience the bitter exceeded the sweet. To the ephemeral nature of human existence no one has given more convincing expression than he.

Three of the most striking moments in the requiem are those set to the texts "Behold all flesh is as the grass and all the goodliness of man is as the flower of grass;" "Lord, make me to know the measure of my days on earth, to consider my frailty that $ must perish;" and "Here on earth we have no continuing place, howbeit, we seek one to come." He who can hear these passages without feeling humbled is strangely unresponsive to music.

But Brahms, the optimist in spiritual things, can raise one from depression to exaltation with such a glorious song of conviction as swells in the chorus. "Grave, where is thy triumph; death, where is thy sting?" And in the quietude of the final chorus, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth," speaks the abiding peace that accompanies the surrender of the finite will to infinite wisdom.

The conditions under which the requiem was sung make criticism of details out of place. But it can be said that the performance was very creditable to an organization which has hitherto essayed nothing so difficult, and that the carefulness of preparation was as manifest as the sincerity of the reading.

Arlington Pushes Flood Aid Drive

Arlington County Chapter of the American Red Cross has passed the halfway mark in its drive for flood relief funds, E. C. Butterfield, chairman of the chapter's disaster relief committee, announced yesterday.

Liberal contributions have been received from many individuals, churches and civic groups, but a further response will be necessary to reach the chapter's quota of $1,500, Butterfield stated.

Contributions of clothing for the flood sufferers have been generous. More than 3,000 garments have been received.

Erosion Methods Applied to Roads

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Jan. 28.—The State Roads Commission in co-operation with the Soil Erosion Service, is going to apply soil-erosion methods to rights of way of State highways. A number of projects are planned in Harford, Anne Arundel and Washington counties, where farm soil-erosion projects are in progress, and in Frederick and several other counties this spring, Dr. H. E. Tabler, chairman of the Roads Commission, announced.

A contract has been signed by the Federal and State groups calling for joint supervision. The Soil Erosion Service will provide technical supervision for surveys, planning and construction; the Roads Commission maps and plans, construction materials, machinery and wider rights of way.

Slopes of both cuts and fills along the roads selected for treatment will be serried, drained and planted and other steps will be taken to prevent erosion in highway ditches and in the water paths both above and below highway drainage structures.

Because road drainage affects large areas of land adjacent to rights of way in the matter of drainage of soils, it is expected that property owners will be benefitted, while the roads themselves are expected to be aided by more efficient drainage, preserving dirt shoulders and slopes and the carrying of water from the grades portion of the roads.

Citizens Will Protest Diversion of Gas Tax

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 28.—A public protest against diversion of State gasoline tax revenue funds will be registered here next Tuesday night, Roger B. Wolfe, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced today. Wolfe called a public meeting, to be held in the Francis Scott Key Hotel at 7:30 p. m., and urged all persons interested to attend. A number of prominent citizens immediately announced their intention to be present.

Contracts Are Awarded For Three Navy Ships

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Swanson has announced that construction of the three remaining vessels of the 1936 building program had been awarded to the Philadelphia, Norfolk and Mare Island Navy yards.

One destroyer, he said, would be built at Philadelphia, another at Norfolk, and a submarine at Mare Island.

100 on Vessel Adrift in Storm, Lifeboats Gone

57 Dead in Gale Driving Brazilian Passenger Ship Toward Reef.

By the Associated Press.

London, Jan. 28.—A steamer bearing 100 passengers was reported drifting helplessly off Portugal tonight as gales sweeping western Europe took at least 57 lives in maritime disasters.

The passenger vessel, the Brazilian steamer Santos, sent out distress signals stating she was drifting towards the reef-girt Berlengas Island with her engines damaged and her lifeboats gone.

After the first signals, no further messages from her were reported in Lisbon where tugs were prepared to race to her aid as soon as the seas moderated.

Portugal Hard Hit.

Portugal was hard hit by the storm which sank or damaged 23 vessels within the port of Leixoes, outport of Oporto. These included the British steamer Ashanti and the Norwegian steamer Ingria.

The British ship Achilles lost one man overboard while rescuing the crew of the Dutch steamer Jorge Jacobus, which sank near the Berlengas, rocky islands off Portugal.

Two trawlers were believed to have carried 46 men to their deaths in the North Sea yesterday after distress signals had been flashed. Neither the French trawler Libette with 30 men aboard nor the British Amethyst was believed to have kept afloat in the gale and heavy seas.

Hurricane-Force Winds.

Shipping along the western edge of the continent faced winds of hurricane force which threatened to drive them ashore along the Portuguese coast, although the full force of the storm was abating somewhat.

The gale smashed 50 feet of facing off the admiralty station in Gibraltar harbor, and the powerful British battleships, Nelson and Rooney, together with smaller naval vessels, were forced to stay in the bay.

Two men were believed to have drwoned at Oporto, Portugal, when the Norwegian steamer Engria broke from her River Douro moorings and sank the motorship Oriente, the victims were aboard the Oriente.

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (AP).—The State board of public works appointed S. C. Cromwell, of Rockville, today as executive secretary of the unemployment compensation division.

Cromwell, a regional director for the Works Progress Administration in western Maryland, will have charge of the various divisions devoted to personnel selection, record keeping, research, tax collection and other administrative functions.

Dr. W. Phelps Thomas, Cyrus Clifton Curtis, jr., and Miss Margaret Wolman were named as members of a bureau of research and information. They will work on a study of social security and handle technical questions.

Wreath Laid on Tomb Of Judge John Handley

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 28.—The birthday of Judge John Handley, benefactor of Winchester, was observed yesterday when students of Handley High School placed a wreath on his tomb in Mount Hebron Cemetery.

Judge Handley, a Scranton, Pa., jurist and capitalist, after visiting Winchester immediately after the Civil War, determined to leave his estate to the war-torn and ravaged community. When he died his fortune amounted to more than $2,000,000. Handley Library and Handley High School two of the city's finest institutions are monuments to his memory.

Pennsylvania Man Killed by Falling Tree

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 28.—Harry Baker, 26, of New Baltimore, northwest of here, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon by a falling tree. Baker was assisting Lloyd Wagaman and several other men fell trees in the mountain lands near his home. Coroner Dr. A. W. Thrush, of Chambersburg, decided an inquest unnecessary.

Baker is survived by his father, Harry Baker, and two stepbrothers, Ivan and Clyde Baker, of Lewistown, Pa. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at South Mountain, Pa., by the Rev. Levi Carbaugh. Burial will be in Strang's Cemetery.

Cripple's Leg Broken By Hit-and-Run Driver

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 28.—George Herbert, 32, Sharpsburg, Md., is in the Washington County Hospital today, because his good leg was broken last night when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver. The other leg, an artificial one, was left intact.

Police are also hunting another hit-and-run truck driver who crashed into the car of Jesse A. Higgins, Cincinnati, demolishing it. Higgins and members of his family escaped injury.

30 Days in Jail Given for Theft From Blind Man

Charged with stealing ten packages of cigarettes from a blind newsstand operator, Jerry Arnold Reynolds, 51, 94 K street northwest, was sent to jail for 30 days yesterday.

Reynolds was arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt, accused of taking the cigarettes from Charles L. Robertson, operator of a stand in the Federal Warehouse, Seventh and D streets southwest.

According to testimony of Charles Turnbull, warehouse guard, Reynolds became acquainted with the blind vendor and was extended the privilege of buying cigarettes on credit. Turnbull said Reynolds got two packages of cigarettes and gave the man a slip of paper. In the meantime, it was testified, he filled his pockets with ten.

2 Councilmen Enter Primary At Alexandria

Davison and Lamond Will Be Candidates to Succeed Themselves.

Two at-large members of the city council of Alexandria, Mayor Emmett C. Davison and Vice Mayor A. Slater Lamond, will be candidates to succeed themselves at the Democratic primary election April 6, it was announced yesterday, Dr. John T. Ashton, the third member-at-large, will not be a candidate, stating he expects to make his home in Belle Haven, south of Alexandria.

Declaration of intention must be filed by all candidates prior to midnight Friday. The general election will be held June 8, when independent candidates may oppose the Democratic nominees.

The terms of the three at-large councilmen expire September 1, while the terms of the six members of council from the six wards in the city will run to 1938. The councilmen-at-large were elected in 1934 for three-year terms.

Chairman Clyde C. Lamond, jr., of the Alexandria American Red Cross Chapter, has announced contributions of close to $3,000. Admiral Cary T. Grayson asked all set quotas be ignored as the needs of the flood sufferers are increasing. The Alexandria branch of the Needlework Guild of America has given 104 new garments for flood area victims.

Alexandria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will celebrate its fourth birthday tonight with a dinner at 7:30 o'clock, in the George Mason Hotel, followed by entertainment and dance.

The guest of honor and principal speaker will be H. L. McConnell, representative of the Grand Council of the Order of DeMolay and in charge of Virginia activities.

Elmer G. Ridgely is general chairman for the affair, assisted by William M. Saunders, William E. Lee, Stanley F. Fedder, Alvin Gillum, Godfrey P. Runaldue, James A. Thompson, Richard E. Stulz, Lloyd B. Burk, jr., Otey Carroll, Walter C. Herbert, Joseph D. Robertson and Douglas W. Stanton, jr.

District Deputy Lawrence W. Corbett, of Alexandria, on Wednesday night installed the recently elected officers of Fitzgerald Council, No. 459, Knights of Columbus.

Officers installed were: John A. Lannon, jr., grand knight; Frank Nowland, deputy grand knight; Robert Carey, chancellor; John DeMarr, lecturer; William A. Devaughan, advocate; Everett DeVaughan, financial secretary; Thomas J. McFarland, treasurer; R. L. Carne, recorder; Francis Buckley, warden; T. J. TRAINING FOR LEADERSHIP

The primary purpose of the Pace Courses—taught in this school—is to train students to become leaders in the accounting profession. Prominent Pace alumni include four recent presidents of national accounting associations, members of C.P.A. Boards, writers of accounting reference books, lecturers in universities and officers of nationally known corporations. A list of several score of these leaders is contained in the year book of this school. In 1936, and for the entire past ten-year period, more Benjamin Franklin graduates passed the District C.P.A. examinations than graduates of any other school

Film Star Continues Trip to Attend Parties; Harlow En Route.

Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor were to reach this city at 8:35 a. m. today for their appearances at the President's birthday parties here Saturday night. A late report from Hollywood stated that Taylor had been stricken with influenza on the train but was continuing the journey.

Marsha Hunt, Paramount star, is already here and has been presented officially the key to the city by Commissioner George E. Allen, chairman of the President's birthday ball committee. Joe E. Brown is flying to Washington and is expected before 2 p. m. today.

Abe Lyman and his band are to arrive tomorrow afternoon. Other notables are to be on hand to entertain at the seven birthday ball hotels.

In the meantime, Gene Ford, who is mapping the shows to be staged at the hotels, has rounded up additional entertainers.

Other Stars Listed.

In addition to Miss Harlow, Taylor, Miss Hunt, Lyman, Lucy Monroe, Frank Munn, Mitzi Green, Maria Gambrelli, Sir Guy Standing, Frederick Jagel, Irving Caesar, Sid Gary, Bennie Fields, Don Zelayo and others, Ford has obtained the services of the floor show from Mrs. Helen Hamilton's Russian Club Troika. The cast includes Marusia Sava, Vanya Orlick, Mischa Markoff, master of ceremonies; Eleana Lollk, mil Wadimoff, Sasha Bartnovsky, Zenaids Nicolena and Yasha Nikogossoff, the latter the exponent of the flaming dagger dance, which will be added to the show at the Mayflower.

Then there are Amanda Snow, the spirit of Minneapolis; Genevieve Pearson and her dog, Greaseball; Cathreen Carrico, infantile paralysis victim who sings; Marguerite and Bouchette, dancers; Charles Barnes, tap dancers; Petrey and Anderson, young performers, and others.

Commissioner Allen will welcome Miss Harlow and Taylor at a meeting at his office at noon today. They will be presented with the keys to the city, and then will start on a round of activities that will keep them busy during their visit. Maria Gambrelli, Frederick Jager, Miss Harlow and Taylor, Mitzi Green and Brown will be entertained this afternoon at the Italian Embassy.

Broadcast Planned.

Tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. the stars will take part in a city-wide broadcast, conducted over three stations, with Radio Joe Kaufman as master of ceremonies. They will appeal to the public to attend the ball to aid the fight against infantile paralysis and will bring greetings from Hollywood.

Miss Hunt, first of the stars to reach Washington, and Commissioner Allen joined in a broadcast over a coast-to-coast hook-up on Columbia Broadcasting System yesterday, taking a few minutes of the United States Army Band's program. Miss Hunt assured her listeners "all Hollywood unites in sending, through the few of us who are here, best wishes for the success of the President's Birthday Ball in all parts of the country."

Tickets for the ball and for the two midnight shows contributed by the Capitol and Earle theaters are being sold. Commissioner Allen has warned that the seating capacity of the theaters is limited and that no tickets will be sold beyond the actual number of seats.

Soviet Seeks Death for 17 In Plot Trial

don) and Radek of approving Trotzky's negotiations with Fascist aggressors. (The exiled Leon Trotzky, from Mexico City, vigorously denied any connection with the asserted conspiracy.)

"I accuse the center of carrying out wrecking with great damage in the Soviet state. I accuse them of high treason, espionage, sabotage and the organization of criminal forces.

"I accuse all the others of the same crimes. The basic crime was high treason."

Vishinsky said the state charges Trotzky inspired and directed the terrorism and wreckage plotting; that this was proved by admissions of guilt by the defendants and by documents including a letter allegedly written by Trotzky with an "infamous appeal" to remove Josef Stalin in 1932.

Accuses Trotzky.

He read from a "bulletin of opposition" which said a program of terror long had been the Trotzkyists' objective. Pausing, he attributed authorship of the article to Trotzky and remarked:

"Trotzky says it would be childish to think Stalin can be removed constitutionally. That article definitely shows terror was the method for removal of the present Soviet government."

The defendants will be given an opportunity for "final words" tomorrow and Saturday after which the judges will take the case. Their verdict is expected 12 or 15 hours later.

As the trial drew to an end, reliable reports said, Piatikoff's wife was arrested and admitted knowledge of the conspiracy before her husband confessed. In some quarters, belief was expressed her detention may have been a contributory factor to the former commissar's confession.

There was no further elaboration of reports Trotzky's second son, Sergei Sedoff, was arrested at Krasnoyarsk. Officials refused to deny the report or to comment on it.

Council Kills Social Security For Canadians

Idle Insurance, Minimum Wages, Marketing Acts Held Invalid.

By the Associated Press.

London, Jan. 28.—Canadian legislation for unemployment insurance, minimum wages, limitation of working hours and regulation of marketing was declared unconstitutional today.

The ruling came from the judicial committee of the privy council, highest judicial body in the empire. The committee upheld measures to regulate some trade practices and to help indebted farmers.

The legislation was adopted by the Canadian Parliament in 1934 and 1935, when the Conservative government of Premier R. B. Bennett was in office.

Only two of the laws, however, have been put into effect—that to aid farm debtors, which was upheld, and that giving farmers the right to combine in regulating production and marketing of their products, which was declared invalid.

The unemployment and social insurance act which was held unconstitutional provided for establishment of a system throughout Canada whereby the individual, the employer and the government all would contribute to a fund to help the worker if he lost employment.

In ruling against the act, the privy council's committee remarked:

"Assuming the Dominion has collected a fund through taxation, it by no means follows that any legislation disposing of it is necessarily within Dominion competence."

Three acts to provide for one day of rest in industry each week, minimum wages and limitation of working hours were declared invalid on the ground the Dominion Parliament had overstepped its authority.

These measures, recommended by the International Labor Office, were accepted by the Canadian government, but the privy council's committee declared only the separate legislatures of Canada's provinces could pass legislation to make the proposals effective.

(The International Labor Office was created by the Versailles postwar peace treaty, and the Canadian government had held that since it had treaty-making powers, the Dominion Parliament could adopt the social legislation.)

The council committee asserted also that the provinces alone had the right to legislate "in respect to local conditions, which may vary by as great a distance as separates the Atlantic from the Pacific."

Otherwise, the committee held, "the constitutional safeguards of provincial autonomy" would be undermined.

In upholding the act which provides relief to financially distressed farmers, the committe said it could not hold that the conditions enabling a creditor or debtor to invoke the aid of the bankruptcy act were intended to be stereotyped under the Canadian constitution.

The act permitting farmers to combine to controlling production and sale, the privy council group ruled, "covered transactions in any natural product completed within a province and had no connection with interprovincial or export trade."

Therefore, it held, the act "must be beyond the competence of the Dominion Legislature."

Banks Able to Aid With Flood Loans

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28 (AP).—Tom K. Smith, president of the American Bankers Association, declared today banks in the flood-stricken areas have ample surplus loaning power to meet the increased demand for commercial loans which normally would arise in the wake of the high water.

He addressed more than 700 bankers from 18 States and the District of Columbia at the opening of a two-day conference under auspices of the association.

Catholic U. Displays Drawings by Miss Rowe

An exhibit of liturgical drawings and embroidery by the English artist, Miss Constance Mary Rowe, is on display at the Mullen Library, Catholic University. It will be continued through 8 p. m. tomorrow.

The exhibit consists of 24 paintings in oil and tempera, 50 drawings and water colors and three works of embroidery.

Trade Bill Passes House Committee

By the Associated Press.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved yesterday a bill to extend for three years the President's authority to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements. The vote was split along party lines.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, said he would attempt to obtain prompt House consideration of the measure under a rule permitting ten hours of general debate.

President Roosevelt and Administration officials have indorsed the extension as a means of stimulating permanent economy recovery and laying a firm foundation for world peace.

Townsend Heads Here To Present Petition

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, exponent of the old-age revolving pension plan, left here today for Washington, accompanied by J. W. Brinton, editor of the Townsend Weekly.

Both appeared here yesterday in two mass meetings.

Dr. Locke, Bibliophile, Is Dead at Toronto

Toronto, Jan. 28 (Canadian Press).—Dr. George H. Locke, president of the American Library Association in 1926 and internationally known bibliophile, died today. He was 66.

Dr. Locke had been chief librarian of the Toronto Public Library since 1908. He formerly was a member of the faculties of Harvard University and the University of Chicago.

House Passes Postmaster Bill In Brisk Battle

much as you like," he said, "but it's already gone as far as postmasterships are concerned. You've got nothing to lose now if you vote for this bill. You are just getting rid of a political liability."

Ramspeck, in pointing out that the bill had the indorsement of the President, the Postmaster General, the American Federation of Labor and all Government employe and postal service organizations, added:

"It also has the backing of 85 per cent of the people as shown by the survey conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion."

The results of this survey were carried in The Washington Post.

Briefly, the Ramspeck measure provides that first, second and third class postmasters shall be appointed without terms by the Postmaster General under the terms of the civil service act of 1883.

Will Complete Terms.

Incumbent postmasters will be permitted to serve out their four-year terms, after which they may be reappointed without term after passing a non-competitive examination. If the Postmaster General does not rename the incumbent, he may promote an employe in the same postoffice jurisdiction on the same basis, or, finally, he may call upon the Civil Service Commission to hold open, competitive examinations.

The Collins amendments were intended to return the postmaster selections to the members of the House under the same policy that prevailed prior to the issuance of the executive order.

They substituted four-year term appointments for "without term" and eliminated the provision for promotion within the service. They, finally, provided for open competitive examinations for new appointments with the postmaster to be chosen from the three making the highest grades.

A minority of Republican leaders, like Representative Rogers, of Massachusetts, and Wadsworth, of New York, and the Progressive Floor Leader, Representative Bolleau, of Wisconsin, centered their attack on two provisions of the bill.

Name One of Three.

One of these, they charged, would enable members to keep their fingers on appointments by providing that appointments shall be made from among three candidates in cases of open, competitive examinations instead of falling automatically to the person making the highest grade. The latter system is included in the President's executive order.

Challenged as to whether his bill would enable the Postmaster General to continue his policy of calling for indorsements from members of Congress, Ramspeck said he could not speak for the Postmaster General, but presumed he would.

The second point of attack was a provision which restricts appointments to persons who reside "within the delivery of the office to which he is appointed" for a year prior to appointment.

Representative Wadsworth asserted that this provision would result in "utter stagnation" for postal employes interested in career service. It would prevent transfers of deserving employes, he said, and would hold up promotions until a postmaster died or retired.

The New Yorker offered an amendment to permit transfers within the State, but it was shouted down.

Coalition Shows Strength.

An example of the strength mustered by the coalition of patronage-hungry Democrats and Republicans may be seen in the votes on the three Collins amendments. They were adopted in committe of the whole by 152 to 115, 122 to 98 and 125 to 95.

So disgusted did Ramspeck become toward the close of the session that he voted with the Republicans and Progressives to substitute the Bacon bill after Boileau had offered it as a substitute This move lost 148 to 130. Later it was defeated on a roll call vote, 270 to 109.

During a defense of the substitute, Boileau told the House that he had served under both Republican and Democratic administrations without ever being called upon to recommend a postmaster. He added that he had "enjoyed" the distinction.

Citing the Ramspeck measure, he said: "There's still too much room for politics in it."

The contempt of many members for the civil service system was exemplified in the remarks of Representative Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri.

"What we want in postmasters is horse and buggy sense, not book learning," he said. "We have never had trouble with any of the postmasters in my district except one; he was a career man. And he was the most arrogant, stuck-up critter I've ever encountered."

Respectful Starlings Lacking In Smithsonian's Acquisitions

Icelandic Spoon Box of 1685, President's Sailfish and Ellsworth's 'Polar Star'—But No Squirtless Grapefruit.

Once a year the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution issues a press release proclaiming its accessions of the past fiscal 12 months.

The time has come for another inventory, and Director Alexander Wetmore proudly cites the acquisition of an Icelandic spoon box dating from 1685, the Post-Gatty airplane, Winnie Mae, and a sailfish caught off Cocos Island by President Roosevelt.

Too, the vast collections have been enriched by the first locomotive ever to enter Washington, a batch of bizarre mollusks and an old Spanish halbred head that may be a relic of Coronado's expedition.

Cautious Statement.

Dr. Wetmore, in short, confines his announcement to mention of items already collected by expeditions, donated or purchased. He avoids all reference to specimens which so far have eluded the exhibit cases, shelves, walls and drawers in the Mall.

Your correspondent, in the humble hope that a recital of a few of these still unconquered candidates for Smithsonianization may inspire the institution to still greater endeavor, therefor begs to state:

That the National Museum, while now the possessor of Lincoln Elsworth's plane, Polar Star, has yet to capture, dead or alive, a starling which is respectful of architecture and automobiles.

While the newly acquired 141 specimens from prehistoric graves in the Crimea have great scientific significance, the lot did not contain a single skeleton actually taken from someone's closet.

No Biscuits Included.

Dr. Wetmore's statement that new specimens include 557 Old Stone Age artifacts from the Cave of the Oven on the western slope of Mount Carmel emphasizes the eminent worth for exhibition purposes of a bridal biscuit that is light and fluffy.

"The department of biology," reads the report, "obtained 263,705 specimens, some representing hitherto unknown species of plants and animals."

Take no false hope, however, for the additions numbered no spinach that does not taste like spinach, no Congressmen who won't announce on the slightest provocation that they are the hardest working of all persons, no milkmen who cannot abide noise, no grapefruit guaranteed squirtless.

Although the Smithsonian is still searching perseveringly, it has yet to catch up with a press agent sans adjectives, a fish as big as "the one that got away," a parrot that says "Polly hates crackers," even one of the stars which allegedly fell on Alabama or an apologetic saxophone player.

Be patient, however. There will be another annual report this time next year.

Britain's Regency Bill Is Presented

London, Jan. 28 (AP).—A bill framed at the personal request of King George VI, which would make his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, regent in certain contingencies, was laid before the House of Commons today.

It provides that the adult next in line of succession to the throne shall become regent if the King dies and is succeeded by a minor under 18 years old or becomes totally incapacitated by "infirmity of body or mind."

The bill, called for second reading February 2, also provides for creation of a council of state if either the King or regent becomes ill, but not so ill as to be wholly incapacitated or if the King or regent is absent from the country.

Aviation Industry Studies Progress

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Aviation's business men and scientists examined today the newest developments in the flying industry as the groups gathered here for their annual winter sessions.

At Columbia University the scientists listened, under the aegis of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, to the men from the laboratories and classrooms describe their developing theories of flight.

In Grand Central Palace the National Aviation show opened tonight with the first indoor exhibit of planes Gotham has seen in seven years.

As the 32 planes in the show—ranging from "hedge hoppers" that run slightly over the $1,000 price mark to the bigger transports—were drafted for the public showing, members of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America heard a report that 1936 business was up 85 per cent over 1935.

Justice to Be Theme Of Forum Discussion

Representative Byron Scott, of California, and David Sokol, an attorney and writer, will speak on "Justice for the Underprivileged" at a meeting of the Capital City Forum at 1502 Fourteenth street northwest, at 8 p. m. today.

Rowe Praises Roosevelt Visit To Argentina

Director of Pan American Union Tells of Effect on South America.

The outpouring of national feeling in the Argentine over President Roosevelt's recent visit was something that Latin America had not witnessed before, according to Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union.

An active participant in the Buenos Aires Peace Conference, Dr. Rowe stated yesterday that the President's keynote address sounded the tocsin of a revitalized democracy, creating "a very deep impression" in the sister republics of the southern continent.

"They looked upon the President as the leader of the democratic movement in the United States," he said, adding that "the strong emphasis" Roosevelt placed on the preservation and development of democratic institutions as a guaranttee of international peace struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the delegates.

"The yeoman work done by Secretary of State Hull at Montevideo came to full fruition at the Buenos Aires Conference," Dr. Rowe commented. "When I visited Chile and Peru on my return journey there was the warmest feeling everywhere for and confidence in the future policy of the United States."

Speaking of the peace session, the Pan American Union executive said: "It gave us a new interpretation of peace. It took the view that peace does not always exist when there is an absence of war. And not only did it weld the Americas closer together in a united front against war but it recognized the fact a menace to one republic constitutes a menace to all.

"All delegates seemed to agree that peace meant active co-operation between all the nations of America, and mutual assistance in the solution of common problems," Rowe asserted. "The Buenos Aires conference I believe was the first milestone along the road that leads to closer understanding, closer cultural co-operation, closer friendship between the republics of the new world, and more freedom in the exchange of ideas."

Wallace Devises New Crop Policy

Chicago, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace said tonight that the Federal Government intends to set up an "ever normal granary" plan to act with the soil conservation program in assuring the Nation an even flow of farm commodities. He said the new policy of controlled abundance has been approved by President Roosevelt.

The program calls upon farmers to fill up storage bins, diminished by recent droughts, to an extent consistent with good soil practices.

"Its object," Wallace said, "is to protect farmers in years of good weather and consumers in years of bad weather. It will bring about a more constant supply, thus a more constant price."

$20,000,000 Suit Filed Against Rockefeller Kin

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—A $20,000,000 damage suit—the largest in Connecticut history—was filed in Superior Court today against the estate of Percy A. Rockefeller, nephew of John D. Rockefeller, and Louis P. Cheney, Connecticut industrialist.

The suit was brought by the National Bondholders Corporation, which charged that the late Rockefeller and Cheney depreciated the assets of National Surety of New York by $15,000,000 through "reckless and unlawful management."

Wallace Invited to Speak.

Senator M. E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday invited Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to address the annual banquet of the Maryland Outdoor Life Federation in Baltimore February 28.

15-Year Prisoners' Wives May Remarry

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—The wife of a man sentenced to from 15 years to life imprisonment may consider herself a widow and remarry, Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo ruled today.

She need fear no shame or embarrassment if her first husband subsequently is pardoned or paroled, the court said.

His ruling was made in granting a declaratory judgment to the effect that Gertrude M. Brockman is no longer the wife of James M. Brockman, who is serving a life sentence in the Attica State Prison. Brockman had opposed it on the grounds he probably would be paroled in ten years.

15 Months Bring 'Worst Weather' U. S. Has Known

A veteran weather expert said yesterday the last 15 months have brought the United States "the wors combination of weather ever recorded."

J. B. Kincer, chief of the climate division of the Weather Bureau, called the Ohio River floods just another in a series of extreme conditions.

First was the unusually cold winter of 1935-36. Then came the devastating floods in the East last spring, the tornadoes which swept the South, and the searing summer drought in the Midwest.

"About the only thing the country has escaped in a year was a severe tropical storm," he said. "We did have tropical storms, but they were not major disasters.

"Three unfavorable factors already have been chalked up this winter: The unprecedented floods, abnormal warmth in the East which has forced vegetation to an extremely dangerous stage if cold sets in, and the extreme cold in the Far West.

Despite the deluge of water in the Ohio River basin, Kincer said the seven-year period starting in 1930 showed a critical moisture shortage in the central United States.

Civil War Crisis Settled in China

Nanking, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Chinese government announced today settlement of the seven-week political-military crisis in Shensi Province by an agreement under which Communist and Communist-inspired armies will withdraw still farther into the bleak northwest.

Nanking leaders said this agreement ended the threat of widespread civil war in Shensi and Kansu provinces. They asserted the National government would recover control of Sian Fu, capital of Shensi and center of the long-drawn uprising

House Group Approves Reciprocity Extension

The Administration's bill extending the provisions of the reciprocal tariff act until June 30, 1940, yesterday was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, and was tentatively scheduled to come up in the House next week.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton obtained permission to file a report before midnight last night. Republican attempts to amend the measure, to require Senate ratification of reciprocal trade agreements, will be made in House and Senate.

Prince Georges Towns Support Police Shakeup

Amendment to Police Bill Backed by Municipal Association.

A plan to hire a Washinton or Baltimore police official for two years to reorganize the Prince Georges County Police Department was adopted last night by officials belonging to the county's municipal association, who met in Hyattsville to consider amendments to the police bill, already introduced in the State Legislature, in session at Annapolis.

Other amendments sought to the bill included the creation of a separate police commission of three men to take charge of the county force; an increase in the number of officers from 15 to 24 men, and an increase in salaries.

These recommendations were virtually the same as those adopted by the Prince Georges County Federation of Citizens Associations at Bladensburg Monday night. They followed the bonding and arrest "racket" cases in the county recently.

Incorporated towns represented at the meeting, which was presided over by Bird H. Dolby, of Mount Rainier, first vice president, were Mount Rainier, Cheverly, Hyattsville, Riverdale, District Heights, Brentwood, Colmar Manor and Berwyn Heights.

The proposed amendments to the State bill were introduced by Mayor John N. Torvestadt, of Colmar Manor.

Power Co. Files Appeal on TVA

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—The Georgia Power Co., lashed yesterday by Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, for "shopping among Federal courts," carried its fight to "freeze" TVA expansion in northwest Georgia into the Fifth United States Circuit Court today.

TVA had emerged victorious in United States District Court here when Judge E. Marvin Underwood enjoined Georgia Power from applying an injunction granted at Nashville which "froze" TVA expansion at the status quo.

The Nashville injunction, granted 19 private utilities—including Georgia Power—prevents further expansion of TVA electrification programs pending ultimate determination of the Authority's constitutionality.

Georgia Power sought to apply that injuction in Georgia, but was overruled by Judge Underwood. The case now goes to the Charlotte Circuit Court.

2 Well-Raffled Chickens Bring Red Cross $15.40

Two chickens, raffled and re-raffled among employes of the War Department, yesterday had netted $15.40 for the Red Cross flood-relief work, bringing the department's total contributions to $3,196.

One employe of the Quartermaster General's Office brought in two chickens as his contribution to the flood victims. Rather than ship them to the affected area, they were raffled, netting the fund $10. One of them was won by a widow, unable to make a large contribution, who presented her prize to the Red Cross fund. The chicken was re-raffled, this time bringing $5.40.

2 Death Inquiries Scheduled Today

Inquests were scheduled today in the traffic deaths of Jerome E. Elliott, 72, of 733 Sixth street northwest, and Gladys Redman, 36, of 4529 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Elliott, the District's latest traffic fatality, died yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday, when he was struck by a truck at Sixth and H streets northwest. His death brought this year's toll to 12.

The truck was operated by Theodore G. Economonu, 22, of 606 Fifth street northwest. He will appear at the inquest.

Mrs. Redman died in Casualty Hospital after an automobile in which she was riding crashed against a tree January 14 on Florida avenue northeast.

The woman was a passenger in a car driven by Edward L. Bennett, 39, of 322 Tenth street northeast. Bennett will testify at the inquest.

Yale Man With Trotzky.

Parking Decision Expected Today

Definite action on Washington's "snow removal" parking controversy is expected today when Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen meets with Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District Engineer Commissioner, and Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown.

Recently ruled illegal by a decision of Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran, the regulation prohibiting parking in certain sections of the city between the hours of 2 and 8 a. m. is still in effect. The Commissioners will take the issue before the District Court of Appeals.

It will be decided at today's meeting whether policemen will be ordered to enforce the much-debated law pending appeal of Judge Curran's ruling. It was indicated unofficially last night that cars parked contrary to the regulation will be tagged.

Defending The Franc.

Following Finance Minister Auriol's positive announcement that no further devaluation of the franc is now contemplated, the Bank of France has raised its discount rate from 2 to 4 per cent, in an effort to discourage borrowing for speculative purposes. This action is reported to have been taken at the instigation of British bankers with whom the French Treasury is believed to be negotiating a loan. It looks, therefore, as if the present rumors of impending devaluation are groundless.

The weakness of the franc, moreover, results from causes that will not be removed by further reducing the external value of the currency. The main difficulty is the unbalanced state of the budget and the lack of investment confidence resulting from an unsatisfactory financial position.

The Blum Government has done a great deal to dispel all fears as to its competence and has shown restraint and good judgment in its conduct of foreign affairs. Nevertheless, the people have not rallied to the support of the franc by bringing back expatriated capital, and they show little desire to invest hoarded savings in government obligations. Indeed, speculative buying of stocks and commodities is being stimulated by fear of further price increases. Funds are also said to be seeping abroad in spite of pressure to prevent the outflow.

Until France is prepared to rally behind a government with the courage to carry through a retrenchment program the franc will remain essentially unstable and subject to periodic sinking spells. A rise in the discount rate of the central bank, and foreign loans to meet treasury needs that French investors ought to satisfy, may bolster up the currency for a time. But such protective moves are only palliatives which momentarily relieve but do not remove the pressure upon the franc.

Further devaluation would likewise be merely a palliative if the French continue to follow a policy of deficit financing which drives domestic capital away from home, or into hiding. While it might give an added stimulus to the export trade and thus reduce the unfavorable merchandise balance, it would at the same time introduce new elements of uncertainty into foreign trade. This would be most unfortunate, both for France and for her partners in the present tentative stabilization agreement.

Within France, also, renewed devaluation would increase fears of an inflationary price rise in addition to creating other disturbances incidental to monetary manipulation of this sort.

Note To Potential Authors.

Troubles, the wiseacres say, never come singly. This is also true of moving pictures, book titles, and magazines. If the world beats a path to one man's doorstep to buy a better mousetrap, all his neighbors will soon be building similar traps. "Gone With the Wind" skyrocketed publishers' hopes to such an extent that aeolian titles are now all the rage. The next few months will see publication of "Straw in the Wind," "Ride on the Wind" and "Wind-Swept." So it is that fads are born.

Very evident nowadays is the trend toward concentration, in pamphlet form, of books and magazines. This month has witnessed the budding of two such nutshell periodicals—Books in Brief and The Book Digest of Best Sellers. The former is a late-blooming plant with roots in the now extinct Golden Book and its contents range from classics to contemporaries. The latter, appearing practically on the heels of the books it digests, is just what its title says. A cursory glance indicates that all publishers are co-operating, which points the logical conclusion that such condensations are favorable to sales.

But there are other considerations besides royalties. Think of all the big moments eliminated in this ruthless way! Ponder the reactions of heroes and heroines who find themselves rushed through their complexes at the mere whim of an omnipotent editor. Shed a tear for the descriptive passages, whisked away like stage scenery! And what about the poor author who sees his brain-child thus reduced to capsule proportions? The only thing left for him to do is take a tip from Mrs. Sanger and practice book-control.

To Obtain The Facts.

Secretary Perkins' request for power to investigate the causes leading up to strikes and to make recommendations for their settlement raises a number of far-reaching questions. How would this proposal dovetail with the functions of the National Labor Relations Board? Could the Department of Labor properly serve as an impartial investigative body? And would the situation be improved by writing a new law before the possibilities of legislation already on the statute books have been fully explored?

Immediate sympathy with Secretary Perkins' suggestion is aroused by the obscurity of the facts on which the current automobile strike centers. As she points out, "there are charges and counter-charges on both sides." Public opinion is uncertain in its reaction because the claims of the company and the union obviously cannot both be true. In the case of a strike that is seriously interrupting economic recovery, it is highly desirable that the actual facts be revealed to assist in bringing about a settlement.

Neither employers nor employes would be unreasonably handicapped by impartial analysis of the validity of their respective claims. Indeed, the fair-minded employer would be aided by such a policy, as would any responsible labor union. Too often industrial disputes are settled through force and intimidation on one side or the other. Impartial fact-finding should become the key to better understanding and rational compromises.

In principle, therefore, Secretary Perkins' proposal is certain to receive widespread indorsement. But this should not obscure the difficulties likely to arise from practical application of the formula she has devised. Fact-finding is a complicated process, as any of the established regulatory agencies will testify.

It is well to remember that one purpose of the national labor relations act was to bring about investigations of industrial disputes before they reached the stage of conflict. Indeed, the board began hearings last June on a complaint that the General Motors Corporation was indulging in unfair labor practices. Those proceedings were stopped by an injunction. Had they been permitted to continue, the background of the dispute which led to the automobile strike would doubtless have been explored, and the facts which Secretary Perkins seeks would probably be available to her. They may still become so if the circuit court honors the board's current demand that the stay be vacated.

Certainly the desirable time to begin an extensive investigation of industrial disputes is before and not after a strike has been initiated. If an inquiry under emergency conditions were rushed to quick completion it would lose most of its weight. If it were thorough, the process might be too slow to be effective.

The most important unknown fact in the present dispute—the relative strength of the striking group—could presumably be obtained through the election machinery of the labor relations act. Thus far the labor board has not acted because it has not been appealed to. Mr. Lewis can explain best why such action has not been taken.

Before drafting new legislation, therefore, Congress may well consider whether the objective sought by Secretary Perkins cannot be realized through the labor relations act. Even though that measure is under attack in the courts, it would scarcely be wise to adopt a new and unco-ordinated labor policy as a temporary expedient.

If new machinery to deal with strikes affecting the national welfare is needed, it should be shaped from sound general principles and carefully integrated with the laws already in operation.

Morals And Pay Checks.

"They aren't worth it."

That is the conclusion of the average man when he hears about the fabulously large salaries paid to popular movie stars. Even the highest-salaried business executive, indeed, may feel slightly piqued on learning that Greta Garbo received $332,500 from M. G. M. in 1935 while the average salary of the five leading stars of that company approximated $260,000.

The widespread belief that these high-priced individuals are overpaid undoubtedly springs from a conviction that there is some esoteric measurement of a man's "real worth" that ought to find reflection in the size of his income. This belief also accounts for the disapproval with which people note that a crack ball player or first-rate pugilist can earn more in a year than the President of the United States.

In a materialist society like ours it is illogical that we should cling so tenaciously to irrelevant metaphysical tests of economic worth, forgetting that what a man earns depends up his value in dollars and cents to his employer. The reformer may work for a Utopia in which there is some rational connection between social service and pecuniary reward. He may denounce the materialistic, amoral appraisal of human beings in the market places of the world. But so long as we permit men to be competitively hired in the belief that a system of free enterprise produces the best economic results for all the people, we must in logic admit the inevitability of salaries unjustified by any moral argument.

Greta Garbo's value, obviously, is measured by the profits from the films in which she stars. It happens that she is an actress of rare ability who elevates the art to which she devotes her talents. But among her contemporaries there are quite a number of highly-paid stars whose incomes depends upon their appeal to crude and vulgar tastes. Nevertheless, they also earn their salaries, judged by the pragmatic test of what the sovereign public wants. When the community decides that a particular type of business or occupation is anti-social the remedy lies in abolishing or controlling it. It would be no solution to decree that those engaged in these activities should have their wages and salaries severely reduced as a mark of disapproval.

Like movie stars, business executives are often paid large salaries because they possess a relatively rare kind of ability, valuable to the concerns employing them. They do not need to possess sex appeal and they are not subjected constantly and relentlessly to the acid test of box office receipts. But the profit and loss accounts of the businesses they direct are none the less the index of their market value.

Of course there are always a certain number of highly-paid positions in the business world, as in political and professional fields, that are the result of "pull." Because of his holdings or his connections a man may be able to vote himself into a high-paid office and stay there, regardless of his ability. But these are exceptions to the general rule. By and large, in all walks of life, people are paid what they are worth—to their employers.

Haste Or Progress?

Farm tenancy legislation is one of the most complicated subjects before the Seventy-fifth Congress. In spite of the overwhelming sentiment in favor of easing the burdens of tenants and sharecroppers, no single method, by which that objective may be accomplished has been worked out. There is, however, more than a chance that Congress will go ahead with legislation whether or not it has a practicable plan.

Realizing the intricacies and ramifications of the problem, President Roosevelt appointed a committee last November to make a detailed study. Its report is scheduled for February. That allows none too long a period for a survey of such magnitude. But the House Agriculture Committee is not even willing to wait until these findings are available. It began hearings on farm tenancy this week.

The only apparent reason for this haste is to get some sort of bill through Congress at the earliest opportunity. Chairman Jones of the Agriculture Committee explains that the farm tenancy measure was permitted to die at the last session, and he doesn't want that to happen again. But further delay, in spite of the urgency of the problem, could easily be preferable to the enactment of a hastily concocted nostrum that might ultimately leave tenants in a worse position than they now occupy.

Secretary Wallace has come to the conclusion that "our objective should not be primarily to promote ownership as against tenancy, but to establish types of farm tenure that will result in greater security for both landlord and tenants." Merely to place farmers on lands of their own, he says, will not give them security. As proof he notes the high percentage of tenancy on lands given away by the Government as homesteads during the last 75 years. Many families, he declares, have become so accustomed to "waste and ignorance that they no longer possess the self-reliance or the managerial ability to run their own farms successfully."

Practical investigators may also be forced to conclude with Secretary Wallace that "with 2,800,000 farm tenants in the United States it will be impossible in any reasonable period of time to extend credit to all of them in order to help them buy farms." If Congress is to face the problem realistically, therefore, it will have to consider improvement of the tenancy system along with proposals to set up sharecroppers on farms of their own. To rush through hasty legislation, before the President's committee has even had time to make its report, would be of dubious value to any permanent solution of the problem.

What Fools.

Rube Goldberg at his most nonsensical could scarcely improve on the latest war machine reported from Rome. Termed, aptly enough, a "crazy torpedo," it is a self-propelling charge of explosive to be floated down by parachute from an airplane hovering over an enemy harbor. On reaching the water, a chemical burns away the parachute cords, leaving the device free to proceed until it hits a dock or vessel and explodes.

Of course, a defense against the new weapon will be quickly devised. That could be demonstrated at our Patent Office where only recently plans were filed for giant fans to blow the flames back on attacking flame throwers. Some similar ingeniousness is sure to be found to nullify Rome's latest threat.

The point is otherwise. After ages of slow and painful experimentation, the world perfected a machine to fly like a bird and another to lower weights safely through space in case of emergency. Other long ages were needed to learn the safe manipulation of explosive chemicals and to develop automatic propulsion. In the end, it seems, all this amazing knowledge is co-ordinated to produce a "crazy torpedo." Yet we regard the urchin who heaves a brick through a window with extreme disfavor.

Strikers Defy The Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Pegler has rendered a real public service by his article in The Post of January 26, in which he so clearly presents the issues in the automobile strike. This strike is being overshadowed for the moment by the terrible flood disaster, but it involves principles more vital to all the American people, and to our social order and political institutions than does the flood.

Material and economic losses, great and disastrous as they are from the flood, can be recovered, but should the principles prevail for which Lewis and his followers are contending a body blow will be given our social order and political institutions from which recovery would be possible only by violent revolution.

The primary and fundamental duty of government, in fact the very reason for which government is established, is the protection of the life, liberty and property of the citizen, and when it fails in this primary duty it ceases to justify its existence. This man Lewis, by his tactics, is threatening all three.

He and his followers are really outlaws, because they are operating outside of the law, and in open and contemptuous defiance of the law and the constituted authorities. His sit-down strikers are trespassers upon the properties of the General Motor Co., and if their action is condoned or longer permitted the constitutional rights of property will no longer exist in these United States, and every one's possessions will be at the mercy of labor union gangsters.

The unquestionable object of Lewis and his associates is to sovietize the industries of the United States, and to control them by, for, and in the interest of his union. Such activities and objects should not be tolerated for a day in America, and it is clearly the duty of the State governments where these strikes are being conducted to forcibly eject, if necessary, these strikers from the plants of the company, and give every possible protection to the property of the company, and it is passing strange they have thus far failed to do so.

These law-breakers should be taught the wholesome lesson that no individual or class is above the law in the United States, or can defy the law and destroy the constitutional rights of the citizens of our country.

A Midshipman's View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Probably the "Admiring Critic" whose letter berated President Roosevelt for allowing military units to parade in the wet and cold was thinking more in terms of criticism of the President than of consideration for the troops.

In the first place, the Commander in Chief, being no weather prophet, could hardly have been expected to know that it was going to rain, and in the second, well equipped military units are not designed to be affected by such a small thing as adverse weather conditions, their potential duty consisting of far worse ordeals than a wet inaugural parade.

Lastly, I believe that the parade in Washington last Wednesday was the best practice drill we have had since I have been in the regiment.

Birthday Ball Proceeds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why would it not be a useful as well as a gracious gesture, if President Roosevelt would turn over the proceeds of the scheduled birthday balls to flood relief?

After all, the number of sufferers from infantile paralysis is infinitesimal, compared to the victims of the most serious flood in our experience.
A. J. S.
Washington, Jan. 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I make a suggestion through your paper, that owing to the great suffering in many States right now and money so much needed, the money derived from the President's parties be turned over to the Red Cross this year. I have talked with many and they all think as I do in the matter, so why not put it up to the President and others in authority.
G. H. QUINTON.

Flood Relief Funds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am writing as a suggestion for a possibility of raising immediate funds for the present flood disaster an idea which I believe is not only possible, but very vital at this time.

This Saturday we are to hold President's Birthday Balls all over the country, the receipts of which are to go for a very charitable and necessary fund. But with the present state of emergency and the immediate need of money for those in dire need because of the flood, and since the distribution of this fund is solely up to the President, it seems to me that there could be no plausible objection to merely diverting about 10 per cent of the gross receipts of this fund to those who are so greatly in need of the bare necessities of life without delay.

It seems that with a little co-operation from the newspapers some publicity might be given to the idea along with the great amount of publicity that is given to this admirable event anyhow, and that the attendance to this affair might be greatly increased by its twofold purpose, so that in reality the amount diverted from the original fund would actually be nothing because of the doubtless increase in the attendance.

This is merely a thought which, if not possible, might at least lead to some other way of raising money in connection with the President's Birthday Balls.

Sit-Down Strikes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please permit me to ask how long is John L. Lewis, self-appointed leader of the C. I. O. broken branch of our regular labor union, allowed to defy the laws of the land by his "sit-down" strike? This communistic and revolutionary idea germinated in Russia, was cultivated in France, and transplanted over here by Lewis and dupes, who are now defying the country and its laws, by sitting down on other people's rights, waiting to be handed over to them "easy living" on a silver platter, even more fantastic than $200 per month Townsend.

Evidently Mr. Lewis does not believe in the Golden Rule, but that labor, as represented by him, has the only right of living. If a worker, like Henry Ford, for instance, succeeds in establishing his own factory, he loses his rights after lifelong toil and hardship. No matter what one may think of the so-called capitalistic system, we must all honestly admit that under that much maligned system the American worker is enjoying the best of homes, the greatest comforts and luxuries, undreamed of 50 years ago, unknown in any other country on the earth and still only a dream in poor deluded Russia, where the common worker does not own the coat on his back.

At present, we know what we have. Under the dictatorship of the proletariat, and Mr. Lewis, we do not know what is in store for us. In the meantime, let us pray to the good Lord to keep our country free from the communistic system which Mr. Lewis is trying to force upon it.

Inaugural On Flag Day?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Inclement weather invariably prevails on Inauguration Day, when hundreds of thousands of enthusiasts from all points anticipate gathering here for the gala occasion—to get a mere glimpse of the President and to view a spectacular parade—and more frequently than not registers disappointment and much discomfort to a vast majority who brave the elements, shivering, cold and wet to the skin, with resultant colds, and maybe terminating influenza or pneumonia.

Therefore, may it not be a feasible suggestion to advocate the advancement of Inaugural Day to June 14—Flag Day—rather a befitting time for the occasion, and much more agreeable to all concerned, regardless of weather conditions that time of the year.

Painting Out Injustice To The Poor

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Westbrook Pegler article of January 23 in The Post contains this final paragraph:

"I wonder if Washington—the Capital, the town—ever looks at its watch to recall reality and remember that the poor are not merely a political phrase."

President Roosevelt stated in his inaugural message that "I see one-third of a Nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished." That, we hope, is not a "political phrase." However, the fact remains that we have this terrible situation with us and we have quite a bit of it here in Washington.

The big question is: What is going to be done about it and who is going to do it?

On the morning after the President delivered his inaugural message in which he stated that "the Nation seeing and understanding the injustice of it, proposes to paint it out," I received a letter from the mother of three children asking for advice as to the solution of her situation. She had no food, no fire and no money with which to purchase these necessities. Her rent is due again and a notice of eviction has been received already.

The father of the family is a WPA worker at $45 per month—but back rent accrued last summer when the family was taken off relief and the case worker either negligently or maliciously failed to certify that man for work for several months. The monthly wage has neither provided heat nor proper care for those of the family with health problems nor has it paid off the back rent for which the family is not responsible.

Mr. Pegler need not leave Washington, the Capital, to pull out his watch. Only a few days ago we read of a family of nine children awaiting eviction. I know of another family with four children, the youngest 6 weeks old, which was recently evicted.

On last Thursday I took the letter referred to above to the White House to see if this "painting out" of misery could not begin in its shadow. I was told to go to see Mr. Harry Hopkins. I went to his office and was curtly told that he had nothing to do with the local situation. I then went to the local Director of Public Welfare and was told there that there is no help for families having an employable member in it. So what!

Who is to paint out this picture, and when is it to be done? Will it be done by exposure, starvation and death?

Washington is reported to have spent $100,000 preparing for the inaugural parade while thousands of its citizens were "ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished." Just think of it—$100,000 for the tinsel and glamour and not one penny for the ills of poverty faced by thousands of people right here in the city working for much less than the minimum living wage.

The time is ripe for some of this "painting out" to begin—even here in Washington. And Mr. Pegler may pull out his watch any minute any hour of any day and "recall reality and remember that the poor are not merely a political phrase."

Silver-Plated Puddings

CLEOPATRA did get considerable publicity for herself by dissolving those pearls in her wine; but after all, other people have consumed jewelry along with more usual articles of food. Even I have had my turn.

My brother and I were in India—that land of jewels, where men of wealth wear rings set with large flashing stones, where the women ornament not only their fingers, wrists and ears, but also their noses, ankles, and toes, and where some of the tombs as well as palaces are as exquisitely and richly wrought as the jewel case of a fairy princess.

Scarcely were we settled in a hotel in Delhi, when, upon entering my brother's room, I was surprised to find him conversing with a tall and imposing Sikh, magnificently bewhiskered and beturbaned. He was the brother-in-law of an Indian student with whom we were acquainted. Not knowing when we would come, he had been making such constant inquiry at the hotels that he had found us within an hour of our arrival. He declined our invitation to dinner, but asked us to dine with him a few days later.

At the time agreed upon he returned and took us to a restaurant, where we were joined by several of his friends—all Sikhs and all men. We were soon seated around a table spread with a white cloth, and the waiters began to serve us. Fluffy, steaming rice, chapatties—a kind of pancake which is the usual form of bread in India, and dish after dish of delicious curries. We had curried fish, curried chicken, curried lamb, curried vegetables. Meanwhile we found the conversation very interesting. All of our Sikh friends were strongly in favor of Swaraj or home rule, and told us about the wrongs of British rule and about the mistreatment of political prisoners. Having heard the other side of the matter from Indians having contrary opinions, we listened with interest. However, our host and his friends seemed to speak without bitterness, and the tone of the conversation was gay rather than gloomy.

The table was set with knives and forks, but the other guests chose to use their fingers. So daintily did they eat, that some time passed before I noticed it. They used their right hands only, and did not pick up pieces of chicken to gnaw, as some of us fork-wielders occasionally do. Instead of that, they held the piece of chicken against the plate with their third, fourth and fifth fingers, while they pulled off bits of it with their thumb and index finger. I have never seen anyone eat in a manner more free from offense.

* * * *

Finally the last dish of curry was removed and a small dish of coconut pudding was placed in front of each of us. But no ordinary pudding was this—it was smooth and shiny, a sheet of silver leaf covered each service of pudding! So thin and delicate it was that it crumbled when touched with a spoon. If the pudding had been served and eaten in the dark, we would never have suspected that it was covered with a precious metal. Our host explained that the silver was supposed to aid digestion. Then we were served with another dessert, a custard, also covered with silver leaf. And finally in front of each of us was placed a large plate heaped with a great variety of delicious tropical fruit. I am still grateful to our host for such a delicious and interesting meal.

A few weeks later we sailed from Bombay. On our ship was an Indian prince, a very well-fed looking young man. I told him about the pudding covered with silver leaf. "Oh, yes," he answered, "We use gold leaf in the same way, too."

Whiskers.

At a formal dinner following his ceremonial opening of a big new safety razor factory in the outskirts of London recently, the Lord Mayor of London presented some interesting facts: The average area of face which a man shaves is 48 square inches. The average number of individual whiskers which grow on this area is 25,000. The average growth of each whisker in 24 hours is one-hundredth of an inch. The average face accordingly grows a total of 250 inches of whiskers per day. Multiply this figure by 15,000,000, the number of shavers in the British Isles, and it is found that Britain produces a daily crop of 50,000 miles of whiskers over an area of 125 acres of faces. The Mayor could have gone on to show that the annual production would be 18,250,000 miles of whiskers. At this rate in five years these Britishers could grow enough whiskers to extend from Cheapside to the sun.

Colonies Do Not Pay.

Hitler and his spokesmen continue their clamor for the return of Germany's lost colonies. Aside from the ethical grounds on which they base their claim, they have informed the world that Germany must have them to assure necessary raw materials for home consumption.

Great Britain has the largest colonial empire. It costs London upward of $5,000,000 a year in colonial loans alone which are never expected to be paid. This year's ordinary budget is $650,000,000, from which less than $350,000,000 will be returned to England in the form of dividends paid investors in colonial enterprises.

Testimony On Child Labor.

CAPT. JOE PATTERSON, the owner of the New York Daily News, is always ribbing the publishers of other papers about their employment of little boys, or urchins, as newsboys and route carriers because he regards this as child labor and is against it. It is always nice to see a penitent sinner whooping "Hallelujah!" on the mourners' bench, but what I want to know is, what about me?

Because a long time ago, when I was an urchin in Chicago, my youth got blighted amid the sordid influences of the city streets in the services of the Chicago Tribune, from which Capt. Patterson derived his original fortune. I got blighted both ways, peddling and delivering Capt. Patterson's old paper, but in justice to him I have to say that he exploited my childhood only half as much as Mr. Hearst.

He exploited me only in the a. m.'s, but Mr. Hearst sapped my vitality, stunted my growth and clouded my young dreams both morning and evening. Old Victor Lawson, who then owned the Chicago Daily News; Old Hutch, the owner of the defunct Evening Journal, and the proprietors of the Inter-Ocean and Record-Herald blighted me, too, and before that, up in a place called Excelsior, Minn., I took a pretty good blighting from three Minneapolis publishers, only one of whom I can remember by name.

• • • •

HIS NAME was Murphy, and the paper now belongs to his son—a big, fat, black-haired man. I saw him in a night club one night down in Palm Beach drinking champagne, and I felt like telling him that every bubble was a shattered ideal of mine, every drop a blood sacrifice of an innocent child. But when I figured that maybe some day our syndicate might want to sell him my stuff, on which I get a percentage, I kept my mouth shut.

I know that was sordid commercialism and unworthy of the tradition of journalistic independence, but we didn't raise any feeble-minded children in our family, and, anyway, I have just been telling you I got blighted, so I can't tell the difference between right and wrong.

Between times I got blighted as a pin boy in a bowling alley and as bottle washer in a drugstore, where I learned to stretch whisky with tap water.

I AGREE with Capt. Patterson that child labor in the circulation branch of the newspaper business is very bad for the morals of the little merchants, because my father was a famous evangelist who didn't drink, smoke, chew or use profane language, and yet I was pretty good at all these activities before I was 16 years old. I also learned to shoot craps, but I was too dumb to remember the odds against ten the hard way and all those other combinations, so I gave that up.

In the mornings, though, I used to swear quite a lot, especially when people would leave clothes on the line on their back porches which would interfere with accurate throwing of the papers, which were rolled up and tied with string. After two or three trials, with the paper tumbling back down, I would cut loose with a blast and haul it all the way up to the third floor by hand, kicking and stomping on the stairs to wake people up by way of revenge.

Maybe that was wrong, but what do you expect of an urchin and why didn't they take in their clothes at night?

Capt. Patterson cites the testimony of Warden Lawes that 60 per cent of the scholars at Sing Sing were newsboys, and I won't argue with statistics, but I can say that the only two urchins in our neighborhood who went to prison were too smart to be little merchants. They didn't care for some of that 4 o'clock in the morning stuff, and they couldn't be bothered hopping street cars in the evening selling sheets for a profit of one-third of a cent when they could cut the lead plumbing or copper wire out of a building and get $2 from the junkman.

• • • •

DID I ever tell you how I came to quit getting blighted?

Well, it was a Sunday, with a blizzard on the lake front, and I was shoving my little wagon of Sunday papers through the snow when all of a sudden the wind blew away about 20 Tribunes, and while I was chasing the pieces it blew my route book into the lake.

That made me thoroughly disgusted, so I just went home, leaving wagon, route book, papers and all, and when the route boss called up to tell me I was fined $3 I said, "Oh, shut your face!"

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The White Chief.

("Lines on learning that Mayor LaGuardia of New York now has a white helmet, poncho and rubber boots.)

Hark! Hark! The sirens rend the air;
The clanging bells say "Clear the way!"
What is that figure, spotless, fair,
As brilliant as the light of day
The people stare into the night
Aroused from sleep and simple peace—.
A form that's clad in raiment white
Comes whirling as in silver fleece.

II.

The cacophony splits the ear,
The very city seems to quake;
Behold that figure, sharp and clear—
The color of a fresh milk shake;
The motors crack like Gatling gun,
The folks are startled and surprised . . .
They scurry from the path of one
So obviously pasteurized.

III

A wraithlike figure, head to toes,
A splash of white across the night,
A spectre pure as the snows,
An apparition lily-white;
From countless windows heads now show—
Into the streets the crowd now flies;
The timid don their goggles so
The figure will not hurt their eyes.

IV.

On by the hook-and-ladders roar—
A rather stirring sight, in fact;
But no one cheers them any more—
This pristine figure steals their act!
The hoseman once was tops by far—
He now's unnoticed and obscure;
The Man-In-White tonight's the star,
So prophylactic and so pure!

V.

The fire's reached and there's a puff
Of flame as burning timbers hiss;
The fire laddies do their stuff,
But look! Good gracious, what is this? . . .
Our Mayor stands, a man apart,
And out that fire quickly goes;
No flame or smoke cloud had the heart
To scorch or smudge such spotless clothes!

Pennsylvania Observer Reports New Dealers Disillusioned After Meeting of First Democratic Legislature.

By Eugene Pharo.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Philadelphia.

WITH THE ADVENT of the first completely Democratic administration in Pennsylvania in 91 years, the run-of-the-mine New Dealer anticipated a Utopia in which the laboring man, the reliefer, the average citizen and the social service visitor, would join hands in a ring-around-a-rosy of infinite well-being and complete bliss, under the benevolent protection of Gov. Earle and an army of crusaders. So far as they indicated any theme song, it was "Who's afraid of the big, bad Economic Royalist?"

Convening of the Legislature on January 5 provided a test of this vision, and now enthusiasts have regretfully to report that the usual disillusion has begun to set in. Although Republican "reactionaries" have been too few to amount to anything, there have been at least partial defections among the Democrats. For it has turned out that even New Dealers have a hankering for political patronage; and the fact of having ridden into power "on the President's coat tails," as Gov. Earle has reminded them, has done nothing to change it.

Besides, whether they are labeled Democrats, Republicans, New Dealers, Tories, or Liberals, nearly all legislators are necessarily politicians; and circling around on the outside continue the same politico-economic forces that have made the Legislature's progress in the past merely a series of compromises. That the meliorists have been more vocal since November 3 than the "reactionaries," is proving to have meant little, except in the field of publicity. The improvement of business conditions has undoubtedly caused some of the more sensible of the Democrats to think in less panic-stricken terms than in the early days of the New Deal, and there has been the sobering realization that what they say and do now will take effect. There isn't any Republican opposition to stop them when they seek a fight, or, later, to take the blame for obstructing them if they do not choose to act.

Doubts Grow Over Broader Centralization.

ONE DOUBT that is beginning to stick even in Democratic minds, is whether bigger and more centralized agencies of control for everything in which the State believes it should have a finger, are necessarily followed by bigger and better benefits for local communities, or local individuals. It is now being pointed out with some resentment that all individuals are fundamentally local organisms, and better understood in many cases by their neighbors, than by remote bureaucrats, whether State or Federal.

A particular case in point is a current legislative proposal to abolish local poor boards (numbering in Pennsylvania 425, and accounting for nearly 1,000 officeholders), and centralizing all public assistance in a State department at Harrisburg, with professional and semi-professional social workers being engaged in each county by county boards, to carry out a uniform State plan of relief.

Obviously such a measure, from the point of view of effective governmental operation, has a great deal to recommend it. A committee of philanthropists and sociologists, under the chairmanship of Dr. Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania law school, has spent a year in developing it. Gov. Earle is as much or more in favor of it, as President Roosevelt seems to be in favor of the Brownlow plan for reorganizing the executive and independent agencies at Washington. But that it does remove a great many of the local contacts that are dear to the engineers of political machinery is equally plain. This is fly No. 1 in the New Deal amber, and has developed opposition among Democrats as well as Republicans.

Identified with this reaction has been an interesting series of attacks against the prospect of social workers interfering with the local administration of relief. Not even all the New Dealers seem really to like professional snoopers, on whom they place blame for the discomfort and resentment that is aroused in the hearts of pensioners who unfortunately feel forced to apply for public relief, and who must answer what they consider to be too many questions. This criticism overlooks, of course, the fact that unprofessional local relief agents are compelled to ask almost as many questions, and seldom are any more humane than the professionals. In neither case does the process turn out to be the painless experience that it should be for the completely deserving recipient, or for the almost as completely deserving taxpayer. This is probably due to the collision between the traditional American belief that every individual should shift for himself, and the implacable necessities of the existing social system.

DISPUTES have risen also in regard to other projects about which the New Dealers were vocal in November and December, as part of their plan to carry out Gov. Earle's expressed intention to rid the State of "an unholy alliance of rich exploiters and crooked or reactionary political bosses," which, he said, had until November 3, "kept the people in economic and political subjection . . ."

Application of civil service or the merit system to the State unemployment security act was fought by a handful of Democrats at the special session of the Legislature in December. Plans to rip out the Public Service Commission, which is composed almost entirely of Republican appointees, and which is alleged to have performed only lukewarm service for the public, are currently being resisted; although the Governor's intention to replace the commission with a Public Utilities Commission of greater scope and power, and composed of his own appointees, probably will be successful.

Other bills introduced into the Legislature, or being prepared for it, include complex labor legislation that is intended to protect the rights of unions in a more comprehensive way than any that has been evolved even by Congress. It is forecast as being especially intended to restrain the courts and police from interfering with strikers. Housing is another point up for debate in order to eliminate such slums as lately have put Philadelphia unpleasantly in the public eye. Efforts to solve the bootleg coal situation; to fix hours and wages of labor; to revise the election laws; to reform the courts, and, especially in Philadelphia, the magistrate system; to eliminate overlapping city and county governments which, again in Philadelphia, have made possible an outrageous amount of political boodling, have also been begun by the administration. Some of them are intended to clean out various lairs of Republican hangers-on and tacticians, from doorbell-ringers up to and including judges.

Extremes Of Governor Certain To Draw Opposition.

AGAINST some of these plans opposition is not apt to prevail. Over others there will be, unquestionably, long and hard contests, in which the Democrats are certain to supply as much and as strong opposition as their titular opponents, the Republicans. The extremes to which the Governor apparently is ready to go in buttressing the position of labor, for example, are certain to strike attitudes that do not follow exactly the currently ambiguous lines of political partisanship.

Even a bill to regulate pawnbrokers, which Gov. Earle is supporting strongly, in order to make credit problems easier for the common man, is apt to arouse some opposition from "interests" which have grown fat and hearty on small loans and large percentages during the depression. The implications of the bill are apt to arouse, as well, financial interests that operate on a supposedly higher plane, but are no less interested in any attempt to regulate interest rates.

In connection with plans for legislation that have been announced from Harrisburg every few days, with the definiteness and pristine glamor of New Year's resolutions, a review of the State's financial status issued by the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce early in January provides a plaintive note. "Pennsylvania," it stated, for the express benefit of the Legislature, "now taxes general business corporations more heavily than does any other State in the Union." It added that if such tactics continue, "Pennsylvania will lose some of its markets to more favorably situated competitors, in a tax sense, or be obliged to shift its production to jurisdictions having less burdensome tax systems."

Such comments evidently are considered by New Dealers just now as merely echoes of "reactionary" pre-election oratory. How they will be considered by the State legislators as realities are borne in upon them by constituents back home, remains to be seen. These legislators have already shown themselves quite sensitive to any menace to their patronage; it is to be doubted that they will prove any more impervious in time to other influences as well.

The 'New' Order

By Hilding Siversen

Des Moines.

NOW THAT the second New Deal Administration is under way and affairs will soon settle down to a more prosaic grind in which appraisal will occasionally presume to stick up its head, a statement by John Abbott Clark in the "Southern Review" is worthy of attention. He says: "Does the taking of blustering pride in one's rugged individualism and running to the Government at the first sign of no rain in the sky make sense?"

The New York Times editorially comments: "This insolence should be answered with a roar." The present writer does not feel like roaring. There is some slight comfort in meditating upon the fact that the tide of paternalism has swept over not only the drought-stricken farmers of the Middle West, but also over the entire Nation.

Before leaving the subject of the Middle Western farmer, however, it should be said that it was an abnormal series of droughts, creating a most acute emergency that caused the farmer to ask his Government for assistance. There are signs that he does not believe in this sort of paternalism as a regular diet.

What is more disturbing is the thought that the whole country, Democratic and Republican alike, seems to have accepted, with surprising alacrity, the the juvenile philosophy that the Federal Government owes everybody a living.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH those who talk the most about "the new social order" have never defined what they are talking about, the general indications are that they are thinking loosely of the philosophy that it is the moral obligation of Government to do more and more and more for the individual, without suggesting a limit to the process.

Some religious leaders have been working along this line for quite a while. One of them, in a radio sermon a few months ago, mentioned the fact that Mr. Smith, a prominent businessman and captain of industry, had promulgated certain practices in dealing with his employes and the public, greatly to the detriment of the latter. "But he wasn't to blame," said the preacher. "He was just working under the present capitalistic system. It is the system that is to blame, not the individual."

This argument, of course, is familiar to all those who hear and read the ideology of Socialists.

It does not seem to occur for a moment to the reverend sociologist that what he is advocating and encouraging is that the individual be relieved of as much moral responsibility as possible. The captain of industry is to pass the buck. He is to shrug his shoulders and say, "Oh, no, I'm not to blame for my wrongdoing. I have no personal responsibility to do right. I heard a minister of the Gospel say so. If you must object, object to the system we are living under."

Of course, no more poisonous or destructive philosophy could possibly be inculcated under the guise of religious teaching. If the church is ever to have any appreciable effect in the improvement of social concepts, it will accomplish results only by stirring the consciences of individuals so that they will have the impulse to do right. Relieve them of the burden of their consciences, pass the buck on to the "system," and our social order, whatever it may be, will crumble from the foundations upward. The country will never be any better than the aggregate of its individuals.

• • • •

"IT IS the duty of the Federal Government to take on an increasing responsibility for the social welfare and security of its people." This is an ipse dixit. Who said so? Someone said so, quite a while ago, and the statement was repeated so many times that probably a great majority of the people now believe it to be true. The sordid and realistic fact is that this statement was originally put forth largely for political reasons. Politicians have been saying it for decades, and no one has dared to contradict them.

The American public is now intimidated by this idea. Practically no one dares to question its infallibility because of the fear that he or she will be called a "Tory" or a "reactionary" or a "standpatter."

Nations that adopted this philosophy in a big way have been wrecked thereby. Rome is one of the most conspicuous examples. Paternalism has a tendency to gain cumulative momentum. The more extensive it is, the more politicians there are who demand its further extension, until finally the weight of its demand becomes crushing and irresistible. The facts of biology repudiate the philosophy. There is not a politician in the country but who will admit privately that the "root-hog-or-die" spirit is the only thing that can make a nation worth a tinker's dam. People must have the prod of necessity in order to amount to anything. Self-reliance and energy is built upon the will to survive. Everybody knows that. And yet who dares to proclaim it?

A strange thing is that the great majority of the politicians who demand that Government extend its paternalistic devices are men who themselves came up from the ranks through bitter hardship and privation. They boast if they were born in a log cabin. They take pride in having been educated in the University of Hard Knocks. And yet, with a straight face, they will stand up and vote for measures that steadily undermine the self-reliance of the people.

Why? Because that way lies the way of the most and quickest votes. Everybody knowns this is true and few dare to say so. Instead, the usual pose is to claim that the proponent of greater paternalism is animated by the pure and holy desire to bring about a greater measure of that vague and glittering Christmas present called social justice.

Of course, anyone who takes the trouble to study history and its lessons, or ponders upon the forward march of the animate world and the laws of survival that govern subsistence, knows that a constant growth of paternalism will finally deprive the people of their muscularity. Muscle grows by resistance, not by soft ease. The Nation will not be able to survive a long period of this philosophy. If citizens are supported by the Government, that is a privilege, not a right that may be demanded. Theodore Roosevelt uneasily foresaw that this country might become too prosperous, too well fed, with a living gained too easily, and he warned against mollycoddles and preached the doctrine of the strenuous life.

The tendency to put all the responsibility on the "system" and to relieve the individual of as much responsibility as possible is a direct negation of democracy, for true democrocy involves self-reliant activity and initiative by individuals. In a true democracy the individual is held responsible to the Government rather than the Government being held responsible to the individual. All this is well known, but where are the voices to say it?

Latin!

By William Lyon Phelps.

What A Word!

I am very glad that President Butler of Columbia has recently given public utterance to the support of the universal study of Latin; for very few subjects are at once so useful and so elegant.

Fifty years ago, when a sensational attack was made on the required study of Greek and Latin in American colleges, an attack that produced an immediate effect, it was assumed that these were dead languages and therefore not useful. But nothing whatever was said against the required study of the higher mathematics, which continued to prevent many otherwise intelligent boys from obtaining a college education. Hundreds and hundreds of American boys were sacrificed to this Mathematical Idolatry; either they failed in this study and could not enter college or they were dropped after effecting an entrance.

• • • •

The study of the higher mathematics is of enormous usefulness to men entering a great variety of scientific occupations and professions; and it has great educational value to those who have an aptitude for it, whether they find it useful or not. But for the vast majority of men and women, the study of higher mathematics cannot compete for an instant in sheer practical usefulness with the study of Latin.

It was therefore silly to drop Latin and not drop mathematics.

House Imperils Senate Inquiry, Says Wheeler

By Sidney Olson.

Behind a House vote to halt the use of workers from emergency Government agencies by Congressional investigating committees, Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat) Montana, yesterday saw the hands of "the railroads, the bankers and the House of Morgan."

He said:

"They're behind this paralyzing move. They want to cripple the investigations into railroad finances and into labor espionage. It's difficult to say that anyone came down from Wall Street to see anybody in the House—but they're behind the real opposition.

"It's an idiotic thing • • • Some of the smaller fry are working against Senate investigations. But I'm as much opposed to House interference with Senate investigations as I would be to Senate interference with House investigations."

Called Economy Move.

The relief deficiency bill as it came to the Senate from the House contained the clause Senator Wheeler referred to. A move by Representative Maury Maverick (Democrat), Texas, to strike out the clause was defeated, 145-40. It was placed in the bill by Representative James P. Buchanan (Democrat), Texas, who served notice that he intended to broaden the move in future legislation to prevent regular Government agencies from furnishing men for Senate inquiries. "Economy" was given as the reason.

Wheeler insisted angrily the provision was "paralyzing." He contended that "if Congress itself can't use experts in Government to study these conditions we'll get nowhere. We're limited to $3,600-a-year men in these investigations, and where will you get able, trained, expert investigators for that price outside of the Government departments? We can't send irresponsible men into places like the Chase National Bank."

Little Effect Seen.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, acting chairman of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee in absence of Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), Wisconsin, said yesterday the House action would not affect greatly the committee's investigation into violations of civil liberties. He said:

"Our resolution calling for $50,000 with which to continue our investigation should be passed. With that fund we would not fear such a restriction. If we don't get the money we will be forced to close up shop anyway."

Thomas, however, noted that much of the investigation has been done by agents borrowed from the National Labor Relations Board.

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, has warned the Senate Appropriations Committee that if the clause is not deleted there he will head a floor fight against it.

Worker in Outburst.

The Civil Liberties Committee hearing yesterday was featured by testimony of Charles Rigby, a worker in the Electric Auto-Lite Co. plant in Toledo, Ohio, who described a Pinkerton Detective Agency operative in the hearing room as "the dirty rat who tried to frame me and my family."

Rising to his feet and pointing at R. L. Burnside, of Toledo, Rigby shouted: "I said I'd get you for this, you dirty ——, and I will! There he is, the yellow rat who tried to frame me and my family, and I exposed him! He bught to be tarred and feathered."

Burnside was called to the stand. Rigby had said Burnside had come to his home, using the name of R. L. Bronson, had represented himself as a Government agent investigating infractions of the NRA in the Electric Auto-Lite factory where Rigby worked; and had hired Rigby for $20 per week to report on matters inside the plant.

Vengeance Threatened.

Rigby suspected, he said, after a few weeks, that he had been "hooked" as a spy on his labor union. He said, "When he came to my house again, I accused him and said I'd get him for this if it took the rest of my life."

Burnside, during a somewhat uncomfortable hour's questioning, admitted he had used many aliases in his business.

He denied that as assistant manager of the Toledo office of the company he had represented himself as a Government agent, and insisted he had said merely that he represented certain people interested in getting evidence of chiseling in plants.

In later testimony from Burnside, Thomas elicited the information that Burnside had hired an agent in the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co. to spy on the picket line. One of the agent's reports suggested that if three strike picket line leaders could be "eliminated," the strike could be broken up. Burnside told Thomas the suggestion was "a mistake."

Drastic Steps Denied.

Thomas asked if "elimination" meant that the leaders would be "taken for a ride or slugged." Burnside hastened to deny this and suggested that possibly the report meant "elimination of these men from discussions."

Thomas said that the president of a striking union at Toledo had been slugged about the same time the Pinkerton spy had suggested "elimination" of the strike leaders.

Wheeler's investigation of the railroad financing finished a major phase. Meanwhile Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, promised that he would advise the adoption by the exchange of a clear-cut policy in listing holding company securities. Whitney later predicted members of the board of governors of the exchange soon would be prohibited from voting on listing of a security issue if they were participating in marketing the issue.

Testimony of J. M. B. Hoxsey, technical adviser of the exchange, was heard to the effect that great concentration of control through certain types of holding companies was "necessarily bad and unhealthy."

Urgent Flood Call—Kitten Requires Milk

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 28 (AP).—Here is an example of the flood urgencies that occupy Dr. James S. Johnson, in charge of an emergency housing bureau of Cairo.

Said the doctor:

Union Charges Against G. M. C. Sifted by U. S.

Four Federal Agencies Act on Reported Law Violations.

The Government acted through four different agencies last night to investigate union men's charges against General Motors Corporation in the automobile strike.

Assertions that strike-breakers had been sent across State lines in violation of law were reported under scrutiny of the Department of Justice.

Secretary of Labor Perkins had an attorney en route to Anderson, Ind., to determine facts in connection with charges that agents of the company took part in an attack on a union meeting and the wrecking of union headquarters.

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee sent an agent to the same place after allegations by strikers that they were the victims of violence in the strike at Delco-Remy and Guide Lamp plants, both owned by General Motors.

Injunction Halt Asked.

The National Labor Relations Board asked the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals to vacate an injunction restraining the board from holding hearings on its complaint that General Motors had engaged in "industrial espionage, threats and coercion."

Strike breakers have been recruited at St. Louis, Mo., and sent to Anderson, Ind., it has been charged by officials of the United Automobile Workers, and last night the Associated Press reported that "G-men" had been assigned to investigate. An affidavit received here was said to have stated that several carloads of "tough-looking men" were recruited at St. Louis and sent to Anderson in trucks.

Secretary Perkins termed "very serious and very shocking" the implication by a vice president of the automobile union that the attack on the union meeting and union headquarters at Anderson on Monday night "couldn't have happened without the approval or perhaps the promotion of the company."

She told reporters she was sending John Porter, an attorney of the department solicitor's office, to Anderson and other points to determine the facts. While he is without power to compel the presentation of facts, Secretary Perkins expected him to develop important information in connection with the disorder and said it would then be possible to "bring the facts sufficiently to the attention of State authorities to have something done." Prosecution in State courts, she said, would be the normal procedure if the facts warranted it.

The labor board's appeal to the Circuit Court was in connection with an injunction obtained by General Motors last June. The complaint by the labor board covered only employes in the St. Louis Chevrolet-Fisher Body assembly plant.

Termed "Novel" Request.

Meanwhile, the request by the Secretary of Labor that her department be granted quickly the power of subpena to investigate the causes of strikes met with Congressional reaction not altogether favorable.

Speaker William B. Bankhead said that her request was "rather novel" but added that "I don't say it's improper." He indicated that action on the request would not be especially speeded.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, majority leader in that branch of Congress, declined to comment, saying he was studying the Secretary's request.

Senator George H. Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, was friendly to the Secretary's suggestion, as was Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada. Senator Elbert Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, expressed the view that such investigations should be made by Congressional committees.

John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, which is opposed to the automobile strike, declared that it "would be most unfortunate" if the power of subpena asked by Miss Perkins should "in any manner interfere with or weaken" the effectiveness of her division of conciliation.

The Secretary outlined "broad objectives" of legislation she is preparing to recommend to Congress. She included:

Regulation of maximum hours and minimum wages.

Improvement of general physical conditions in work places.

Determining a minimum age at which children will be permitted to work.

president, and 29 other persons, including officers of the international union, its executive board and officers of two Flint locals. It referred to Martin as a "professional organizer" who never has been in the employ of General Motors, and charged that he and the other defendants instructed union members to cease work December 30 and refuse to leave the Fisher factories.

"Continuous Trespasses."

The petition charged the strikers have committed "continuous trespasses" since December 30, and that by threat and intimidation they have prevented employes not on strike from entering the plants.

General Motors on January 2 obtained from Circuit Judge William D. Black a sweeping injunction ordering the strikers to evacuate the plants, and prohibiting interference "in any way" with operations of the factories. After it was learned Judge Black was a stockholder in the corporation, the proceedings were transferred to Judge Gadola.

The strikers refused to heed the order of Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott that they vacate the premises under this injunction in the absence of bench warrants for them. Such warrants never were served.

Secretary Perkins at Washington dispatched a Labor Department investigator to Anderson, Ind., to look into charges by Ed Hall, union vice president, that General Motors had invited violence there, that the U. A. W. A. headquarters was raided and wrecked, and that the corporation required employes returning to work in the Delco-Remy plant to sign agreements to stay out of the union.

Miss Perkins said corporation officials denied the charges, and Mayor Harry R. Baldwin of Anderson, welcoming the investigation, prepared a telegraphic denial that a union leader was beaten into unconsciousness while five policemen held him during an antiunion demonstration there Monday night.

On the far-flung Michigan strike front, where 5,900 Fisher Body Co. employes returned to work at Grand Rapids, Detroit and Pontiac today, an aftermath of antiunion demonstrations at Bay City and Saginaw left two men in a Flint hospital. With two other union organizers, they were hurt in the wrecking of a taxicab as they fled from the demonstrators.

Mayor Frank Marxer of Saginaw said he will ask the Governor to send guardsmen to Saginaw if a mass meeting called by the United Mine Workers, at which Homer Martin, Automobile Workers Union president, is scheduled to speak, is held next Sunday as planned.

Lieut. Gov. Leo J. Nowicki of Michigan, visited "sit-down" strikers whose occupancy of two Fisher plants in Flint since December 30 has been an obstacle to conciliation efforts. He told the strikers he worked in a Detroit automobile factory 16 years and said, "I think I know something about your headaches."

Rasbach Heads Group.

Sanford A. Rasbach, a Buick worker, headed the Flint Alliance committee of four today which carried the demand for "full protection" to Gov. Murphy at Lansing with instructions to obtain a "yes" or "no" answer. The instructions were given at a mass meeting Tuesday.

Rasbach contended there were two "sit-down" strikes at Flint, one by those occupying General Motors plants and the other by the National Guard. To this Murphy replied:

"Nothing is going to get me to desert my position of working this thing out peacefully. There is not enough power in General Motors, the Flint Alliance or the C. I. O. (Committee for Industrial Organization supporting the strikes) to force me to leave my position."

"I know of plans recently in Flint to manufacture riots to get the militia involved. I consider such plans unworthy.

"You go back and tell your people I sympathize with them. I am anxious that the State maintain an intelligent policy. Men on strike are sincere whether they represent a majority or a minority. The Flint Alliance entered the controversy unfortunately. Had it stayed out you might all be working now."

Eight Schools Certify 1,000 For Promotion

Midyear Exercises Held in Junior High Buildings.

Nearly 1,000 students in white junior high schools in Washington were awarded certificates promoting them to senior high school yesterday.

The exercises, conducted in eight junior high buildings, were presided over by school officials, including members of the Board of Education and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Dr. Ballou had charge of exercises in the afternoon in Gordon Junior High. Other programs during the afternoon were held at Anacostia, Eliot, Macfarland and Browne, and last night there were graduation ceremonies in Hine, Langley and Taft schools.

The remaining junior high schools have scheduled their exercises for today, the last day of the first semester.

Advisory Council Opens Trade Study

By the Associated Press.

The Business Advisory Council began yesterday far-reaching studies into possible methods of regulating wages, hours and unfair trade practices.

Persons close to the group of private business men said it created a special "industrial relations committee" to keep the Roosevelt Administration informed on industry's reaction to regulatory proposals.

The action was viewed by some officials as a new move toward government-business "co-operation."

W. Averill Harriman, of New York, chosen chairman of the council yesterday, issued a statement saying it recognized an "opportunity and obligation" to the Administration "to present the progressive viewpoint of business on which our advice is requested."

Addressing the group, Secretary Roper urged that it co-operate with other agencies "in working out constructive plans for solving labor disturbances in order to avoid losses to employes and in production."

Mooney Is Loser In Opening Round

San Francisco, Jan. 28 (AP).—Thomas J. Mooney lost the first round of his new battle for freedom and vindication today when a State Supreme Court referee held the former labor leader had not proven his charges of perjury and frame-up in his conviction 20 years ago of the Preparedness Day bombing.

The referee, A. E. Shaw, reported to the court various "findings of fact," which asserted the original Mooney prosecution did not use perjurers, did not introduce false testimony and did not suppress evidence favorable to Mooney.

Chief Justice William H. Waste said the court soon would set a date for legal arguments on the report. The court subsequently will render a formal decision, after which the new case probably will be taken before the United States Supreme Court in the event of a final ruling here adverse to Mooney.

Rural Resettlement Defended by Wilson

By the Associated Press.

M. L. Wilson, Undersecretary of Agriculture, said yesterday both the the Bankhead-Jones farm tenancy bill and the present Resettlement Administration were needed to solve the tenancy problem.

Testifying on the $500,000,000 loan fund bill before the House Agriculture Committee, he said it should be considered as "hitting at only one phase of the agricultural problem."

The statement was made in reply to Representative Fulmer (Democrat), South Carolina, who asked if it would "be wise" to help tenants buy farms

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

A cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. You can relieve them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery that aids nature to soothe and heal the infected membranes and to relieve the irritation and inflammation as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Medical authorities have for many years recognized the wonderful effects of Beechwood Creosote for treating coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations. A chemist worked out a special process of blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children. Thousands of doctors now use Creomulsion in their own families and practice, and druggists rank Creomulsion top because in this genuine, original product you can get a real dose of Creosote so emulsified that it goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles, especially those that start with a common cold and hang on and on. Get a bottle of Creomulsion right now from your druggist, use it all up as directed and if you fail to get satisfactory relief, he is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Women's Trade Union League To Hold Forum at Y. W. Tonight

Women in many circles of Washington will attend the Women's Trade Union League Forum at 8:15 tonight at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

Pending legislation will be discussed, especially the 44-hour week bill for women, civil liberties measures and the repeal of section 213 of the economy act.

Ralph Winsted, former investigator of the La Follette Senate Committee, will speak on "Civil Liberties;" Mrs. William F. Kittle, president of the League of Women Voters of the District, will speak on the 40-hour week bill; Lois Babcock, executive secretary of the Government Workers Council, will speak on the "Repeal of Section 213 of the Economy Act."

The D. C. Women's Trade Union League is joining in the campaign of the National organization to induce every working woman to seek membership in a trade union. Mrs. Agnes King, representing the Women's Upholstery Union and president of the Women's Trade Union League, sounded the keynote of this campaign recently when she said: "Membership in a trade union without doubt is the only way to secure for women a decent living wage and improve standards of working conditions."

A musicale was given yesterday morning by the music section of the Takoma Park Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. E. M. Harmon. The musical program was given by Miss Delphine Desio, blind cellist; Miss Dorothy Russell Todd, pianist, and Mrs. Albert W. Voelker, soloist and member of the club. A number of selections were sung by a chorus under the direction of Mrs. Edward L. Green. Mrs. Harry I. Houston was in charge of the program.

W. H. Fossan, of Lisbon, Ohio, will speak on the life of President McKinley at the McKinley Day meeting of the Ohio State Society tonight at the Shoreham Hotel. The guests will be received by Judge Ernest H. Van Fossan, Judge I. M. Foster, Gen. Harry L. Gilchrist, H. W. Kitzmiller, Mrs. Thad Brown, Charles West, Mrs. Wade Hampton Ellis, Mrs. J. Frank Kendrick, Miss Martha Beach, Mrs. William B. Putnam and Alan Drake. Members of the Ohio Congressional delegation and their wives also will be in the receiving line. Miss Helen Stover, Cincinnati soprano, will sing. Mrs. Wilson Compton, vice president of the Society, is in charge of the program.

McKinley Day meeting of Ohio Society, Shoreham Hotel, 8 p. m.

The fiction group of the District of Columbia Branch of the League of American Pen Women met last night at the studio in the Grafton Hotel. Miss Helen Orr Watson presided. Stories by Elizabeth Hartman and Ivy Lindsay were read and criticized.

The Writers League met at the Thomson School last night. Those receiving rewards for the feature article contest are: First prize, Miss Julia M. Escher for "Dream of Artists Realized in Capuchin Monastery;" second prize, Miss Margaret Bailey for "Merry Customs of Merry England;" third prize, Mrs. Elizabeth Aldrich for "We Got Well." Miss Gladys Caraway Smith and Mrs. L. W. Tilton received honorable mention.

An interesting address was given last night by John F. Mudd, of La Plata, Md., on the life of Dr. Samuel A. Mudd and the historical accuracy of "The Prisoner of Shark Island" at the meeting of the Bladensburg (Md.) Historical Society at the Lord Calvert Inn, College Park, Md.

Mrs. Joseph F. Calfee, of St. Louis, national president of the Daughters of American Colonists, was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given by the District of Columbia Chapter at the Mayflower Hotel. Mr. Allen C. Clark, president of the Columbia Historical Society, was the speaker. Mrs. Lynn B. Swormstedt was toastmistress. Mrs. Charles Carrol Haig, State regent of the District of Columbia D. A. R., sang. Mrs. John Franklin, regent of the District of Columbia Chapter, received, assisted by Mrs. Harry Colfax Grove, Mrs. David D. Caldwell and Miss Lillam Norton.

Nearly 50 persons were present Wednesday at the reception given by the executive board of the Bethesda Community Garden Club, the first meeting of the year. A feature was the introduction of each member, with the naming of her State. There were many from Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, Massachusetts and Ohio and from nearly every State at least one. There were three from Canada and one each from London and Brussels.

Another high light was a resume of the history of the organization from its beginning in 1923. Mrs. George E. Pariseau humorously sketched the earliest years of the club and the president, Mrs. Benjamin T. Elmore, gave a condensed report of the past 11 years.

The following committee chairmen for 1937 were announced: Hospitality, Mrs. Louis A. Gravelle; membership, Mrs. Eugene Ferry Smith; program, Mrs. Arthur J. Hilland, and spraying, Mrs. L. E. Luce.

The next meeting of the club will be February 24.

Minor Snags Halt Maritime Truce

San Francisco, Jan. 28 (AP).—Disagreement over duties of a few sailors and longshoremen deadlocked maritime strike negotiations again today just when opposing forces appeared on the verge of a general settlement.

The Longshoremen's Union proposed a return to work and submission of the sailor-longshoremen jurisdictional matter to a joint labor relations committee.

Employers asked a definite provision that sailors working cargo on coastwise ships not be governed by the terms of an agreement between the shipowners and the longshoremen.

Strikers to Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

East Coast maritime strikers agreed yesterday to test their claims for control of the Eastern and Gulf Sailors Union and the Marine Cook and Stewards Union in an election supervised by the National Labor Relations Board.

Bill in Tennessee Would Oust Editors Who Print Untruths

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 28 (AP).—A bill providing for fines and expulsion from the newspaper profession of publishers and editors who permit "any untruth" about a person to appear in their editorial columns passed the Tennessee Senate today.

There was only one dissenting vote. The bill now goes to the house.

Its sponsor, Senator Fletcher R. Morgan, Chattanooga lawyer, declared newspapers "have become a vehicle to besmirch and destroy the character of any man who dares to oppose the man who sits behind the editor's desk."

Writ Forbids Sale Of Gas Well Stock

A temporary injunction restraining the Hertz & Co. from continuing the sale of stocks in the Maryland Natural Gas Utilities Co. was signed in District Court yesterday by Justice F. D. Letts.

The company is alleged to have made statements that were not borne out by the facts in offering its stock for sale. One of the main points in the petition was the one that since the company had discontinued the sale of stock prior to the bringing of the suit last December the court had no jurisdiction.

However, in a memorandum opinion Justice Letts held there was jurisdiction in his court to refuse the company the right to sell stocks in the Utilities Co. pending a final hearing. Attorneys for the Securities and Exchange Commission pointed out that while there was no attempt now being made to sell stock, there was a possibility that at some future date the public might be asked to buy.

The charge against the company was that it had not fully complied with the requirements of the commission in regard to the sale of stocks. It was alleged the company had no permit to drill in West Virginia property mentioned in a sales campaign.

Tibbett Calmly Wields Dagger in Death Scene

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—An audience of about 2,200, mostly women, watched Lawrence Tibbett, cast as the villian of the new American opera "Caponsacchi," wield the dagger with which he accidentally stabbed Joseph Sterzini, basso, on Tuesday. The accident was followed by Sterzini's death from heart disease.

Though Tibbett was deeply upset by the accident, he gave no indication of nervousness today when he reached the third act and the murder scene.

The performance was given for the Metropolitan Opera Guild. Its premiere will be Thursday.

Delighted readers have called this new magazine

"a capsule of concentrated loveliness"

"a miracle of magazine money's worth"

"a three-fifty book for thirty-five cents"

which explains, better than I can, the character of

CORONET

There must be a reason why CORONET in the brief space of three months has soared to a commanding position on the nation's newsstands, where it now outsells all other thirty-five cent magazines put together.

But, frankly, I find it hard to put my finger on the reason for this success, which is utterly unprecedented in the annals of the publishing business. Not even the fifty-cent best-seller, ESQUIRE, which broke all previous records in its climb to its present 600,000 circulation, had anything to compare with the instantaneous overwhelming acceptance that this new CORONET has won. And, as I say, it isn't the easiest thing in the world to explain.

IS IT THE SIZE? Maybe it's the convenient size of CORONET. It slips so easily into a man's pocket or a woman's handbag, lending itself to odd-moment reading even in crowded street cars, trains or buses. Still, pocket-size magazines are no novelty. Matter of fact, they're almost a drug on the market. You notice half a dozen new ones, that you haven't noticed before, every time you pass a newsstand. But with few exceptions they all strike me, new or old, as being pretty obvious imitations or adaptations of the Reader's Digest idea. And imitations are never spectacularly successful. But I'm getting away from my point, which is that there's nothing new about pocket-size magazines, so it takes more than the size to explain the success of CORONET.

IS IT THE COLOR PLATES? Perhaps it's the number and nature of CORONET'S many full-color reproductions of paintings and objects of art. Well, people do write in to say that they consider these alone worth several times the cost of a copy of CORONET. Maybe that's a good part of CORONET'S popularity. But there've been lots of art magazines, for connoisseurs and collectors, and in the magazine trade they've always been notoriously slow-sellers, with the most extremely restricted market. So that hardly explains why people would cruise around to fifteen or twenty newsstands to try to find a copy of CORONET, as many had to do because of the hopelessly inadequate supply of copies of the first couple of issues.

IS IT THE PHOTOGRAPHS? Of course there are fifty-six full page photographs in every issue of CORONET, most of them by world-renowned salon prize-winners, and many of them are breathtakingly, unforgettably beautiful. (For instance, there's one on page 131 of the February issue that I'm getting framed for my apartment.) It's true, photography is a greater hobby today than ever before, and fine pictures are interesting to almost everybody. But there've been professional and amateur photography magazines galore, and they've been around for a long time, but I never heard of one making the kind of sensational nation-wide sell-out that has marked CORONET'S advent.

IS IT THE "FOUR-IN-ONE" IDEA? Perhaps it's just that CORONET, as our first announcements said, is really four-magazines-in-one. An art, a humor, a photographic and a general magazine. Or as one of our readers wrote in, "a miracle of magazine money's worth." If he's right (and who am I to try to prove him wrong?) then there's no sense in trying to explain CORONET'S success, because you can't explain a miracle, and this whole ad is a big mistake. Probably it's too personal to be a good ad anyway, but as long as it's turned out this way, let me put in one more note of personal reaction. Last night I read Parke Cummings' INVITATION TO SCIENCE for the fifth time, counting once in manuscript and once in proof, and it seemed five times as funny to me as it did the first time, when I found it one long howl. To find it, turn to page 3 of the new February issue of CORONET which is now (as an adwriter would say) on sale at all newsstands.

Leo Lisee Back With Campbell At the Mayfair

By Chanticleer.

Leo Lisee is returning to Washington after a year in Manhattan—to team up again with Jack Campbell at the Mayfair Cafe of All Nations. Until a year ago, Lisee and Campbell had worked together for five years. To celebrate the reunion, a bag full of novelties and skits are being prepared.

The opening date has been set for February 1—but Jimmy Byrd would have you know that Jack Campbell is there right now, of course.

Just to make things different at the Lotus this week—its the line of girls being headlined in big lights and not the specialty acts. They're Lenora's Eight Coeds. Among the "also featured" are Vernon and Vanoff, Russian dancers; Evelyn Knight, songstress; Nella Lobin and Nancy Leeds, dancers, and Bill Strickland and his orchestra. Floor shows at 1, 7:30 and 11:30.

Eddie Elkins and his orchestra will leave the Raleigh, reluctantly for everyone concerned, February 6. The entire Pall Mall Room gang is already planning a wham of a party for the band before it leaves.

The new chorus at the Cocoanut Grove is an eye-opener. Plenty of shouting, stamping of heels and clapping of hands as they go through their spirited routines. And there are red heads, brunettes blondes—and all the in-betweens.

It's a Winter Fantasy this week at La Paree. Arthur Kay is the master of ceremonies, with Al Sakol and his band for floor show background and your dancing. Tonight is college high again, with a 60-cent minimum. Plenty of fun and frolic this week—with particular emphasis on Kay's mimicry and gagging.

Old-time dancing went over with a bang at the Dude Ranch Wednesday night. In true Western style. Neckerchiefs, straw and wide-brimmed hats and overalls were the style for waitresses, orchestra and bartender. Host Milt Barrett wants you all to come out and join the fun every Wednesday night. This week a new feature, the Sunday Night Get-together begins at the Ranch. With a midnight floor show.

Numerous Ambassadors and other dignitaries will be at the Shoreham tomorrow night for the President's Ball. Barnee will supply the music. Journet and Severin will do their clever "Fashionette" on the dance floor (Journet in a costume of ivory lace jacket and black skirt. Leonidoff promises more of those rhythmic tunes. Cocktail hour at the Shoreham every afternoon except Sunday from 4:45 to 6:45.

At the Mayfair Next Week

Jack Campbell, pianist at the Mayfair Cafe of All Nations, will be joined February 1 by Leo Risee, who teamed with Campbell for five years but who has been away for a year.

Slashed Policeman Reported Improved

Policeman Augustus Bodwell, 32, of 2418 North Capitol street, was reported improved in Emergency Hospital last night from razor slashes received from a drink-crazed man, whom Bodwell slew in a fight Wednesday night.

Clarence B. Phillips, 41, 3711 Macomb street northwest, was wounded fatally after he attacked Bodwell with a razor. Bodwell was severely cut on the face and lost much blood before he arrived at the hospital.

The shooting took place shortly after Bodwell and Private Roland Kirby, both of the Eighth Precinct, answered a call for a "disorderly crowd" in front of Phillips' home.

Two bullets struck Phillips in the abdomen, a third in the chest. One shot went wild and hit the ceiling.

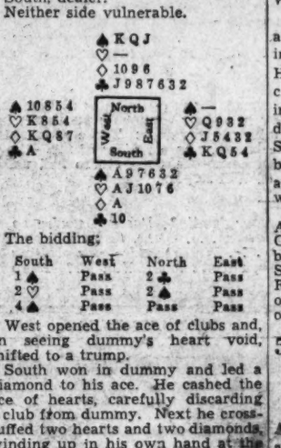
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the ace of clubs and, on seeing dummy's heart void, shifted to a trump.

South won in dummy and led a diamond to his ace. He cashed the ace of hearts, carefully discarding a club from dummy. Next he cross-ruffed two hearts and two diamonds, winding up in his own hand at the eighth trick.

At this stage West was reduced to three spades, a heart and a diamond. Had he woodenly held on to the king of hearts, the lead of that suit by declarer would have made the contract safe. But West had foreseen just such a contingency and on the third lead of hearts had dropped the king.

Now when South led a fourth round of hearts East was able to win with the queen and return a club. Since West was in a position to overruff declarer, the contract was defeated.

Olive Oil Adulteration Charged in Indictment

Boston, Jan. 28 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today indicted the Wecoline Products Co., Inc., of New York, and eight men, for violating the pure food laws in selling allegedly adulterated olive oil.

Assistant United States Attorney Charles A. Rome reported that the company had sold olive oil adulterated with tea seed oil. Millions of dollars of such oil had been sold through the East, Rome said.

Trader's Wife May Be Called By Grand Jury

Prosecutor to Summon 20 Witnesses for Monday Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

Snow Hill, Md., Jan. 28.—State's Attorney Thomas F. Johnson said today he had not decided whether he would call Mrs. Jeanette Trader to testify before the grand jury concerning the death of her husband, Clarence J. Trader, from a pistol wound.

The prosecutor said about 20 witnesses would be summoned to appear before the grand jury which will convene here Monday. Judge James M. Crockett called a special session of the jury after a conference with the State's attorney.

Mrs. Trader has insisted throughout the investigation of her husband's death on January 14 that he shot himself. He died of a bullet wound at her home. They had been out together, but Mrs. Trader told Johnson she had asked him to leave before she heard the pistol report. The Traders were separated.

State's Attorney Johnson also had not determined whether he would ask her 18-year-old son, Richard Trader, to go before the grand jury.

Mrs. Trader, who was reported ill at her home in Stockton, has told Johnson she would remain in Worcester County in case she was needed in the investigation.

New Hebrew Home To Be Dedicated

Dedication ceremonies for the newly constructed Hebrew Travelers Sheltering Society home will be held on Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

A project that has enlisted the aid of virtually all Jewish groups in the District of Columbia, the Hebrew Travelers Sheltering Society will offer both food and lodging to transients. Following the dedication program at the Eighth Street Temple, the ceremonies will be moved to 407 Massachusetts avenue northwest, where the home will be formally opened.

Addresses will be made by Dr. Abram Simon and Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation; by Rabbi George Silverstone, Rabbi M. H. Levinson, Rabbi Zemach Green and rabbis of other Washington synagogues, all of which aided in the drive.

5 Townsend Spenders Chosen for New Test

Hot Springs, S. Dak., Jan. 28 (AP). A new test of "Townsend spending," assertedly more comprehensive than the current experiment at Chelan, Wash., was started here today.

The Townsend spending committee nominated five men from whom the "spender" will be selected tonight to dispose of $200 in a month—but in scrip, not actual dollars as was the case with C. C. Fleming at Chelan.

ICC Denies Rail Plea.

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission denied yesterday the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co.'s petition to intervene in reorganization proceedings of the Western Pacific Railroad Co. The commission said the petitioners "are not interested parties" within the meaning of the law.

Extension Recommended.

A Senate banking subcommittee recommended yesterday extension until June 30, 1939 of the Government's guarantee of Federal Housing Administration debentures. That is the same date set for expiration of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's lending powers.

Fleming's Last $1 In Townsend Test Goes to Flood Aid

Chelan, Wash., Jan. 28 (AP).—Touched by the tragedy of the Ohio River flood, 63-year-old Curtis C. Fleming said tonight his last marked dollar bill in the Townsend Plan "test" would go to the local Red Cross chapter's flood relief fund.

Previously, Fleming—who had faced a winter on relief himself until he received 200 Townsend experiment dollars—had said, "me and maw will go to a show with it."

He has less than half a dollar of the $200 with which he started his dizzy spending spree 11 days ago. Most of the money went for clothing, a winter's food supply, rent and household goods.

Jury Disagrees On Riot Counts; Action Delayed

Bonds of 22 Defendants in Celanese Affair Are Renewed

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 28.—Pending indictments against alleged participants in the November riots at the Celanese plant went over to the April term of circuit court today after a jury failed to agree on rioting and unlawful assembly against 22 defendants.

Fuller Barnard, jr., senior counsel for the defense, requested the continuance of the cases. State's Attorney William A. Husted offered no objections. The bonds of the defendants were renewed.

The jury, which had retired late yesterday with the cases, reported shortly after noon that it was not able to reach an agreement.

Before the continuance of the cases was granted, the trial of 23 defendants on charges of inciting a riot, riot, and rout was started. As only 6 remained from the original jury panel, 25 talesmen had been summoned from the street.

Among the 23 defendants was William F. Kelly, textile union official and organizer for the Committee on Industrial Organization.

Another case continued until the April term of court was the indictment against Eston Heavener, Homer B. Hout and William Humberston on charges of assault with intent to kill. They were accused of attacking a truck driver hauling yarn from the plant.

Salesmen Gather In Dinner Session

The Edgar Morris Sales Co., of this city, Wednesday night entertained 250 Westinghouse refrigerator retailers and salesmen in this territory at a dinner meeting at the Willard Hotel. The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. displayed the 1937 line of refrigerators.

Speakers were P. Y. Danley, manager of refrigerator and air conditioning sales; E. M. Binns, district merchandise manager; S. W. Sorenson, district household refrigeration manager; J. H. Lide, district sales promotion manager; K. K. Gordon, refrigeration district supervisor, all of Westinghouse. Edgar Morris, president, and George F. Kindley, vice president of the Morris company, and C. M. Sharpe, executive vice president of the Potomac Electric Power Co., also spoke.

It was announced that Mrs. S. S. Faulkner, of 3127 Rittenhouse street northwest, has been selected by the Westinghouse company as kitchen proving hostess for one of the 89 official test kitchens being established over the world.

Kin to Visit Edward.

London (Friday), Jan. 29 (U.P.).—Princess Mary and the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent will visit their brother, Edward, Duke of Windsor, at Enzesfeld Castle, Austria, soon, Buckingham Palace sources said today.

Bill Restricts Town Control Over Picketing

Sen. Kimble, Labor Friend, Introduces Measure in Md. Body.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 28.—Senator Robert B. Kimble (Republican), of Allegany, organizer for John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization, introduced a measure today which would throw strict regulations around city or town control over picketing, patrolling, public meetings and parades.

Kimble long has been a sponsor of legislation favored by labor. He was active in Cumberland during the recent strike at the Celanese plant there.

His measure, termed the "civil liberties" bill, seeks to accomplish these points:

Provide that no city or town may prohibit, regulate, restrict or require a permit or a license for the distribution, circulation or sale of any matter not advertising a product or offering anything for sale; or picketing or patrolling; or speaking in public places with or without sound amplifying equipment; or the holding of any meeting in any building or on any vacant lot.

Provide that no city or town may prohibit, regulate or restrict a parade, but may require a license for a parade. If such a parade would conflict with the public convenience, the city would be required to fix, at that time, a date and a place for holding of the parade. Picketing and patrolling would not be counted as a parade and would not require a permit.

Provide that no owner of any hall shall refuse to rent it because of the race, creed, color or political or labor affiliation of persons desiring to rent it.

Provide that the city or town could not discriminate against persons seeking use of public buildings on this grounds.

The penalties for violation would be $100 to $500 to be paid to the aggrieved party and a fine of $100 to $500 or 30 to 90 days imprisonment or both.

D. A. R. Issues Call For Flood Relief

Leaders in the conservation projects of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington, have issued an emergency call for flood relief funds. Miss Linda Nance, treasurer, announced yesterday the receipt of checks from many chapters which are to be turned over to the Red Cross.

As the work gets under way, it is expected that the District chapters will keep in close touch with the State chairman of conservation, Mrs. Addams S. McAllister, in order to meet the demands for money and clothing as the need for relief grows.

Clothing in any quantity will be collected by Mrs. McAllister and the members of the State conservation committee for distribution by the Red Cross.

Twyman O. Abbott, 74, U. S. Attorney, Is Dead

Palo Alto, Calif., Jan. 28 (AP).—Twyman O. Abbott, 74, special attorney for the Department of Justice and a prominent Democrat, died here today.

He formerly was a corporation lawyer in New York and also practiced before the Supreme Court at Washington.

On the Air Today

The arrival of Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor for the President's Ball has caused a gentle fanning of the competitive flame in local broadcast circles. First word of the broadcast activity in this connection came from one studio which announced simply that it would meet the train Friday morning and give the Washington movie loving public an informal chat with their idols.

Next came word from another studio that an equally informal interview had been arranged for Saturday night. Little by little the broadcast plans have developed and the score now stands as follows: WRC and WJSV will have "mike" lines at the Union Station at 8:30 this morning to greet the visitors.

Tomorrow evening, at 6:45, all four stations will foregather with Miss Harlow and Mr. Taylor, at which time each and all will have opportunity to ask questions. Probably nothing short of the President's Ball could be responsible for this generous ignoring of "exclusive" broadcasting and the use of the entire Washington air facilities for one program.

The much publicized Mr. Hittenmark, of WRC, is the only announcer whose name has been wafted to this desk as participating in the greeting to the movie guests. However, the other stations probably will have arms and legs there alright.

Bill Coyle, N. B. C. sports announcer, has applied himself to a big job. He has written a half-hour dramatization of the history of basketball, to celebrate the game's forty-fifth anniversary. It will be produced tonight at WRC, at 7:30, under the auspices of the President's Ball.

Other features today:

Jessica Dragonette—Makes her final appearance in the Friday evening period so familiar to listeners, WRC, at 8. With Ross Graham and the Revelers.

Errol Flyn—And Anita Louise in radio version of the "The Green Light," in "Hollywood Hotel," WJSV, at 9. With Fred MacMurray.

"Vox Pop"—Is burlesqued by the new Broderick-Moore feudist-comedian team, WMAL, at 9:30.

Music Guild Awards—Including Dezzo D'Antalffy's Quintet for Piano and Strings, with NBC Quartet and Jane Courtland, pianist, WMAL, at 10.

Varsity Show—This week from University of Chicago, WRC, at 10:30. With John Held, jr., and campus talent.

Joseph Schildkraut—Interviewed by Elza Schallert, WMAL, at 10:45.

Premiere—"Good Earth" ceremonies from Hollywood, with Paul Muni, Luise Rainer, Walter Connolly and others, WOL, at 11:30.

Here and there: Hal Kemp and his orchestra, heard these Friday nights at WJSV at 8:30, has been adjudged the most popular band by 1,135 dancing academies of the National Institute of Social Dancing . . . The regularly scheduled Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra concert at WJSV today has been cancelled, needless to say . . . Edgar Bergen, Vallee's ventriloquist find, is in Detroit this week doing night club performances. It is reported that producers are combin the terrain for ventriloquists following Bergen's notable success in radio . . . Boake Carter's contract has been renewed for one year, effective February 22—the fifth extension for the Columbia commentator.

* * * *

Charlie Godwin, WJSV announcer, once was in Chicago looking about for a good place to light and went to a hotel with a fellow announcer. Eddie Duchin was playing there and in due course Godwin had an opportunity to tell Duchin how much he liked his orchestra. "Some time I'll announce your band—and on the network, too," Charlie told the maestro, laughingly. "I hope it won't be too long," answered Duchin graciously. Tonight and tomorrow night Godwin will be at Lexington, Va., to do two programs originating to the Columbia network. The occasion is Eddie Duchin and his orchestra, playing two campus engagements there.

A Double Bill Is Flawlessly Sung and Acted

"H. M. S. PINAFORE." The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, from London, presents the comic opera in two acts, with libretto by Sir William S. Gilbert, music by Sir Arthur S. Sullivan; preceded by "COX AND BOX," comic opera in one act, with libretto by Maddison Morton and F. C. Burnand, music by Sir Arthur Sullivan. Scenery designed by William Nicholson; costumes by George Sheringham. Orchestra directed by Isidore Godfrey. At the National Theater, Reviewed Thursday evening by W. A. Whitney.

THE CASTS.

Little Buttercup.....Evelyn Gardiner
First Lord's Sisters, His Cousins, His Aunts, Sailors, Marines, etc.

As the fortnight of Gilbert and Sullivan operas, sung by the D'Oyly Carte Company draws to a close, the second Thursday evening will, perchance, stand in especially bold relief by the presentation of Sir Arthur Seymour Sullivan's first two ventures into the realm of comic opera composition; the first, "Cox and Box," with libretto by Maddison Morton and F. C. Burnand, and the second, "H. M. S. Pinafore," with libretto by Sir William Schwenck Gilbert.

Rarely sung, "Cox and Box," on this particularly notable bill, deserves premiere mention, for it was this standard comedy of 50 years ago, which, when translated to the musical stage, became the precursor of perhaps the greatest alliance this particular branch of the theater ever has known.

Briefly, it is the story of Cox, who works by day, and Box, who works by night, with both unknowingly renting the same room from Sergt. Bouncer. After their romances with the same woman (unseen) are ironed out, they discover themselves to be brothers, by the name of Knox. The story is a bit silly, but the manner in which Richard Dunn and John Dean delightfully overact their parts—nigh onto burlesque—plus the music of Sir Arthur, raises it to fascinating and hilarious farce.

Music Adds to Comedy.

Here, indeed, may be found revealed those talents of the composer which were subsequently to lead him and Sir William to theatrical heights. As a "first" the music of "Cox and Box" is typical of what the world has since come to expect from Sir Arthur. Brilliant and lilting, of diverse tempos, the melodies add tremendously to what, without them, would still be an extremely diverting one-act comedy.

But in "H. M. S. Pinafore," which followed, is the fruition of that talent so generously suggested in the curtain-raiser. The first of the combined works of these geniuses, the play still unfolds as engrossing a story as ever, with music, however familiar, ringing with harmonious melody as of something just brought out.

The story of the lass who loved a sailor need not be recounted. Yet in the brilliance of its current retelling, there is the vigorous enthusiasm of novelty, the ebullience of production that belies more than four decades of constant stagings.

Cast Is Triumphant.

Derek Oldham and Sylvia Cecil have the romantic leads, with Leslie Rands as Capt. Corcoran and Darrell Fancourt as Dick Deadeye. Evelyn Gardiner was Little Buttercup and Marjorie Eyre was Hebe. Martyn Green, as the Right Honorable Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., was just a bit more outstanding than the other members of the cast, obtaining, in association with Mr. Rands and Miss Cecil, six encores on the "Why and Wherefore" number mainly on account of his terpsichorean embellishments.

All the principals, however, were beyond reproach in the manner in which the several parts were read and sung, and the ensembles superb in some of Sullivan's greatest harmonies.

Brings His 'Hamlet' Here Monday

A new portrait study of John Gielgud, the distinguished young British actor, whose production of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," under the direction of Guthrie McClintic, recently broke all long-run records in New York. Mr. Gielgud, supported by Judith Anderson, Lillian Gish and Arthur Byron, will open a week's engagement in the National Theater on Monday night. The National Capital is one of only three cities outside New York to be visited on this brief tour.

Tickets Going Like Hot Cakes For Late Shows

Earle and Capitol Staging Saturday Midnight Bills; Seats Still Available.

Tickets are going fast for the special midnight performances to be presented Saturday night at the Earle and Capitol Theaters in honor of President Roosevelt's Birthday and for the benefit of the Warm Springs Foundation, but those who wish to attend can still obtain seats at the theater box offices at $1 each.

One performance only will be presented at each theater, and whether they go to the Capitol or the Earle, Washingtonians will see the same big shows.

Both performances will begin at the same time, 11:45 p. m., and Jean Harlow, Robert Taylor, Joe E. Brown, Marsha Hunt, Mitzi Green and other celebrities will make personal appearances at each theater.

Seven Complete Acts.

In addition to the Hollywood stars seven complete acts are included in the combined bill from the two picture-presentation houses.

Harry Reser and his radio orchestra, Paul Gerrits, and the Keene Twins with Vic and Lamar will be the Earle's contribution to the joint programs, while from the Capitol will come Eleanor Holm Jarrett and Art Jarrett, Harry Burns and Company, Ross Wyse, jr., with Jane Marion, and the Honey Troupe.

One of the greatest arrays of talent ever assembled in Washington, this group of outstanding entertainers is certain to result in sell-outs at both the Earle and Capitol.

Tickets will not be sold beyond the capacity of the theaters, so it is suggested that all who desire to attend purchase tickets in advance.

Britain Supports U.S. Gold Bond Ban

London, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—The House of Lords judicial committee ruled today holders of 1917 United States bonds, containing a gold clause, are not entitled to paymenton a gold basis.

Payment can be made legally, the committee said, on a dollar for dollar basis in United States currency.

The ruling was based on the fact that the United States nullified all payments in gold coin and that the portion of the bond stipulaitng such payment was automatically void.

The ruling was made in a crown appeal from a judgment of the court of appeals, which reversed an original high court verdict against an international trustee for protection of bondholders of the Aktiengesellschaft.

Hudson Motor Sales Largest Since 1929

New York, Jan. 28.—Factory sales of Hudson and Terraplane cars in the United States during 1936 totaled 108,230 cars, the greatest for any year since 1920, and a gain of 26 per cent over sales of 86,128 cars in 1935, it was stated today by W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales. He said that Canadian and export shipments during the year had totaled 15,036 cars. This figure, if added to the 108,230 cars sold in the United States, makes a total of 123,266 cars.

". . . Oh, no, you're not going out yet . . . Wait, dear—your rubbers . . . But it's pouring . . . Okay, wise guy, I'm sitting in front of the door until you put 'em on . . . Mister, you don't know it—but this is a sit-down strike."

12 P. M.—"Cyril Gardner, the director, just came back from England," a movie official informs at "21." "The legend was that a fortune teller had told him that two of his family would die soon and that the boat would sink when he comes back to America. Those two died. Gardner came back on the Normandie and doesn't remember anything about the trip. He was listed officially as a stowaway." . . . "Frank Hunter, the tennis star, and Marjorie Franklin, his bride, had their wedding breakfast here," Jack Kreindler relates. "We took them to Grand Central later and rushed them through the station—Hunter on a stretcher and his bride in a wheelchair." . . .

2 A. M.—Judge Lester Patterson's mother, who is on the Parole Board, enters the tavern and reports: "Les had the flu and is better. But he had one lesson. He spent three days confined to his comfortable room with candy, cigarettes, service and all conveniences. Yet he yelled that he wanted to get out—that he couldn't stand it. And he's been sending many a prisoner to be confined to a room for 40 years without conveniences." Yvette Rugel sings "Madame Butterfly" as part of the comic opera in the smoke-filled room at the Gay Nineties. "D'ya know," Bill Hardey sighs, "she sang at La Scala, at the Opera Comique in Paris and gave a command performance for Mussolini and the new King George?"

3 A. M.—"Fame, fame," Clyde Pangborn laments at the Stork. "Here Howard Hughes makes this record flight, but the only thing that keeps his name before the public is the hint that a movie star is considering marrying him." . . . "Lissen," a chorine boasts at the Cafe Venezia bar, "I've got some of the richest men in this town throwing rings at me." . . . "Oh, yeah?" her companion retorts. "They all seem to be landing under your eyes."

4 A. M.—"Look at this miniature book," Dorothy Mackaill, who just returned from Europe, exhibits at El Morocco. "It's a book of only two words." . . . "What is it," Leo Reisman asks, "a Who's Who of Italy?" . . . Leo Carillo turns to his companion at the Caliente and says: "So what if I didn't get you into the movies. I took you to one, didn't I?" . . . "This famous young-man-about-town," a detective reports at Ruby Foo's, "had a party at his house this week while his mother was gone. Ten notorious men and women were there and the ladies asked for dough. So he said: 'I'm broke. Go into my mother's room and take jewelry.' They did, and in the elevator a ring was dropped. The operator recognized it, locked 'em all up and the famous young man got beaten up."

5 A. M.—"Howard Dietz, who's publicizing the movie 'Romeo & Juliet,' returned from his honeymoon with his bride, the former Lady Tanis Montague," Ray Heatherton reports. "So Dietz's office squawked, saying he should've waited until 'Romeo & Juliet' plays the Capitol—before he married a Montague, so that they could have a swell publicity tieup." . . .

6 A. M.—"When Thalberg died," Herman Wouk contributes at Lindy's, "the stars of one major film company had their comments published in the papers the morning after. Here's how it was done: These comments had been mimeographed a long time before. As a matter of fact—they were, word for word, exactly the same comments the studio had used in expressing regret over the death of Will Rogers!"

7 A. M.—"No Asiatic strain in your family? Because you're so pale, dear . . . Well, I still say Florida . . . Okay, toss that coin. Heads it's tell me . . . It's tails? . . . Well, what're you waiting Florida, tails it's Hollywood . . . No, I won't look. You for? Keep on tossing!"

Fascists Defeated In University City

Madrid, Jan. 28 (AP).—A sudden attack in which Madrid's defenders swept their insurgent besiegers from strategic heights in suburban West Park has rendered almost untenable the Fascist positions in University City, the defense junta asserted tonight.

Gen. Jose Miaja, head of the junta, declared the victory in a Wednesday daybreak maneuver was proof the capital's militia was capable of offensive action which bit by bit would dislodge the insurgents from their fortifications outside the city.

Studio Extras Earn a Meager Yearly Income

Average Wages Are Below Cost of Living Needs; Simone Buys Book.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Jan. 28.—While uppercase stars moan about the thousands they must pay Uncle Sam for income tax, figures released by Central Casting reveal the average lowly extra made $161.36 in 1936.

Extra wages during the year totaled $2,420,453.55, distributed among some 15,000 men, women and children registered in casting bureau books.

The average is purely mathematical—some of the 15,000 didn't work a lick all year, while others earned comfortable livings—but the whole gives some idea of the tarnished condition of film "glamour" at the base of the acting pyramid.

Average Production Day.

On the average production day 358 extras were employed on all lots, at an average of $9.02. Daily wages for adults ranged from $3.20 to $35, the bulk of backgrounders receiving $5, $7.50 and $10. Only two turned in $35 days.

Those who depend entirely on extra earnings are probably a small minority, most eking out incomes with part-time work in lunchrooms, filling stations and such.

Whatever it is keeps the boys and girls interested in such meager returns remains a Hollywood mystery. It certainly can't be hope of becoming a Claudette Colbert or Carole Lombard at $150,000 a picture, or a $5,000-a-week Clark Gable.

Makes Extra Money!

Simone Simon, that French lass with the Gentrude Stein name, is speculating in literature, having purchased the late Mary Webb's novel, "Down to Earth," for resale to movie moguls. She owns French and English versions and will peddle either or both. Mogul-buying English rights must agree to star her in the picture.

Lew Landers, directing "Wings of Mercy," saved the day for the southern California real estate boosters in a nasty spot. On location in Glendale for California summer scenes, Landers was horrified to spot frosty breaths of players drifting before the camera. Landers mustered a flock of fire pots and ranged them in a semicircle around the scene and set wind machines to blow the steam away.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

An Extraordinary Galaxy of Stars in Washington To Participate in the Birthday Ball Celebrations

Entertainment Units to Play Circuit of Major Hotels, All Meeting Mrs. Roosevelt During the Evening; Committees Appointed to Guide Stars About Town on Saturday Night; Robert Taylor and Jean Harlow Arrive This Morning; Marsha Hunt the First to Check In; Other Theater Notes.

THE most elaborate and comprehensive plans ever formulated for the President's Birthday Ball celebrations have been perfected by the showmen of Washington after a series of nightly conferences that have consumed practically a fortnight of concentrated effort.

BELL.

Never before has so imposing a list of stage, screen and radio artists been assembled to provide entertainment units for every leading hotel in the National Capital.

These units will rotate and, at one time or another, Saturday night will meet and be photographed with Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, First Lady of the Land. This schedule of appearances has been worked out with the accuracy of a railroad time table.

The hours at which Mrs. Roosevelt will meet the various artists who are lending their talents to this charitable enterprise, with the eventual purpose of endowing the Warm Springs Foundation and supplying funds for the general fight against the ravages of infantile paralysis, may not be divulged under a gentlemen's agreement arrived at to relieve the Police Department of too much arduous duty, the artists from too vicious assaults by the autograph hunters and the entire managerial personnel from too much wear and tear on the physical and nervous systems.

For the hosting and guidance of the visiting stars, specific committees have been appointed from among the Washington theatrical colony.

Robert Taylor will be under the protective guidance of Carter Barron and Ray Bell, of the Loew organization in Washington; Jean Harlow under the personal escortage of Rudolph Berger and Norman Pyle, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Joe E. Brown will be piloted about town by Hardie Meakin, manager of RKO-Keith's; S. Barrett McCormick, Eastern director of advertising and publicity for RKO-Radio and Howard Benedict, from the West Coast studios of the same company. Sam Galanty, division manager for Columbia Pictures, and Robert Moore will serve as the guides for Abe Lyman and his band, who will be further served by four WPA workers who asked the privilege of carrying the band's instruments from hotel to hotel.

Mitzi Green, one of the most charming of the graduates from the ranks of the juvenile prodigies, will be escorted by Joe Kaliski, Washington manager for Gaumont British, and Eddie Hiber, serving Universal in the same capacity.

Sir Guy Standing and Marsha Hunt—Miss Hunt, incidentally, having been the first of the visiting stars to arrive in the Capital Wednesday night, in company with her mother and C. N. Odell, former Washington newspaperman now in the publicity department of Paramount—will be shown the way around by Guy Wonders, of the Warner offices, and Leonard Meakin, son of the manager of Keith's. Bob Seltzer, Washington exchange manager for Warner Brothers and First National, will be guide to Maria Gambarelli and Frederick Jagel, of the Metropolitan Opera, and Sam Wheeler, local manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, will serve in like capacity with Irving Caesar, Sid Gary and their unit of entertainers.

Benny Fields, who recently had scored so tremendously on the air, on the screen and in floor shows, with his wife, Blossom Seeley, former star of the Lew Field musical shows and one of the stage's most gifted singing comediennes, will be guided about by Charles Kranz, local manager for United Artists, and Kemp Mohler will have Senor Don Alfonso Zelaya, vaudeville headliner and concert pianist, in tow.

In addition to those named, Joe E. Brown is bringing his son, Joe, jr., down from Mercersburg to be with him on this occasion, and a protege of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, of the Metropolitan Police, and Mrs. Brown will take part in the bills to be presented in the Hamilton and Washington hotels. This is a young woman by the name of Cathreen Carrico, of brilliant soprano voice, who studied under Mme. Frances Alda, of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, and graduated from the Peabody Institute in Baltimore. Miss Carrico herself is a sufferer from infantile paralysis and feels an especial interest in the purposes of the Birthday Ball celebrations.

These various entertainment units, it should be understood, will play the entire circuit of celebrations, each at some time during the evening, meeting Mrs. Roosevelt and all, in every likelihood, assembling after the last of the Earle and Capitol midnight performances for a few moments of relaxation with the press—although I am not at the moment in a position to guarantee this.

Washington never will have seen a more illustrious evening of stellar diversion than is promised for tomorrow night. In terms of cold cash the evening's entertainment will be worth a million dollars.

That's a lot of dollars. Ask anyone.

* * * *

Incidentally, the title of the joint starring vehicle for Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor, which has been known under the working name of "Man in Possession" has been changed to "Personal Property." Not that it especially matters.

* * * *

One of the week's welcome visitors to the tesselated elegance of the drayma department has been Forrest E. Crossman, for many years associated with the Earl Carroll enterprises, but now engaged by the Shuberts to do a little cymbal-whanging on behalf of Miss Tallulah Bankhead and "Reflected Glory," coming to the National following John Gielgud's "Hamlet."

Miss Bankhead, of course, comes to town with high official favor on her side, her father and uncle having long been in the forefront of Southern democracy.

It is planned to fete Miss Bankhead officially when she arrives in town. Having been a pseudo-resident of Washington prior to her conquest of London, this brilliant young star will encounter many old friends awaiting the opportunity to make her feel at home again.

* * * *

That eminent display artiste, Hinda Wausau, starring this week at Col. James Jeremiah Lake's Gayety Theater, still holds the house record for sustained attendance. She packed the place for 14 consecutive performances to the last inch of fire-law standing room. She is doing practically the same thing this week. "Variety" polls may place Hinda down in the running among the strip-teasers, but in this town she still is the top, sharing that honor with Ann Corio. And with "Honey Bee" Keeler on the same bill, the thing is practically inflammatory.

* * * *

Note to the Weather Man.

Don't tell me that yesterday was a sample of the Inauguration Day weather you are going to pull for the Birthday Ball celebrations this week-end. Come on, fellow, have a heart!

Arrive in Capital This Morning

Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor, two of the most colorful stars from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, will arrive in Washington at 8:35 o'clock to take part in the President's Birthday Ball celebrations in all of the city's principal hotels tomorrow night. They will be breakfasted with the press shortly after their arrival and then will be in for one of the busiest week-ends they ever have had. They soon will be seen in a joint starring vehicle, the name of which has just been changed to "Personal Property."

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

"After the Thin Woman"

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28.

I think there should be a warning sign near every graveyard to this effect: Beware of diets. I wish there were space to name the dozens of prominent actresses who have practically wrecked their insides in desperate struggles to keep thin and willowy. Some of our ladies have become so lean they are actually scrawny, and nature never intended that. Any old day I expect a studio to announce a picture to be titled "After the Thin Woman."

BETTE DAVIS.

Today actresses are fighting to gain weight, because so many emaciated their bodies to the danger point. Bette Davis, who dropped 20 pounds and is looking hollow-eyed, is downing whipped cream and chocolate eclaires. June Collyer, thin almost to transparency, is taking malted milks with, between, before and after meals. Norma Shearer is fighting to regain a 15-pound loss.

Carole Lombard is under constant medical surveillance because of over-diet. Joan Crawford crammed so many acidous condiments into her stomach that she frightened her insurance broker. Greta Garbo is startlingly thin, although not entirely due to dieting. I might go on citing instances for columns, but what is the use? If these examples are not sufficient to warn Hollywood (and the outside world) against the peril of too rigid diets, then a city directory of names would do no better.

The best diet, offered of late by at least two dependable conditioners, is this: Plenty of sleep, lots of sunshine, daily exercise and get up from every meal not quite full.

From morning's mail (letter from Charles B. Driscoll): "Is this Tyrone Power a son of the Power who used to be so good in Shakespearian roles some quarter of a century ago? I saw him as Julius Caesar in an all-star cast in Omaha about 1914. He was one of a dozen of the most distinguished Shakespearian actors of the time who started out in a company which broke up in a fist fight in Omaha, because one of the actors, and I think it was Power, did not like another actor's face." Your assumption is correct, and Tyrone tells me to send this message to you: If his father did not like that other actor's face, neither did that other actor—after Power, sr., had punched it!

A writer, contacting a fan magazine editor with hope of selling articles about stars, submitted a list of players whom he knows well. Appended to the list was this note: "The indented names are players of lesser importance." Among the indentees were Douglas Fairbanks, senior and junior, Clara Bow, Richard Dix, Edmund Lowe and Charles Farrell. Sic transit gloria mundi.

No matter whose home you may visit in Hollywood, the common subject of conversation is motion pictures. Even the children know all the technical terms. At Miriam Hopkins' house the other evening, her small son Michael was playing with his toys when Yvonne, Miss Hopkins' maid of the past many years, entered the room. Without warning, Michael stared at the servant and asked, "Yvonne, what is your stage name?"

Many Celebrities Miss White House Reception

By Dudley Harmon.

Missing in the throng of 2,000-odd at the Congressional reception at the White House last evening were several of the most important House and Senate luminaries. The flu and out-of-town business kept many from the biggest party in town, held in their honor annually by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Then too, Congress worked hard yesterday—it was in session until well after 7. So many of the members didn't arrive until after the first of the long receiving line had already greeted the President.

Prominent among the absentees were the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead and the newly elected majority leader, Representative Sam Rayburn. Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings had to attend a political dinner in Baltimore. Earlier in the day Senator Robert Wagner had left by train to keep a political date in New York. Washington's new social arbiter, Representative Hamilton Fish, was also out of town, and Mrs. Fish did not attend.

The line formed, as usual, in the East Room, where the guests awaited the arrival of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. They entered escorted by their aides, one of whom, Maj. Horace Smith, has just been reappointed to this position after being in New York on temporary duty for the War Department.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a plum-colored velvet gown with a small train and a diamond necklace. The cabinet members in the procession with the President and First Lady were the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, the latter in ice blue satin with red roses at the neckline; the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau; Secretary of War, Harry H. Woodring, who walked in the line with Postmaster General James A. Farley, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, who wore a gown of gold and black sequins made with a square decolletage, and the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Roper.

Others there were Senator Rush Holt, of West Virginia, with his sister, Miss Jane Holt; the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William Leahy, Mrs. O. Max Truitt, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Alben Barkley, and Representative and Mrs. Fred Biermann.

First Event for Many.

The newly elected senators and representatives, with their wives, were there in full force to attend their first Congressional party. These included Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, of Florida, the latter wearing black velvet and a corsage of four orchids; Senator Theodore Francis Green, former Governor of Rhode Island and one of the Senate's wealthiest members, and Representative and Mrs. Alfred N. Phillips, jr., of Connecticut. Mrs. Phillips wore white satin made on simple lines.

Attending the reception in a new capacity were Senator Ernest Lundeen and Senator Josh Lee, who this time last year were members of the House. They were accompanied by Mrs. Lundeen and Mrs. Lee.

Others in the senatorial group present included Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, of New York, the latter wearing a chiffon gown shading from flame to scarlet, with a halter neck trimmed in gardenias. After the party she dashed to Union Station to catch a train for New York, where she will spend several days.

Republicans, of course, were in a decided minority last evening, but among the members of the G. O. P. who attended were Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin and Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge. Mrs. Austin's gown of pale orchid crepe was beaded in silver, and there was a cluster of roses at the decolletage. Mrs. Lodge wore gray net with brilliants at the belt and hem.

Representative and Mrs. Bertrand Snell, of New York, were accompanied by their attractive young daughter, Miss Sara Louise Snell, and her house guest, Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, of Postdam, N. Y., home town of the Snells. Mrs. Snell wore royal blue satin trimmed with brilliants, and her daughter was in gold satin.

Beiter Among Throng.

Representative Alfred Beiter, of Nek York, author of the bill to house members of Congress in their own apartment house on Capitol Hill, was among the guests last evening who have figured recently in the limelight. Representative John Cochran was accompanied by Mrs. Cochran, who wore periwinkle blue lace with a silver sash. Miss Anne Lane Bailey was also in the party.

Senator Ernest W. Gibson was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Doris Gibson, who wore black net with a full skirt. Others having guests were Miss Lyla Townsend, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Townsend, who had with her Miss Isabel Murphy, of St. Louis. Senator Joseph O'Mahoney went with his nephew, Mr. Frank O'Mahoney, and Mrs. John L. Loomis, who is a guest of Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross. Mrs. Loomis wore a gown of light blue satin and diamond ear-rings.

Another family party present last evening included Senator and Mrs. Alva B. Adams, with their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Adams. Both Mrs. Adams and her daughter wore gowns of white and silver.

Representative and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, came in a party which included Representative Allen T. Treadway and Representative and Mrs. Ralph E. Church. Mrs. Brewster's black velvet gown was made with a train and she carried a colonial bonquet with silver streamers. Mrs. Church wore white chiffon trimmed with gold sequins.

Others present were Representative and Mrs. Karl Stefan—she wore white and silver lame and Representative Clyde Williams and Mrs. Williams, the latter wearing a gown of white crepe with rhinestone buckles.

Representative Mary T. Norton is confined home with the grippe, but Representative Virginia Jenckes attended the reception accompanied by her cousin, Miss Mary Johnston, of Lebanon, Ky. Mrs. Borah, wife of Senator Borah, had with her her young niece, Miss Mary Louise Bush, of Moscow, Idaho. Representative Nan Wood Honeyman was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Judith Honeyman, who wore a frock of gold lame.

Representative and Mrs. Norman Hamilton were accompanied by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Hamilton. Mrs. Robert Doughton, wife of the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, wore red crepe with clips of brilliants at the shoulders. Representative and Mrs. Richard Duncan were accompanied by their son, Mr. Richard D. Duncan. Miss Violettmay McElhinney accompanied her uncle and aunt, Representative and Mrs. Charles R. Eckert. Representative and Mrs. Clarence Hancock were present, Mrs. Hancock wearing a gown of white brocade. Mrs. Maur. Maverick, wife of the Representative from Texas, wore black chiffon and gardenias in her hair, and Mrs. H. P. Koppleman, who accompanied Representative Koppleman, was in gold and white lame. Her niece, Miss Shirley Feinberg, was also there.

Mrs. David Reed, president of the Congressional Club, wore raisin-colored chiffon with lace panels at the back. Representative and Mrs. Will Rogers were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Nell Rogers, and Senator and Mrs. Guy Gillette were also present. Mrs. Gillette wore a gown of green velvet with brilliants at the shoulders and belt.

Mr. Marran Weds Miss Emery; Bermuda Honeymoon Planned

Hessler Studio.

MRS. DONALD MARRAN.

Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament Is Scene of Marriage, With Rev. Smyth Officiating; Bride Carries Mother's Prayerbook.

Miss Alice Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. E. Emery, of Chevy Chase, Md., was married yesterday morning to Mr. Donald Marran, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William P. Marran. The ceremony took place in the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament, the Rev. Thomas Smyth officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown made with a long train and a yoke of Alencon lace. Her tulle veil fell from a cap of the same lace and she carried the prayer book used at her mother's wedding.

Her attendants were two sisters, Mrs. Vincent Engels and Miss Letitia Emery. They wore frocks of sapphire blue starched marquisette with marooned-colored velvet caps and carried large round bouquets of maroon carnations.

Mr. Francis I. Howlie was best man and the ushers were Mr. Robert J. Marran, brother of the bridegroom; Mr. John L. Flynn, Mr. Charles P. Murray, jr., Mr. Vincent Engels and Mrs. Edward A. Heffernan.

After the wedding there was a small reception at the home of the bride's parents attended by members of the two families and the wedding party. Mr. Marran and his bride left immediately afterwards for a honeymoon in Bermuda, the latter wearing a beige tweed suit and a coat of matching shade. On their return they will reside in Alexandria.

Mrs. Marran attended the Manhattanville Convent of the Sacred Heart. The bridegroom is a graduate of Fordham University.

Mrs. Bunker, Signor Rosso Wed in Paris

International Romance Culminates at the Italian Embassy.

Former Ambassador to U. S. Met Bride on Chicago Flight.

An international romance of much interest culminated in the marriage yesterday afternoon of the former Italian Ambassador to the United States, Signor Augusto Rosso, and Mrs. F. Wilkinson Bunker. The ceremony was performed late in the afternoon at the Italian Embassy in Paris with the Italian Ambassador to France, Signor Cerruti, officiating.

It was a small affair performed in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence Wilkinson, parents of the bride, the bridegroom's family and a few friends in the French capital diplomatic circle. Mrs. Bunker wore a smart costume of bronzine green crepe fashioned with a brief jacket trimmed with a Persian design traced in gold. With this she wore a small dark brown velvet hat, gable cape and shoulder spray of yellow orchids.

Later in the evening the Ambassador and his bride left for Rome where they will spend some time before continuing on to Moscow, where he is now stationed. It is interesting that although both had been in and out of Washington society for many years before they met, they were introduced in Chicago.

The then Mrs. Bunker was invited to an embassy party here four years ago by Ambassador Rosso, but was unable to attend. Then, in July, 1933, she was visiting her parents in Chicago when the envoy flew there with Gen. Italo Balbo. They met and after returning to the Capital, saw each other frequently.

Though plans are indefinite as yet, it is more than likely that the Rossos will return to this side of the Atlantic when she comes to join her children, Adele and George, at the close of their school terms.

Club Will Hear Address Today By Rep. O'Day

Buenos Aires Conference to Be Described to Congressional Group.

Representative Caroline O'Day will address members of the Congressional Club this afternoon at their meeting in the clubhouse, 2001 New Hampshire avenue, telling her impressions of the recent Buenos Aires conference.

In the absence of the new chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Ralph Church, of Illinois, the vice chairman, Mrs. Charles Colden, of California, will introduce the speaker.

The club's newly elected president, Mrs. Daniel A. Reed, of New York, will preside and will receive the members as they arrive.

Mrs. James M. Fitzpatrick, of New York, newly appointed chairman of hostesses, has asked four of the new vice presidents to pour tea. They are Mrs. S. Otis Bland, of Virginia, first vice president; Mrs. Harry Englebright, of California, second vice president; Mrs. John Rankin, of Mississippi, third vice president, and Mrs. Joe L. Smith, of Virginia, fourth vice president.

The hospitality chairman, Mrs. J. Roland Kinzer, of Pennsylvania, will be assisted by Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell, of New York; Mrs. Clarence W. Turner, of Tennessee, and Mrs. August H. Anderson, of Minnesota.

The program at 3 o'clock will be followed by tea.

Society Notables Arrange Several Important Fetes

Several dinners of interest to Washington Society have been announced in the next fortnight.

On Sunday evening, Mrs. Myron Hofer and her son, Mr. Myron Hofer, will entertain in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Myron A. Wick. The following evening, Monday, February 1, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss are giving a dinner for Mme. Weltergren, the famous Scandinavian singer, who with Laurens Melchior will sing at Mrs. Townsend's musicale that morning.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth will entertain at dinner on Saturday evening, February 6, at her home on Massachusetts avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick entertained at a dinner last evening. They will leave shortly for a sojourn in Florida.

Mrs. Lou Harris is entertaining a number of guests at luncheon and bridge today at the Mayflower.

THE MERRY WHIRL by MARYLYN

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, is not the only member of that particular household who has been spending her waking hours working for the success of the President's Birthday Ball tomorrow evening. Small (but she is rapidly growing taller), Joan has been a very active little member in her group—the sub-sub-debutantes—and they, too, are having a ball.

Just like their elders, they will have an orchestra, refreshments—it being given at the Play House on N street—and their proceeds will go to the Warm Springs Foundation, too. Miss Minnie Hawke has carefully supervised the undertaking, although the little workers really need no one to see over them.

The few warmer days we had were too much for Nancy Brereton, who immediately went out, took herself shopping and purchased a new, springy frock and hat. The dress is of mulberry and white printed crepe, fashioned with a very high neck that falls in folds, long sleeves, full above the elbow and a gracefully full skirt. With this she wears a wee nothing of a hat of the same rich reddish shade, brimless and with a quill shooting off one side.

A certain very famous "young-man-about-town" sauntered into the Sulgrave Club one rainy day last week and perhaps had it on his mind to put in his application for membership. The first person he met carefully led him into a small room, closed the door and—of all the humiliating things to do—telephoned the "Y. M. A. T.'s" home, asking that someone be sent to escort him home.

The applicant was "Osgood," whom we all know by sight and most of us by name—the handsome mallard that struts (most of his brethren waddle, but not so he—he is avenue conscious) up and down in front of the Hanson Flower Shop, on Massachusetts avenue, at Dupont Circle. Osgood is perfectly content to remain at home, even in spite of the great temptation of an open gate, but rainy days, when the sidewalks and streets are shallow streams of water, he feels the wanderlust creeping over him and off he goes.

The Bolling Powells have blown into town as a very pleasant surprise to their many friends here. They have been in Birmingham ever since their huge and brilliant wedding in the Cathedral last fall (she was Dorothy Dodge, remember?) and after a very quiet season down South (they said so) are ready for some gay old times while here. Too bad they did not arrive just a little sooner.

Dorothy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Armour Dodge, are here, too. They, with Dorothy, will buzz around and have a good time while Bolling gets his business settled.

Countess Potocka, vivacious wife of the Polish Ambassador, is distressed by the fact that the annual party of the National Newspaper Women's Club, and to which she received an invitation, comes just at a time when she will be out of the city. Once a year the Ambassador, being his country's envoy to Cuba as well as here, has to go to the island republic for at least one month's residence. The period chosen for some time now has been March, that being the best time for weather and all of the little things that make life pleasant.

Blakes on Honeymoon In Southern Waters

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis Blake, who were married Thursday, have left for a Southern cruise. They will be at home in Greensboro, N. C., after March 13.

The bride is the former Miss Blanche Newton Leavell, daughter of the Assistant Register of the Treasury and Mrs. Byrd Leavell. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. Kensey Johns Hammond, of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lorimer, of Washington, have been spending several days in Williamsburg, Va.

Pushkin Lecture Scheduled Tonight

Czechoslovakia Minister and Wife Are Guests.

The Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Hurban accompanied by members of the staff of the Czechoslovakian Legation will be guests of honor of the Slavic-American Society of Music and Fine Arts, at the Pushkin Centenary lecture at the Mayflower, this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. Leonid Strakhovsky, noted historian, will lecture in English on Russian's greatest poet, Aleksandr Pushkin.

Dr. Strakhovsky who came to America from Belgium after an invitation to join the faculty of the Georgetown University Foreign School, is noted as an author, poet, historian and lecturer. As a delegate of the American Learned Society he lectured in Europe and was decorated by the Belgian, Rumanian and Yugoslavian governments.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Separated From Husband and Children, but Supporting Them, Woman Loves Another Man and Wishes to Marry Him; Asks What to Do.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married 18 years and have three children, who are now almost grown, but not yet self supporting. They live in another city with their father and a relative, and for the past eight years I have been their main support, as my husband has been without employment all that time. Three years ago I met a young man with whom I fell madly in love and he, I am sure, feels the same toward we.

* * * *

Six months ago he asked me to divorce my husband and marry him, saying that he would support the children. I told him that while I love him dearly I feared the children might cause unhappiness, as my daughter and he have already clashed on several occasions. At that time my husband was expecting a permanent position and I thought if he obtained it he could employ a housekeeper and provide a home for the children, as I believe they would be happier with him than with a step-father. He failed to get the job, however, and I am still supporting him.

* * * *

This is my problem: my lover has asked me again to marry him, now or never. He wants to get married because he is crazy for a home (as he has been married before and is now divorced). I, too, want a home and feel sure I could make him happy. None of my people want me to marry him because they do not feel he is my equal. For that reason, I have given him up time and again only to go back to him with my love intensified.

I am willing to put up with almost any shortcoming he might have in order to have his love. I have known him a long time and certain ideal traits I know him to have would offset less desirable ones, if there are any. If I obtain a divorce and marry him, the children will not come with me on account of him and I couldn't expect them to, anyway, because they are too old. They love me dearly because I have always visited them and looked after their welfare. Also, if I re-marry, their support will be cut off, as I will be in the other man's home. What should I do?

* * * *

I cannot think of leaving my children like that and, too, I know it is only going to be a couple of years, maybe, when they will be married and I will then be alone because I do not love my husband any more. I could never endure living with him again. I feel I should sacrifice myself for my children; to me it seems selfish to think of self. Please tell me what you think. BETTY.

The Right to Happiness.

DEAR BETTY: Individual codes of ethics differ, needless to say, but it is my belief that no parent has the moral right to seize personal happiness at the expense of minor children. On the other hand, however, I do not feel that children who are nearly grown are entitled to quite the same thorough-going sacrificial consideration that younger children are. A parent who has realized and discharged his moral, social and economic obligation to his children during the period of their preparatory education for life and who has come, through no fault of his own, to a parting of the ways with the other parent during that time is justified, I believe, in evaluating his own human rights as co-equal with those of his children.

* * * *

It is unfortunate that your suitor, after three years' courtship, should so suddenly and peremptorily declare an ultimatum; particularly so since you believe two years' waiting, at most, would automatically dissolve many of the complications and conflicts which beset you at present. However, if you are honestly convinced that you must now weigh your whole future happiness against two more years of selfless parenthood, I believe you should think twice before making so heavy a sacrifice. Surely some middle course can be worked out.

* * * *

If your married life has been a voluntary sacrifice on behalf of your husband and children, it seems only fair that they should now make some sacrifice for you. If you are supplying them with the necessities of life, they should concede you the right to claim for yourself certain necessities of the spirit, not the least of which is congenial human companionship. If the man you love is a decent, honorable, socially acceptable person with whom you find a fair share of happiness, you can afford to disregard the fact that your daughter or other members of the family consider him unsuitable. After all, you cannot expect to live out your lifetime with them and I predict they would give such a proposal a cool reception if it were made to them, providing they are normally ambitious and self-sustaining persons.

* * * *

If the man's love for you is as generous, tender, protective and considerate as it should be; if he desires your happiness as much as his own, he should be willing to marry you, when you are free, with the understanding that you may go on working and providing for your children out of your own income, until their education is finished, or until they have found jobs or attained their legal majority. His love must be considered selfish and tyrannical if he demands or expects that you forsake your children while they need and still have a minor's claim upon your protection, and cleave only to him. He can do much to lighten your burden, if only by his mental and spiritual co-operation, if he will. If he won't do this; if he insists that it is to be him or them in your life, let him go—not so much for the children's sake as for your own sake.

Tap Dancing Lessons

No party's complete without one of Grace's roguish, rollicking tap dances. Of course the crowd adores her and the zest and lilt and rhythm of her twinkling feet.

She can tap to fox-trot, waltz and march time—even to tango, bolero and rhumba music. Her flashing steps look complicated — but they're only a clever combination of six simple basic tap steps.

Try tapping yourself, following the front tap step diagrammed here. Standing on the ball of the left foot, hold right foot back off the floor a few inches by bending right knee. Kick right foot forward by straightening right knee, striking floor with a sharp tap. Carry right foot forward, relaxing ankle.

Repeat until you're sounding sharp, clear taps with the ball of your foot. Now for the toe tap, another basic tap step!

Our 40-page booklet, "Tap Dancing and New Variations in Social Dances," explains and diagrams the six basic taps and tells how to combine them in waltz clog and buck steps. Besides being loads of fun, tap dancing is delightful, health-promoting exercise, fine for reducing the figure. Diagrams and directions for new variations in ballroom steps; ballroom etiquette.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Tap Dancing and New Variations in Social Dances," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Lingerie, Shoes Take to 'Glass' Houses

These new boxes of plastacele, a lightweight cellulose, not only help to keep lingerie and accessories neat and in order, but being transparent, reveal their contents at a glance; thus, save time in hunting for various articles. They come in various sizes to accommodate scarfs, handkerchiefs, shoes, hats, stockings, gloves, jewelry, blouses, and the like, and are of convenient shape to fit into dresser drawers and atop shelves. Besides being strong and durable, they may be easily cleaned by wiping with a damp cloth. The negligee worn by the model in photograph is fashioned of honey beige chiffon and matching lace—jewels at throat and decorating belt, are of synthetic emeralds.

Sauerkraut Wins Favor in U. S. Kitchens

Proves Ideal Winter Dish to Balance Large Use of Starches.

By Rebekah Blake.

SAUERKRAUT has become a thoroughly American dish in spite of its foreign-sounding name. There are few homes in which it is not known and used, and since it was first introduced to America by settlers from Germany and Holland, the food has steadily gained in popularity until today it knows no racial nor class lines.

In colder weather, kraut is found on the menus of all public dining rooms and private clubs as well as in the home, for it has zest and a slightly acid flavor appealing to virtually all tastes.

Sauerkraut, which may be eaten raw or cooked, fills many roles. Its acid, racy flavor stimulates the appetite, causes the gastric juices to flow freely and helps in the work of digestion. Its lactic ferments help to keep the intestinal tract in a healthy condition and the mineral and vitamin elements provide necessary health factors. It is an ideal dish to provide a balance for the large quantities of starchy food consumed during the cool and cold weather.

This age-old food was not originated in Germany as is commonly believed. It dates back to the building of the Great Wall of China. Laborers ate it to combat deficiency diseases resulting from a diet consisting almost entirely of rice.

Do not cook kraut and fatty meats too long together. The greases will penetrate the kraut and decrease the lactic ferments. Cook the fatty meats until quite done and then add the kraut, cooking together only until the latter becomes thoroughly hot.

Sauerkraut makes a highly prized stuffing for game and domestic fowl. It conteracts the "wild flavor" of game birds and also imparts a distinctively delicious taste. Parboil the kraut for about five minutes and then pack into the bird. This procedure may be used with domestic fowl also.

Here is a suggestion for a menu containing sauerkraut.

Raspberry Tapioca Mold

Sauerkraut.

Drain the sauerkraut; cook uncovered in boiling, unsalted water; drain; add butter; season with salt and pepper. Canned sauerkraut will probably prove convenient for the small family. Time of cooking, about 30 minutes.

German Sauerkraut.
(2 gallons.)

2 gallons sauerkraut
3 onions (chopped)
2 teaspoons mixed spices (in a bag)
1 green apple (peeled and chopped)
1 teaspoon salt
4 ounces bacon fat

Put the sauerkraut on the fire with water to cover. Add the onions, spices and bacon fat. Mix well, add apple and cook slowly for 2 hours. Serve 6 ounces sauerkraut on a hot vegetable dish a la carte, or 4 ounces table d'hote.

Claire Tilden Dress Pattern

PATTERN 288

Housekeepers Welcome Gay "At Home" Style.

LOOKS energetic, doesn't she—this ambitious young housekeeper with the feather duster! And what's more—she looks pretty, too, in her sparkling morning frock. Pattern 288. Stitched it up in no time, too, she'll tell you, for the pattern was so easy to follow that she's starting several more versions in a wide variety of colors and fabrics. Handy pockets furnish roomy storage space for memo, or keys, while yoke-sleeves and gathered bodice provide plenty of action-comfort. Perfect in washable, color-fast percale, calico, figured chambray, or cotton broadcloth. Detailed Sewing Guide accompanies this pattern.

Pattern 288 is cut in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send Fifteen Cents (15c) in coins or stamps (preferably coins) for this pattern. Write clearly size name, address and style number.

Keeps Larder Stocked.

Katharine Hepburn, movie actress, has one special shelf in her pantry she calls her luxury shelf. It contains prized jars of wild strawberry jam, brandied peaches and cherries, caviar, pate de foie gras, almond paste and other rare delicacies. She uses them only on rare and festive occasions and declares that they lend glamor to "very special" parties.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Jan. 28.

WELL, we've been getting some pretty fancy people married off or engaged, and I guess the whole town is feeling sort of comfortable and relaxed. There's something about the combining of people who get their names and faces in the papers that seems to interest a whole big city, and the old crones, who mop out the hallways seem to talk about the matter just as much as the languid ladies who sullenly wait for death in the Park avenue cocktail lounges.

ALICE HUGHES.

Yep—a nifty wedding makes the whole world kin, as did the crazy boom market in the summer of 1929, when my cook was snapping up as much common stock as I was. Here the other day the handsome Allan A. Ryan, jr., crept quietly down to the town hall with the lovely Eleanor Barry, and they were married by a judge, and supported by a small posse of relatives and bosom chums. And the whole town was talking about what a handsome couple they were, church or no church.

This young Mr. Ryan has formed the habit of marrying beauties. His first wife was the blonde, placid and georgeous Janet Newbold, now Mrs. Willie Rhinelander Stewart. The new spouse is just as splendid a spectacle, but is dark, shapely and vivacious—"colorful," to coin a term. And a nice busy girl is Eleanor. For several years she has been fashion editor of one of the biggest women's magazines, and declares she is going to keep her job.

* * * *

Now, with Allan and Eleanor all fixed up, we old biddies are fussing about the approaching nuptials of the heiress, Sarah Jane Sanford, and Signor Panza, who is one of Signor Mussolini's No. 1 men. Then, too, Princess Dolly Obolensky has got herself engaged to a German chap, and we shall have that to fret about. Now can New York life be dull with all these vital and fascinating things going on? Darned if I know—but it sure can. Maybe it's the flu.

* * * *

GIRLS ABOUT TOWN—One of our first lady fliers (she was known as an aviatrix in the strange old days) performed a sad and unusual service the other day. Viola Gentry was flown aloft, and over Roosevelt Field she scattered the ashes of her young husband, Ensign John Warren, who was in the Naval Reserve . . .

* * * *

Speaking of fliers, that Howard Hughes is something, with that flying engine of his. Howard is a good-looking boy, and very rich indeed, and remains one of the country's ace matrimonial catches. It seems only the other day that he was romancing with beauteous Billie Dove in Hollywood, and spending over $3,000,000 on the "Hell's Angels" movie that was to hurl a girl named Jean Harlow at an unsuspecting world. My helpmate still talks of the fragmentary white satin evening gown Jean wore in that film.

* * * *

I write of fancy weddings and other gaudy goings-on among the privileged, and then I see a little note to the effect Mrs. Joseph Scottko, 22, and her two children were evicted from a small flat because they simply couldn't keep a home going on a small relief allotment, and I creep quietly into my favorite dark corner and weep softly. I'm sure it's the flu . . .

* * * *

The New York Society of Women Artists has been staging its annual show at a local gallery, and after inspecting it I can report that the Gotham brush-wielders and paint-splashers seem to have gone color-crazy. Hardly a canvas hangs that is done in cool, restrained tones. Maybe the good ladies were driven daft by Van Gogh's sunlight in the historic exhibition of a year ago. . . .

* * * *

Walking through the lobby of the Algonquin I saw a familiar Oriental face, and my sodden memory came to life and recalled that the chap was Sessue Hayakawa, famous screen star in the early silent days! Who remembers him opposite Fanny Ward in a noted picture called "The Cheat?" Don't answer, if you feel it dates you!

* * * *

Now the very walls of the home are going quietly nuts, thanks to the ingenious lady artist of our town who signs her work "Annot." She starts with a background of cork or canvas and then makes her design with practically anything—sequins, sand, rope, bird seed and, for all I know, old bottle caps. The results are often interesting. And it's new—that's the main idea, I guess.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"THE STORK'S warning us that we'd better decide on which room will be best for a nursery and how to furnish it," said Erminie, the friend we often meet at the library where we go for most of our reading matter. "We haven't the remotest idea what qualifications a room should have for that purpose . . . I wish you'd come to our rescue and give us some ideas."

"Use a small room," was our first admonition, "because after the baby is any age he'll never stay there except for sleeping and dressing. And when he's tiny, he doesn't need much space anyway. But have a nursery, by all means, if that's possible, because it will give baby a really tranquil place to take naps away from the household hustle. Then it will simplify housekeeping to have a separate place for all the hundred and one separate things a baby needs, both now and later, when he'll have a whole raft of toys to consider.

"As for decorating a room like this, that's such fun. If you don't want to spend much money, use old furniutre and paint it pleasantly. A chest of drawers is an important need—this can be an old dresser with the mirror taken off. Then some open shelves are a big help for toys, talcum and bath things. If you do have a small room, a set of shelves go nicely on top of the chest—paint the whole business to match.

"Then you'll want a crib and a cot—the cot is partly for use in handling the baby and partly to have if he's sick and you want to sleep in the room with him. Add a comfortable chair or a rocker if you're not too modern. Have either a big rug or linoleum for the floor, or else leave it bare—we're always afraid of scatter rugs in a nursery because of slipping.

"Have a sunny room if possible and, of course, you'll want it near your own room so you'll be able to hear the baby at night and watch to see that he's warm. And apropos of that, don't be without zipper covers so that the baby can't get uncovered."

Jackets and Vests Hold Popularity

Paris (U.P.).—Leather and suede jackets and vests are just as popular as they ever were for sports and country wear. The dyeing process has become so perfected in recent years that almost any delicate shade can be obtained, although the natural buff and tan shades remain the most popular choice.

The new hunting and sports jackets are carefully cut to fit closely to the body and they are perfectly tailored.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Combat Foul Breath.

No one is really kind who fails to tell a member of the family that his breath is foul—that is, if the statement is warranted. There is pobably no personal characteristic quite so offensive. Every one has an instinctive desire to rush "hence from hither" or, at any rate, out of range of the person who exhales polluted air.

Sometimes it is a symptom of illness. Individuals with kidney or stomach disease may exhibit unpleasant odors on the breath because the blood has absorbed and retained toxic products which are being excreted via the lungs. There are so many sources of foul odors that the problem is not a simple one. We can, however, consider some of the more common causes.

First of all we must admit that the tongue is a frequent offender. Look at its surface and scrape away gently some of the fur. It will present a mass of cell debris, bacteria, and food particles. Diseased pockets about the teath (pyorhea) and, of course, teeth that harbor cavities discharging pus which, in the process of mastication, may be mixed with food and swallowed.

Tonsils Often Offenders.

The tonsils are active pus factories if they are infected. Furthermore, the crypts are filled sometimes with what are called Dittrich's plugs, which are foul smelling masses of cheesy material, irregular in shape. Occasionally these are coughed up and may be detected as granular bits within the mouth. Tonsils which harbor these affairs should be removed surgically.

Since the lining of the air channels of the nose is but a continuation of that of the throat, pus from the sinuses may infect sizable portions of this tissue, ulcers may form, and the condition known as nasal catarrh become evident. Now and then the airway through the nostrils is completely shut off, resulting in mouth breathing. This permits the discharge to undergo putrefaction with the result that an evil smelling substance is excreted.

We can understand that whenever there is a lack of free drainage from these areas there is likely to be penned up or confined somewhere along the line puslike material which will decompose, the odor of which is so obnoxious as to nauseate the victim. In children particularly we must consider the role of adenoids—those masses of soft lymph tissue which so often block the back portion of the air passages to the throat.

The sinuses must be investigated, as infection in these spaces may account for many cases of bad breath. If one is subject to constant and repeated colds, sooner or later bacteria will invade these mucous lined rooms within the skull. There is no more ideal situation for the formation of abscesses and the discharge is a common source of toxin absorption.

Oral Hygiene.

I may be old-fashioned, but I am obliged to insist that the mouth, the tongue, and the air passages shall be kept clean at all times. Gargling is helpful, brushing the teeth is important, and cleansing the tongue particularly in adults, is essential. A soft rubber tongue brush or a bit of sterile cloth covering the finger may be used. One must be careful not to employ a stiff, hard tooth brush for this purpose, as the delicate epithelial cells of the tongue may be injured. Soft, nonirritating appliances, however, will be found useful. The operation should be followed by a thorough rinsing of the mouth with some mild antiseptic, such as a half teaspoonful of salt to a glass of water, or an equal quantity of bicarbonate of soda. Excellent mouth washes are available on the market.

Younger Girls Should Avoid Use of Rouge

Cosmetics Can Be Applied Sparingly at Age of 15 or 16.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

MR. SMITH refused to kiss his daughter Jane when she wore make-up. It was not that the make-up came off, but that he had theories on the subject. According to him, Jane's face was "dirty" and no one with a dirty face should kiss him. "Nature gave you a nice skin and normally pink lips, and there is no use in trying to improve on nature."

Nature also gave Mr. Smith a long and luxuriant beard and flowing locks, but Mr. Smith would be horrified at the thought of permitting them to grow. Nor does he object to having his barber put lotions on his face and hair after a shave and haircut. Furthermore, Jane often has heard her father speak of that sweet, attractive Susan Gray, Jane's best friend. To Mr. Smith, Susan seems natural and healthy because he does not happen to know that she, too, wears make-up.

Lipstick, paint and powder are used so commonly today that to go without them is to be conspicuous. For very young girls they are out of place, just like extremely low-cut evening dresses or spike heels. But when a girl at 15 or 16 begins to go to parties and have beaus, it is time to permit her to use a little make-up and teach her how to apply it.

It will be better for her skin if she does not use it all the time. For school, for example, it is out of place and it always should be thoroughly washed off at bedtime. Only the best quality of cosmetics should be used, and they always should be used sparingly.

One hundred and twenty-five years ago all women painted just as they do now. Twenty-five years hence make-up may be frowned upon again. It is neither wrong nor right to wear it, but a question of taste and fashion.

Dr. S. C. Simms, Field Museum Director, Dies

Famous Scientist Was Born in Georgetown; Worked on Paper Here.

Stephen Chapman Simms, 72, director of the Field Museum of Natural History at Chicago since 1928, and associated with it since its founding, died there yesterday.

A native of Georgetown, Dr. Simms was the son of Joseph Libbey and Rose Margaret Simms. He spent his boyhood here, and received a private school education. He entered newspaper work here in 1884, but in 1890, after he had achieved considerable success, his interest in the natural sciences persisted, and he left journalism

The following year he became associated with the organization preparing for the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893.

Named after its founder, the late Marshall Field, the Field Museum grew from the Columbian Exposition and then was known as the Field Columbian Museum.

Dr. Simms began as assistant curator of industrial arts and advanced through several important posts before his election as director in 1928. He went on many expeditions for the museum, particularly to the Philippine Islands, and among the American Indians in the West.

Dr. Simms was a member of the Superior Jury of International Awards at the Panama Pacific Exposition in 1915 and vice president and secretary of the International Jury of Awards at the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial in 1926.

He held decorations from the Czechoslovakian and Chinese governments.

M. B. Hodgson, Jr., M.I.T. Student, Dies

Mildred B. Hodgson, jr., 21, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Gleason, 2505 Rhode Island avenue northeast, and a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died at Westbury, Mass., Monday after a brief illness.

Services were held at Joseph Gawler's Sons' funeral home yesterday followed by interment in Glenwood Cemetery.

Born in Washington, Mr. Hodgson was educated at secondary schools in Highland Park, Ill., and Rochester, N. Y. He received the Technology Club of Rochester scholarship to Massachusetts Institute of Technology when he graduated from the Brighton High School at Rochester in 1935.

At the time of his death he was president of the sophomore honorary society, a member of the class crew, a member of a student publication's staff, a class officer, a high ranking scholar and a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

An article Mr. Hodgson wrote on the "Coolidge X-Ray Tube Patent" appears in the current issue of Technology Engineering News.

In addition to his grandparents he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Millard B. Hodgson, sr., and a younger brother, Frederick. His father is a former Bureau of Standards scientist, now a New York engineer.

Members of Mr. Hodgson's fraternity read a paper at the rites here and in Boston, which described him as "the most accomplished man in his class."

William Cosgrave Burial in Buffalo

Funeral services and burial rites for William J. Cosgrave, 62, night manager of the Mayflower Hotel, who died Wednesday in Sibley Hospital after an illness of six weeks, will be held today in Buffalo, N. Y.

Cosgrave was widely known here. He was assistant manager of the Hamilton Hotel when it opened and at one time was manager of the Lee House. For the last 20 years he had lived in Washington with the exception of several years when he was manager of the Towers Hotel, in Brooklyn. When the Mayflower first opened he was an auditor there.

Surviving Mr. Cosgrave, who resided here at the Cairo Hotel, is a sister, Mrs. Martin Busher, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Lila A. Stewart, Party Director, Dies

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Just as she was completing plans for the President's birthday ball here, the latest of scores of carnivals, parties and balls in direction of which she gained national renown, Miss Lila Agnew Stewart died today of pneumonia at her home.

It was estimated she trained more than 40,000 persons for participation in the affairs she directed during the last decade in large cities throughout the country.

Students Pass Up Pie To Aid Flood Victims

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Jan. 28.—Red Cross officials here were amazed by the avalanche of nickles that have been pouring in a steady stream into its emergency flood fund. Today they discovered where many of these were coming from.

One public school principal explained that the sale of pie and other desserts at the lunch period at the school cafeteria had suddenly slumped Monday and that instead the children are dropping one-third of their lunch money in Red Cross boxes placed in each room.

James T. Gibbs, Leading Mason, Dies Here at 71

Capital Attorney Had Held High Honors in Order; Rites Tomorrow.

James T. Gibbs, 71, a Past Potentate of Almas Temple and a former grand master of District Masons, died yesterday at his home, 2918 Glover driveway.

Widely-known as an attorney, Mr. Gibbs' interest in Masonry led him to high honors in that field. He was Potentate here in 1913 and 1914, and grand master of Masons in 1927. A member of the Scottish Rite, he held high offices in this order. He represented Almas Temple in the Imperial Council for nine terms, and was a member of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm of Washington.

Surviving Mr. Gibbs who was a native of Virginia, are his wife, Mrs. Gretchen Kober Gibbs; a daughter, Mrs. Florence Gibbs Johnson and two grandsons, Walter and Richard Johnson.

Funeral services will be held with full Masonic rites at the Hines undertaking establishment tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

2 D. C. Prisoners Leisurely Walk From Gallinger

Two "criminal" patients escaped from Gallinger Municipal Hospital yesterday.

A search was began immediately to round-up the two men who were identified as Luther Oliver Sullivan, 36, and Edward A. Jackson, colored, 32. Hospital authorities said the men "walked out" sometime after midnight.

Sullivan was admitted August 20 last year suffering shotgun wounds in the face. He was wounded by Elsworth B. Farr, of 3449 Benning road northeast, when Farr allegedly surprised him in the act of looting his chicken house.

Sullivan was found lying in a field a short distance from Farr's home the morning after the shooting. His companion, Merrill D. Gall, 33, of Baltimore, Md., also was shot and now is confined in the District Jail.

Police said yesterday a fugitive warrant has been received for Sullivan stating he is an escaped convict from a Maryland State penal farm near Hagerstown.

The colored fugitive was serving three to six months on a forgery charge and was confined to the hospital for treatment of a communicable disease.

Attorney's Mother Is Dead in Peiping

Word has been received here of the death Wednesday in Peiping, China, of Mrs. Laura Ray Walker, 56, mother of Henry L. Walker, Southern Railway solicitor.

Mrs. Walker, whose death was due to pneumonia, had been in China about two months, visiting her sister, Countess Katherine d'Anjou, whose husband is high commissioner of customs at Peiping for the Chinese government.

For the past 15 years Mrs. Walker had made her home in Washington. She belonged to the Kentucky State Society here. Her son is a law professor at National, in addition to holding his position with the Southern. Mrs. Walker was the widow of H. Lee Walker, of Dover, Del.

Yardstick

We were having a sandwich in one of the eat-quickies patronized by WPA workers last week and couldn't help but overhear scraps of conversation from one of the booths. Apparently, one fellow was trying to get a contribution for some cause or other—WPA workers are continually raising funds for causes—from his companion and didn't seem to be doing too well.

"Oh what's two-bits to a WPA worker," cajoled the fellow.

Retorted his companion snappily, "Fifty cents."

That rider to the emergency relief bill forbidding the use of any of the funds to pay the salaries of persons loaned to Senate or House investigating committtes, was tacked on by the House Appropriation Committee. It was not in the bill when last revived by WPA officials.

Transfer Machinery

The Department of Labor is completing the installation of a new personal-record system designed to stimulate promotions and transfers within the department.

There are two aspects to the new system which is being developed by Dr. William Stead, of the Employment Service. First, Dr. Stead had a group of Employment Service workers make a complete study of the training and experience requirements of all jobs in the Labor Department, grouping similar positions.

Step No. 2, was the circulating of a questionnaire among employes asking them for considerably more detailed information than is usually supplied on application forms. This data is being entered on punch cards. The cards cover from 40 to 50 items and special care has been taken to include a breakdown of all of the employes' experiences and training. A hole is punched in the card for every item of experience and training.

Let us say a vacancy develops in some bureau. The cards can be run through the machines and in a few minutes every person who could possibly qualify is picked out. To do this under the present system would mean a detailed examination of thousands of records, which obviously is never done. If no employe is found with the desired experience, the personnel officers can then turn to the persons holding jobs similar to the one to be filled and possibly arrange a transfer on the strength of that.

If that 30-year optional retirement bill ever becomes law there'll be at least one Government employe who will be able to retire in the prime of life. He is the Navy Department's appointment clerk, Charles Piozet, who is only 45 years old, but has been serving Uncle Sam since 1908.

The raging floods in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys have brought us a little note for TVA office pointing but that TVA dams have cut down the flood stage at Paducah, Ky., about 1 foot. If there was no Norris Dam an average of 33,000 additional cubic feet of water per second would be flowing from the Tennessee River into the Ohio. More than 154,000,000 gallons of water are being held back by both Norris and Wheeler Dams.

Postals

The Civil Service Commission's overtime report is scheduled to go to Congress tomorrow . . . the transfer of radio operators at the War Department Message Center from civilian to enlisted man status has been completed . . . Revelations by a National Institute of Health scientist recently that one out of every eight persons was afflicted with trichinosos brought such a storm of protests from the pork industry that the Public Health Service has issued an "explanation" that the studies did not show that pork was not wholesome but that care should be taken in preparing and selecting food . . .

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1937

Well, I'll Tell You . . . . . By Bob Burns

I don't believe any child can really throw himself into his school work unless he feels that his parents are taking an interest in his studies along with him. That's one good thing about the Parent-Teachers Association. You kinda knit a closer understandin' between the child and the teacher and the parents. It gives the teacher more of a lee-way to discuss the child's problems with the parents. Not long ago, down home, a teacher called on my Uncle Fud and he says "I know you will be very much interested in knowing that your boy, Herby, has not been to school in the last three or four days . . . he's been playing 'truant.'" My Uncle Fud says "Well, now I'm awfully glad you told me about that." And he turned in the front door and he says to my aunt, he says "This teacher says that our Herby ain't been to school in three or four days . . . have we got a Herby?"

U.S. Buildings May Expand In Southwest

Report on Area Is Made by Architectural Consultant.

Parking Provided For in Study, Commission Announces.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday focused its attention on Washington's Southwest section as the potential site of future Government buildings.

With the Pennsylvania "triangle" filled up with Federal structures and building space in the "Northwest triangle" allocated, the planners turned to the area southwest of the Capitol bounded by Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and Independence avenues.

William T. Partridge, architectural consultant, submitted a report showing how the tract might be utilized in the Federal building program. Much of the land already is owned by the Government, the Keyes-Elliott act of the late 1920's having envisaged development of that section of the city.

Parking Provided For.

Thomas S. Settle, commission secretary, withheld details of Partridge's studies. He volunteered, however, that they make provision for surface parking of autos. The new triangle buildings have been roundly criticized because they offer accommodations for only a small percentage of cars driven to and from them daily.

Opening its two-day meeting, with Chairman Frederic A. Delano presiding, the commission revived the controversy over location of the Pan American Union Annex by voting that it be erected on the site originally chosen.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes last year voiced objection to its being built in the Constitution avenue triangle between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, asserting it would block the view of the Interior Building a block to the north.

Subsequently a bill was introduced in Congress providing that the annex site be on the same lot as the parent building, but protruding into lower Eighteenth street, which would be routed around the building.

The planners' latest action restores the originally selected location, but recommends that the structure be set back deeply from Constitution avenue to harmonize with the recessed porticos of the monumental buildings to the westward—Public Health Service, Federal Reserve, National Academy of Sciences and Pharmaceutical.

Jurisdiction Satisfactory.

Considering the Jacobs Committee fiscal report, which proposed the establishment of a National Capital Planning Commission with broad powers, the Delano group adopted a resolution stating it is satisfied with its present jurisdiction, but offering to abide by Congressional judgment on the issue.

The Jacobs Committee suggested formation of a larger commission with greater District representation and to decide on the apportionment of costs of constructing and maintaining public buildings and operating the Police Department, parks and other necessary activities which have both Federal and municipal implications.

Chairman Delano and Arno B. Cammerer, executive officer, were directed to represent the commission at Congressional hearings on the subject.

The ground plan for a Capital Transit Co. bus terminal at Chevy Chase Circle, was approved.

Ten Local Boys Named For West Point Exams

Ten boys living in or near Washington are included in yesterday's announcement of candidates and alternates appointed to take entrance examinations for West Point. The examinations will be held March 2.

Clagett, Upper-Marlboro, Md.; John R. Komoroski, Annapolis, and Wilbert Cawley, Denton, Md. Thomas B. Windsor, Cambridge, Md., and Nathan J. Clark, Ellicott City, Md., were named first alternates. Second alternates are Thomas S. Smith, Annapolis, and Hubert S. Nichols, Federalsburg, Md.

Major John C. Wood To Quit Marine Corps

Maj. John C. Wood, at present attached to the Marine Barracks here, will retire from the service on April first, according to Marine Corps orders yesterday. At present under hospital treatment, he is retiring because of physical disability.

Maj. Wood entered the service in 1917, serving at Quantico and later as aide to the Commandant in Washington. He was commissioned first lieutenant in late 1917, and made captain in 1918. From 1923 to 1925 he was at the Marine Barracks here, spending the next three years in Haiti. He also has been stationed in Nicaragua, Pensacola, Fla.; Hingham, Mass.; Charleston, S. C., and Parris Island. In 1931 he was awarded the Navy Cross.

Soviet Assailed At Last Session Of Defense Unit

Women's Patriotic Parley Denounces College Campus 'Isms.'

Electing officers and adopting a battery of resolutions aimed at foreign-made American flags and recognition of the Soviet government, the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense ended its twelfth meeting yesterday.

Mrs. Gladys Mooney, of Detroit, president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, was elected chairman. Mrs. Carroll McGuire, of Washington, was re-elected treasurer.

Before closing the convention, the more than 800 women from every State heard Representative Virginia E. Jenckes, of Indiana, deplore the paucity of American flags on Government buildings and cite "a very marked similarity of our new buildings in Pennsylvania avenue and the buildings in Red Square, Moscow."

She said she discovered that flagpoles were eliminated deliberately when the new buildings were designed.

Assails Foreign Influence.

"Through the influence of foreign design these new buildings which cost our taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars do not have flagpoles on the roofs," Mrs. Jenckes charged.

Moscow's structures also are flagpoleless, she asserted, indicating the presence of an "attempt by the propagandists to remove from the gaze of the citizens the emblem which visibly reminds them of the blessings of a democratic form of government and makes it possible for a few evil-minded citizens to control the wealth and the actions of the masses."

When she protested that the flagpoles in front of Union Station were rusting and their halyards were broken, she was ridiculed and lampooned, Mrs. Jenckes said.

Resolutions Offered.

Following are some of the resolutions adopted by the assembly:

Reaffirmation of its stand favoring "universal service" in time of war, with capital and industry drafted, as well as manpower.

Maintenance of a standing Army of 165,000 men and 16,000 officers; a National Guard of 210,000 men and proportionate number of officers; an Army Reserve Corps of 120,000 officers; training of 50,000 youths annually in C. M. T. C. camps; a sound aviation program, and the construction and maintenance of "a Navy second to none."

Youth movements which seek to oust "subversive youth movements" were commended.

Any change in the status of the R. O. T. C. was opposed.

Alien Control System.

Establishment of an identification system to control aliens was urged. "Subversive" groups which are opposed to an adequate National defense will be requested to refrain from demonstrating their objectives on Armistice Day.

Modification or cancellation of war debts was opposed, with recommendations that the Federal Government refuse further loans to nations which have defaulted.

Restriction of immigration, mandatory deportation and prohibition of aliens in Government service were urged. Immigration quotas would be cut 90 per cent. The number of immigrants from countries which have no quotas would be fixed at 10 per cent of the total admitted from the respective countries in the fiscal year 1930.

Campus pacifism, Communism, Fascism and the communistic youth movement were denounced.

Counterfeit Money Rains Upon Floor As Customer Flees

The pennies which rained on the floor of Leon J. Goldman's clothing shop, in the 1300 block of Seventn street northwest, last night, were not from Heaven.

Into Goldman's store sauntered a colored man. Goldman told police, and the colored man wanted to buy a suit, so Goldman got busy and found one that fit well.

When the customer went to pay, he pulled out a $10 bill that Goldman recognized as counterfeit.

"That doesn't look right, and I won't take it," shouted Goldman.

"Don't you dare call the cops," yelled the customer, and as he reached for a gun five other counterfeit $10 bills and one $5 bill tumbled to the floor.

He fled and police were looking for the man Goldman described last night.

Chest Trustees To Act on Plea To Meet Deficit

Nine hospitals affiliated with the Community Chest will be empowered to make a united appeal for funds to meet deficits of last year and an anticipated shortage this year, if the Chest board of trustees approves a recommendation made by its executive committee, it was learned yesterday.

Clarence Phelps Dodge, Chest president, said:

"The urgent need of the hospitals for additional funds points out vividly that when the Chest asked for $1,969,000 in the recent campaign, it was honest in stating what was needed for necessary service.

"People who thought the amount excessive and that in raising 88 per cent of our goal we made an excellent showing should realize that our budget in November was based on the most careful estimate of the needs of Washington as they then existed.

Illness Needs Rise.

"Since that time an increasing amount of illness has raised the needs of the hospitals to an extent where the executive committee of the Chest feels justified in recommending that the trustees grant permission for these institutoins to appeal for more funds."

During 1935 about 7,500 persons were certified to the nine hospitals by the Central Admitting Bureau. In the first three months of 1936 more than twice that number had been certified. The result was that the $276,000 budgeted by the Chest for purchase of service by hospitals in 1936 was $103,000 short of meeting actual costs of hospital service to people eligible for Chest aid, it was pointed out.

Growth Is Cited.

With an increased population and an increased amount of illness being reported, hospital officials stated that it is fair to assume that there will be at least as many people certified for treatment this year as were served last year, and the Chest was again able to budget only the same amount, $276,000, for hospitals again this year.

With these facts before the committee, the hospitals asked for permission to make an appeal for an additional $180,000 to meet the deficits of last year and provide for a probable similar deficit this year. The committee referred the question to the Chest executive committee, which voted to recommend that the trustees grant such permission.

In the event that this permission is granted, the hospitals will set up their own machinery for conducting the appeal. The Comumnity Chest will not participate as a Chest and any gifts received by the hospitals from Chest contributors must be in addition to Chest pledges.

Senate Group Approves Bill On Auditorium

completed building shall be under supervision of the Cabinet member.

Chairman Lanham of the House committee, appearing before the Senate group, said the proposed hall should be strictly a Federal undertaking—not municipal—with the interests of the Nation as a whole kept to the fore. Municipal officials, he said, should have nothing to do with its rental or operation.

Survey Already Made.

Representative Bloom told the committee how, impressed by the city's need of an auditorium, he had preliminary studies made by a New York architect, Thomas W. Lamb, in the spring of 1933.

Whether or not it is intended as a Jefferson memorial, the hall should have a capacity not in excess of 15,000 and be operated on a semicommercial basis by a board representing the Senate, House, District and Washington civic interests, according to Bloom.

He advocated construction of a structure which would have manifold uses—conventions, opera, athletic events, balls, inaugural ceremonies, etc.

Like Bloom, the Fine Arts Commission chairman testified to the Capital's need of an auditorium without reference to its merits as a memorial to the founder of Democracy.

In his remarks which prefaced the taking of testimony, Senator Robinson described the purpose of his bill and said it is generally agreed that an auditorium is needed here.

Indiana Society of D. C. To Aid Flood Sufferers

The executive committee of the Indiana State Society of Washington yesterday decided to devote the proceeds of its next meeting, February 18, in the Wardman Park Hotel, for the relief of flood sufferers in the Hoosier State.

Representative Louis Ludlow, president of the organization, drafted a letter to Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, at Indianapolis, expressing sympathy for those made homeless by the raging Ohio, and informing him of the forthcoming contribution.

D. C. Increase In Realty Tax Hit in Session

Triple Inquiry Looms on Jacobs Fiscal Relations Report.

Senator King Confers With President on Proposed Levies.

A triple Congressional inquiry into the recommendations of the Jacobs committee on fiscal relations between the Federal and District governments loomed yesterday after a House sub-committee had scheduled hearings and Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, had conferred with President Roosevelt.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and members of his sub-committee discussed proposed local tax measures in general and scheduled hearings to start February 16. Like Chairman Collins, of the District appropriations sub-committee, they stood firmly against an increase in the real estate tax.

King May Act Today.

Although the House District Committee rejected his proposal for joint hearings on the fiscal report, Senator King expected to call his committee together, possibly today, and propose a broad inquiry into the Jacobs committee's recommendations as to District government reorganization.

Senator King has indicated a desire to delve deeper into the matter, however, than did the Jacobs committee. He plans to revive the voluminous report made by a special committee of two District officials and the director of the budget four years ago.

The Utah Senator told the President yesterday that he believed the Jacobs report contained "some valuable recommendations."

Likes Some Features.

He intimated that he approves of some of the new taxation measures proposed in the report. The Senator for years has advocated local income and inheritance levies.

The Kennedy sub-committee plans to hear J. L. Jacobs, of Chicago, director of the fiscal relations survey, and all three members of the committee, the chairman said. District officials will be heard next, and finally civic spokesmen.

The only new tax for the District suggested at the sub-committee's informal session was a sales tax. It was suggested, but not pressed, by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois.

MISS A. GRACE LIND.

Three Victims Are Taken to Hospital, Two Badly Injured.

Howard Bowman, 59, of 635 D street northwest, suffered a possible skull fracture last night when he was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Clyde Merrick, of the 2000 block of Connecticut avenue.

The accident occured at Tenth and E streets, police said. They stated Merrick was backing from a parking lot at the time of the mishap. Physicians at Emergency Hospital said Bowman's condition was serious.

Two young women were injured last night when an automobile in which they were riding with Francis Morrow, 21, collided with a truck driven by Clifford K. Long, 23, at Seventh and Rittenhouse streets northwest.

The victims, Miss Vivian Murphy, 18, of 1332 Thirteenth street northwest, and Miss Mary McIntee, 18, of 6519 Seventh street northwest, were taken to Walter Reed Hospital.

Physicians said Miss McIntee suffered a broken nose and a possible fracture of her skull, and was in serious condition. Miss Murphy was cut on both of her legs.

Police Seeking Jeweler, Jewels

Police yesterday were asked to broadcast a lookout for Herman Pressbourg, 50, a jewelry repair man who had maintained offices at Fourteenth and G streets, and vanished January 22 with $7,000 worth of gems he had in his keeping for repair.

Warrants against the missing man have been sworn to by three jewelers here, police said. They said they understood Pressbourg took with him his wife and four children.

Wife Finds Man Dead.

Frank Hanlon, 46, of 1418 W street northwest, was found dead in his home by his wife yesterday on her return from work. Police said they believed heart disease caused death.

Fifth District School Post To Miss Lind

Prominent Educator Is Chosen to Succeed Selden M. Ely.

Connected With System Since 1903; Ten Years Principal.

Miss A. Grace Lind, administrative principal of the Bancroft School, was chosen by the Board of Education yesterday to succeed Selden M. Ely as supervising principal of the fifth school division.

The appointment followed a poll of board members, after the personnel committee had acted favorably on Supt. Frank W. Ballou's recommendation.

Ely is retiring after 45 years in the school service. He spends "his last day in school" today. Miss Lind will take over his duties Monday morning, the beginning of the second semester.

Miss Lind is widely known among Washington parent and teacher groups. She has been in the system since 1903, and a principal at Bancroft for the last 10 years.

She is president of the Educational Association of the District of Columbia, an organization of Washington school teachers, and formerly was head of the Association of Elementary School Principals. She holds membership in the Columbian Women and Research Clubs of George Washington University and the Mount Pleasant Citizens Association.

Miss Lind herself attended District schools, and is a graduate of George Washington University. She has a master's degree from Columbia University.

Kappa Delta Phi.

At Columbia she was elected to membership in Kappa Delta Phi, an honorary fraternity.

Miss Lind began her teaching career in the second grade at Henry School. She has been attached to the local school system ever since, filling 11 positions as teacher and principal. She was made administrative principal of the Johnson-Bancroft School group July, 1927, and in 1934 was assigned to the administrative principalship of Bancroft School alone.

Bancroft School, located at Eighteenth and Newton streets northwest, is in the Third Division. As supervising principal of the Fifth Division Miss Lind will have offices in the Emory School, Lincoln road and Prospect street northeast.

Wolfsohn to Preside At Adas Israel Forum

Joel David Wolfsohn, executive secretary of the Power Policy Commission, will lead a forum meeting tonight in Adas Israel Synagogue, Sixth and I streets northwest, on "Inarticulate Jewry."

The discussion period will follow Friday evening services scheduled for 8 o'clock. Rabbi Solomon Metz will speak at the service on "Hammering Their Sickles Into Swords."

'Biff' Jones Quits Army to Accept Nebraska Coaching Post

Sports — The Washington Post — Sports

20 WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1937 X ****

District Man Gets 5-Year Contract

Gives Up Commission as Major in Service to Succeed Bible.

Starred With Teams at Central High and West Point.

Maj. Lawrence M. "Biff" Jones, strapping product of Central High School here, who later starred with and coached West Point football teams, yesterday was appointed head coach and athletic director at the University of Nebraska.

Accepting a five-year contract which, according to the Associated Press, will pay him $10,000 for the first year, $11,000 for the second year and $12,000 for the final three years, Jones flew to Washington yesterday to tender his resignation from the United States Army.

Jones spent only a few hours in the Capital, advising Army chiefs of his intention to quit the service, and entraining last night for Norman, Okla. He will terminate his duties as commandant of the R. O. T. C. and head football coach at the University of Oklahoma late in February and move to Nebraska.

Jones' appointment to the Nebraska post was announced by the university's board of regents which for ten days had been seeking a successor to Head Coach Dana X. Bible who had resigned to accept a ten-year coaching contract at the University of Texas at $15,000 per year.

Was All-High Tackle Here.

A fat, chubby lad when he lived here on First street northwest, Jones developed as one of Central High School's earliest football stars. During the 1912 and 1913 seasons he was unanimously selected as an all-high tackle.

Jones' resignation from the Army follows a new interpretation of the Army regulation concerning football coaches who were on detached service with Reserve Officers Training Corps units. The rule, at first, did not apply to officers who were working under unexpired coaching contracts as was Jones at the University of Oklahoma, but the new regulation made it compulsory for Jones to resign from the Army if he wished to pursue his coaching career.

Jones had been appointed to the Army Command School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., following the end of the last football season.

Coached at L. S. U.

A member of the Army football coaching staff 10 years, the colorful "Biffer" was captain and star of West Point football teams before graduation. When military duties transferred him to Louisiana State he took over the coaching job there for three seasons.

A brush with the late Huey Long, who Jones said would not be permitted to help coach the team between halves, cut short his stay there and he went back to full time military service.

Pulled Sooners Up.

He was drafted to straighten out tangled Oklahoma U. athletics and for two years boomer Sooner football into a leading Midwestern team.

The major teaches Warner's double, single wingback style of attack. His teams, always noted for their powerful running attack, of recent years have developed aerial threats. But Jones insists timing and blocking are the things to "make any attack click."

Dr. R. D. Scott, chairman of the Cornhusker Athletic Board, said Jones notified him by phone of his decision to accept the Nebraska offer.

Scott said former Coach Bible, who developed six Big Six championship teams in his 8 years here, consulted with the board in its negotiations and promised to aid Jones for two weeks of spring grid practice.

A "Genuine Gentleman."

Bible told the board before he left for Texas early this week he believed the West Pointer would "fit perfectly" at Nebraska, Scott said, as a "genuine gentleman."

A Jones-coached Army team led by famed "Red" Cagle defeated Nebraska, 13-3, at West Point during "Biff's" third year as Army mentor and Nebraskans met him in 1935 when his Oklahoma Sooners played at Lincoln.

Scott said Jones indicated he would leave the Cornhusker athletic staff intact.

Program on WRC To Depict History Of Basketball

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Fod Cotton, head basketball coach at Catholic University, will appear on a special program tonight over Station WRC at 7:30 o'clock under the auspices of the President's Ball.

The program will commemorate the forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the game of basketball, and was prepared especially for radio by William (Bill) Coyle, popular N. B. C. sports announcer. All the dialogue was written by Coyle. A cast of ten foremost actors in the District will participate in this unique show.

This half-hour dramatization will depict the history of the game, and some of the high lights down through the years since its founding in 1891 by Dr. John Naismith in Springfield, Mass.

Parmelle Signs Contract.

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP).—The signed contract of Le Roy Parmelee, big right-handed pitcher obtained with Rip Collins from St. Louis in the trade which sent Lou Warneke to the Cardinals, reached the Chicago Cub office today. Collins mailed in his signed document early this week.

Godoy to Fight Thomas.

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Promoter Mike Jacobs today announced the signing of Otis Thomas, Chicago Negro heavyweight, and Arturo Godoy, of Argentina, for a 10-round bout in the New York Hippodrome Wednesday, February 3.

Jane Cothran Is Victim of Rally; Miss Hemphill Beats Miss Bauer.

By the United Press.

Punta Gorda, Fla., Jan. 28.—A 40-foot putt that hit the cup from the edge of the green gave Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, a twentieth hole victory today and sent her into the finals of the Charlotte Harbor Championship of Champions.

Parring Patty, fighting back in a sensational rally after being 2 down at the thirteenth, defeated Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., 1 up on the twentieth.

In tomorrow's finals she meets Katherine Hemphill, Columbia, S. C., stylist who holds the championship of both Carolinas. Miss Hemphill, playing a superlative brand of golf, eliminated Jane Cothran, New York State champion, 5 and 3, in the upper bracket.

Patty Up Only Once.

Top favorite to retain the title she won last year from Maureen Orcutt Crews, of Miami, Patty had to call on all her golfing skill to defeat her long-driving South Carolina opponent. The Minneapolis golfing flame was up only once during the 20-hole match—at the fifth hole, where she went into the lead with a birdie.

Square at the turn, she lost the tenth when she three-putted to Miss Cothran's par 4. She halved the eleventh and twelfth; but lost the thirteenth to Jane's fine par 4.

Then Patty started her rally. She took the thirteenth and the seventeenth to square the match. They halved the eighteenth and nineteenth.

Miss Hemphill's Skill Tells.

Miss Cothran's drive was 230 yards down the dead center of the twentieth fairway—30 yards out ahead of Patty. Both their approaches hit the edge of the green from where Miss Berg shot her putt dead into the cup. Miss Cothran's par 4 was not good enough and Patty took the match.

The rhythmic game of Miss Hemphill was too much for Miss Bauer, who was erratic with her approach shots today. Easily the most polished stylist in the field, Miss Hemphill turned the first nine in 38—2 over par, losing only the eighth to a birdie 3. She closed out the match against the New York champion on the fifteenth.

Umpire Claims Real Finding of Feller

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 28 (AP).—John M. McMahon, Des Moines umpire, today entered the argument over who discovered Bob Feller with a terse, "I did."

McMahon's claim corroborated statements made by C. C. Slapnicka, Cleveland Indians' business manager, that McMahon tipped off the Indians about the star rookie pitcher and not umpire Pat Donahue at Springfield, Ohio.

"I tipped the Cleveland club off that the boy was a real prospect when I was umpiring around the city sandlots. No one else had anything to do about it," said McMahon.

Thomson's 67 Tops $5,000 Open Golf

29 Equal or Better Par Among Starting Field of 147 Players.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 28.—Broad-shouldered Jim Thomson, one of the longest hitters in golf, combined booming shots and a deft putting touch today to post a 67 for leadership halfway through the 36-hole qualifying tests of the San Francisco Match Play Open tournament.

The Shawnee, Pa., professional's card was 4 strokes better than par. It set the pace for a starting field of 147 and gave him a 1-shot lead over his nearest rivals. He bagged five birdies.

Par for the Ingleside course, 6,300 yards of mostly flat expanse but tough shooting nevertheless, is 36, 35—71.

29 Equal Par.

Twenty-nine those on the firing line equaled or bettered its required stroking standard.

Among the stars unable to match it were Harry Cooper, of Chicago, leading money winner of the season and one of the pretournament favorites, with 35, 35—72; Denny Shute, of Miami, Fla., National Professional Golfers Association champion, with 36, 38—74, and Leo Diegel, of Philmont, Pa., stopped at 40, 35—75.

Tied one stroke behind Leader Thomson and forced to wade through drenching rains and a brief but brisk hailstorm, were Charles Congdon, Tacoma, Wash.; Horton Smith, Chicago; Orville White, Chicago; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., and Lawson Little, former king of British and American amateurs. Congdon, Smith, White and Picard used 34 shots on each nine. Little, one of the strongly favored boys, was out in 33 and home in 35.

Bevy of 69 Shooters.

Sharing the 69 post were Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, winner of the Sacramento Open last week; Byron Nelson, Ridgewood, N. J.; Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. J.; Neil Christian, Yakima, Wash., and Bill Nary, Vallejo, Calif.

Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., first-prize winner in the recent Oakland Open; Craig Wood, New York, and John Revolta, Evanston, Ill., tied in the 70 class with three other lesser lights.

Among the dozen using 71 shots were Ralph Guldahl, Chicago; Harold McSpaden, Winchester, Mass.; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., and Sam Parks, jr., of Pittsburgh, 1935 National Open champion.

After tomorrow's second qualifying round the low 16 scorers will pair off in the first round of the 72 holes of match play.

Michigan to Rule Out Foul Claims in Fights

Detroit, Jan. 28 (AP).—Frank MacDonell, chairman of the State athletic board of control, announced today that claims of foul in Michigan boxing rings no longer will be permitted.

MacDonell said clauses have been inserted in contracts for fighters providing they must obtain abdominal protectors to prevent any serious injury from a low blow.

The new rule will apply at the ten-round fight tomorrow night between Barney Ross, welterweight champion, and Al Manfredo, of Fresno, Calif. Ross' title will not

Cards Nose Out Terror Five By 33 to 32

Free Throw by Carroll in Last Minute Staves Off Western Md. Rally.

A vastly improved Western Maryland quintet threw a fearsome fright into Catholic University's astonished courtmen last night before finally succumbing, 33-32, in a rough but fast game at Brookland.

An audience of approximately 1,000 fans saw the Terrors swing back like a boomerang in the second half and come within an ace of winning after emering on the short end of a 21-12 count at halftime. It was by the grace of "Irish" Carroll's successful free shot, made in the last two minutes of play, that the Cardinals squeezed out their third consecutive victory.

Carroll was one of the game's heroes, leading his team in scoring with 11 points, and playing what might be called a bang-up floor game. It was Carroll and the old reliable Hermie Schmarr, who, incidentally contributed five field goals to his team's account, who got the Cardinals off to a flying start in the first half and helped keep them out in front during the second.

Lead Scoring.

With Ken Adriance and Bart Uvannis leading the way, the Terrors assumed a 4-0 lead soon after the game got under way, but Schmarr and Carroll soon had the Cards out in front, 6-5, and Catholic led from that point to the intermission.

Resumption of play was the signal for a concerted scoring drive by Western Maryland, which Adriance and Edmonds engineered, and which took the host team completely by surprise. The Cards were able to do little during this time, Schmarr and Carroll contributing lone field goals to the cause, and but for Wayne Ambrose they would hav been in an embarrassing position.

Western Maryland all but closed the gap between the two as Uvannis sank a field goal making it 32-30, Catholic's favor. Carroll added what proved to be the winning point on a foul shot before Benjamin pocketed another goal with less than a minute to play. The teams battled up and down court for the last 40 seconds, both striving desperately for a score. The timekeeper's whistle ended hostilities, however, before either achieved their purpose.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase School defeated the strong Catholic University Freshman team, 30-28. Bennais, scrappy forward for the Lelanders, sank a pot shot as the whistle was blowing for the margin of victory.

By John R. Vosburgh.

Either Central or Western will be all but elbowed out of the interhigh basketball series today, while Tech attempts to slide into a tie for second place over the inexperienced forms of the Wilson team.

The Central-Western shootin' match comes directly after Tech has finished with Wilson or vice versa. Rather desperately struggling to keep in the interhigh swim following their unexpected defeats of Tuesday, the dark blue of Central and the bright red of Western promise a colorful incident.

With Capt. Billy Vermillion in readiness to start, and Charlie Clark sure to see considerable action, Central will be at greater strength than it was against Tech, when it lost, 29 to 25. Vermillion wasn't started because of a recent illness, but once in action in the second quarter gave quick indication of good health by sinking three baskets and two fouls to become high-point scorer of the game.

The raw-boned Clark, although still a bit short from the peak of condition, is in good enough shape, according to his latest performance, to trouble Western's defense no end.

Lomax in Action.

On the other hand, Capt. Gerald Burns of Western leads out a reinforced team, with Hop Lomax, veteran guard, once more back in the lineup after an enforced absence of weeks with an infected arm. The 26-19 defeat suffered at the hands of Roosevelt, Tuesday, has spurred the Georgetowners to the seriousness of their situation, according to operatives spying into the Western practice session.

A victory for Western will send it into a triple tie for first place with Tech, providing the latter wins, as expected. A defeat for Western, Central or Tech will splash the loser

St. John's Plays Gonzaga Today

Rivals Meet at C. U. at 8 P. M. for Title.

Before an expected crowd of over 1,000 spectators, St. John's High and Gonzaga High meet in the annual prep school basketball classic tonight at 8 at Catholic University gymnasium in a game to decide the championship of the Catholic School League.

St. John's, defending champions, faces an unbeaten Purple five, the only undefeated schoolboy team in or around the District and victorious over Eastern and Western. But the Johnnies likewise have also toppled Eastern's inter-high champions but have bowed to Tech by one point and Roosevelt by one point.

Stronger than they have been for many years, the two bitter rivals have pointed for their big collision as their chief objective of the year. Each team boasts some of the foremost scholastic stars in the city. St. John's has Jimmy Giebel, Johnny Swagart, Jack Regis and Joe Gallagher to mention only a few of Coach Irving Holbrook's reliables.

Talk Bloating Easy Victim To Tartar

Only Reason to Believe Pastor Has Chance Is Johnston's Say-So.

Has Had Able Coaching in How to Beat Louis; Negro Out of Shape.

By Bill McCormick.
A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Jan. 28.—There's something in the air on the eve of Joe Louis' bout against Bob Pastor, who by every rule, regulation and record should be considered just a run-of-the-mine popover for the Brown Bomber—but isn't.

That something that has elevated Pastor from the popover class to the status of a real opponent—at least until the actual firing begins—tomorrow night at the garden—is hard to define but may be any one of anumber of things, viz., to wit:

1. The ballyhoo boys may have done such a good job building up Pastor that they are beginning to believe their own stories.

2. Louis may be as woefully out of condition as some more or less reliable sources would have us believe.

3. Jimmy Johnston, who master-minded Jimmy Braddock to the heavyweight throne, may have Louis' number and may be able to prepare Pastor—his brother's fighter—to knock out the saffron-hued sensation from Detroit.

Ballyhoo Boys Bewildered.

That the ballyhoo brigade is beginning to fall for its own blah is possible, but not probable. It has happened before, with some very funny results, such as the bewilderment of the brigade at Louis' defeat by Schmeling after the Bomber had been built up as the superman, invincible, wonder fighter, etc., etc., ad nauseum.

The belief that Louis is far from his finest fighting fettle is something else again. While his handlers insist he is at his peak, there is a certain tenseness about his camp which is reminiscent of the strange nervousness of his associates on the eve of the Schmeling upset.

Louis wages a continuous fight against fatness, and there is no denying the presence of a certain amount of apparently excess avoirdupois on his streamlined torso, which may or may not be a bad thing. Also, it is generally believed that Joe actually was floored by that tenth-rate sparring partner yesterday. It is hard to believe the knockdown was arranged for the purpose of exciting interest in the forthcoming bout as the contest was already a sell-out.

Johnson Probably Reason.

The most likely reason for the growing belief that Pastor has an outside chance against Louis probably lies in Jimmy Johnston. The cockey little cockney who controls boxing at Madison Square Garden has only one ace in the hole—that ace is Pastor. Often rumored on the way out at the Garden, Johnston this time actually is headed for the exit. Only one thing can pull him back into the Garden job,

Zenka's Stretch Rush Wins at Fair Grounds

New Orleans, Jan. 28 (AP).—Zenka staged her customary strong finish today to take the mile and a sixteenth test for platers, which topped the Fair Grounds' card.

Carrying F. A. Riley's silks, the 8-year-old mare scored by two lengths to register her second straight victory of the year. Second money went to Wee Emma, with Copper Tube taking third in the field of 12.

Wee Emma, carrying only 102 pounds, had the early foot of the field but gave way to Brophy at the three-quarter mark. The latter found the pace too swift, however, and dropped back as Jockey McCoy brought Zenka up on the outside to take the lead at the stretch turn. In the run for the judges, Zenka proved much the best, covering the distance in 1:47 1-5 to pay $9.20 straight.

Mrs. Hutchison Heads Manor Golf Committee

Mrs. Don Hutchison yesterday was elected chairman of the women's golf committee at Manor Country Club at the annual meeting. She succeeds Mrs. Thomas Beavers. More than 70 women golfers attended.

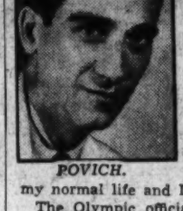
Miss Marion Brown, youthful club champion, was elected secretary, and Mrs. Herbert Lacey treasurer.

An ambitious program of golf events will be arranged.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

It's pretty tough, opined pretty Eleanor Holm, to obey orders to the letter and then find yourself kicked off the United States Olympic team. Eleanor did not say that she was disbarred or withdrawn from the entries. With her typical utter frankness, she said she was kicked off the team.



POVICH.

But that crack about obeying orders to the letter did not jell well with the official report that she was ousted from the team for violating training rules and this skeptic interrupted to inquire how come.

"How come?" I inquired.

"Well," explained Miss Holm, "you see it was this way. When the team boarded the boat at New York, Mr. Brundage advised all the American athletes that they were being asked to lead their normal lives on shipboard. I don't know what that meant to the other athletes, but a glass of champagne fits in very nicely with my normal life and I was only obeying orders."

The Olympic officials should have expressed no great horror that she was discovered imbibing of the cup that cheers, Eleanor added. "Why, they knew I would take a drink and they knew, furthermore, that I have been following my own training rules and winning titles for the past ten years.

"But I guess I was too frank about it. I like to sip champagne for the sociability of it, in company, and I guess that was my crime. If I had retired to my room and been a solitary drinker, I suppose that would have been okay. But those quarters we had on the boat were no bargain.

"The Olympic officials were traveling first-class in their own cabins on the upper decks, but they herded us down below. It had me wondering who was representing the United States, we athletes or the officials. Then I began to realize that they had to have the best of everything on account of their strenuous duties. It takes strength and vigor and peace of mind to click a stop watch."

She doesn't really know whether she's an amateur or a professional now. Nobody, she says, has ever taken the trouble to tell her about her status. Over in Berlin, she was told that she was "temporarily suspended," but no further action has been taken in her case.

"I guess, though, that I'll never swim with another American Olympic team," she said, and it was without the trace of a sigh. "Maybe I'll be too old by 1940, or tired of swimming, or something." And then, with her habit of making light of everything, she smiled:

"Unless, of course, they send me to the next Olympics as a chaperone."

She's having fun now, touring with the band of Art Jarrett, her crooning husband. She does a turn on the stage, vocalizing for the orchestra, but she is still careful not to violate the rules of the A. A. U., she explains.

"Some day I might want to swim as an amateur again, so I don't want to get in dutch. They advised me years ago that I couldn't capitalize on my swimming fame by appearing on the stage as a bathing beauty. Or even if I sang, I couldn't sing in a bathing suit.

"So I'm still obeying the rules. Sure, I'm wearing my bathing suit, but I've added a ten-gallon cowboy's hat and a big bandanna for [illegible] boy effects and they can't say that is bathing-suit attire.

"When they billed me as the Olympic sensation, I couldn't see that was a violation of the rules, either. I wasn't billed as a swimmer, and as far as 'sensation' goes, why, it was the A. A. U. that made me a 'sensation.'"

In Short—

The worst blow of all was the spectacle of Holland winning her specialty, the backstroke, in the Olympics while she watched from the press box, according to Eleanor . . . "Why, I'd a-been a pipe to win that title for America," she said . . . "That Dutch girl who won the race swam the 100 yards in 1:22 and a fraction . . . I could have loafed and beaten her . . . my record time for the event is 1:14 and any time I don't do it in less than 1:19, I'm not trying" . . . The Dutch girls are superb at the longer distances, according to Eleanor, but they are a bit too broad-beamed for the shorter races, she says . . . Struck with the resemblance between Miss Holm and June Booth, local backstroke star, photographers asked the pair to pose for pictures . . . they presented a beauty-aid tip: backstroke for beauty . . . with Miss Holm is traveling her mother, as Irish as the blarney stone . . . Husband Art Jarrett was introduced to the press representatives under slightly embarrassing circumstances . . . by Ray Bell, Capitol Theater publicity director, who unwittingly proclaimed the entrance of "Mr. Holm."

Hoppe Wins First Billiard Title Block

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP).—Rallying with 190 points in his last five turns at the table, Willie Hoppe, of New York, won today's block of his 2,500-point match with Jake Shaefer, of Chicago, for the world's 18.2 balkline billiards title and reduced Schaeffer's lead to 225 points. The score at the end of the fifth block was Schaefer, 1,250; Hoppe, 1,025.

Hoppe, who had trailed by 247 points at the start of play this afternoon, won the block 250 to 213. He had a high run of 62, and this brilliant cluster evidently gave him confidence after a shaky start for the next four frames he made runs of 22, 55, 33 and 18.

Schaefer started the block with a rush, getting 82 points on his second turn at the table. In the eighth inning he picked up 53 points and then followed with a cluster of 41. But his game went to pieces at that point and he needed six innings to make his last 38 points.

Paul Waner Is Winner In Left-Handed Golf

Waner was 2 up at the turn with a medal score of 37, 2 over par. He went 5 up at the thirteenth, but dropped the next two holes. Trumbo 3-putted the sixteenth for a 5, however, and lost the match.

'Unlucky' Gertrude Ederle Limps Back Into Spotlight With $50,000 Suit for Injuries

By the United Press.

New York, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—The spotlight of forgotten fame played today on a plump, blue-eyed woman in a raccoon coat as she limped to the witness stand with the aid of a heavy cane and said:

"I am Gertrude Ederle."

Necks craned in a hushed courtroom as the famous "Queen of the Waves" who, has been the "unluckiest woman in the world" since her historic battle across the English Channel 11 years ago, told simply why she wanted $50,000 because of a fall in an apartment house.

The once laughing girl whose star dropped as suddenly as it rose following her sensational swim—something no woman had done before—wept when she described the tortures she endured after the fall which made her a cripple and ruined her career.

"She is suing," Attorney Alfred Meldon told the jury, "for the pain she will endure, perhaps for the rest of her life—for being kept out of the running . . . for a permanent condition which must exist after an operation, if she has it . . . For loss of earnings as a result of being unable to work."

Questions were frequently repeated because Trudy's hearing was impaired by the swim. She told how she tripped on the staircase of the Justine apartment in Hempstead, Long Island, on December 12, 1933. She walked home, and two days later was unable to get out of bed, she said. For a week she slept on the floor and for two months wore a sacroiliac strap. She has never recovered from the spinal injury.

In two years after her swim, she made $376,500, she testified, and then fame slipped away and she worked at odd jobs as swimming instructor, earning only $60 a week just before her injury.

Asked to describe the tapping of her spine for fluid, she broke down and cried, and Justice Thomas J. Cuff declared a 5-minute recess. Then she answered the question:

"The nurses held my knees up to my chest, and fluid was taken from my spine."

"Did they use a needle?" Meldon asked.

"Yes, they did."

She was asked about her records, and she said she held 29 with numerous awards. One was a $5,000 loving cup given her after the channel swim. It was in her home on a living-room mantelpiece. Trudy's face saddened as she spoke of it.

88 Swim Stars To Seek A.A.U. Meet Titles

Peter Fick Among Titlists Entered in Shoreham Event Tomorrow.

A star-studded field of 88 mermen and mermaids, headed by three members of Uncle Sam's Olympic team, will splash for honors in the annual District A. A. U. winter meet tomorrow night in the Venetian pool of the Shoreham Hotel.

With Peter Fick, of Staunton Military Academy; Bernie Lapp, of Penn High School, and Margaret Hoffman, of Washington, lending prestige to the water carnival by reason of their Olympic achievements, District aquatic lovers are looking forward to perhaps the most interesting meet in history.

Fick, who cracked Johnny Weissmuller's 100-meter world record, will unravel his wizardry in the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard swim. Arrayed against him will be stars from Philadelphia, Virginia, Baltimore and Washington.

Another Champion.

Miss Lapp, whose entry was not received by the District A. A. U. swimming chairman, Dick Newby, until last night, will race in the 100-yard free style. Two other teammates from the Chambersburg (Pa.) school—Phebe Hirshon and Diane Smith—also will compete. Miss Lapp was a member of the Olympic relay team which won at Berlin.

By way of increasing rivalry in the girls' 100-yard breast stroke, Miss Hoffman, undefeated in the District, filed her entry.

The spotlight also will be thrown on Pick Grunnert, of the York (Pa.) Aquatic Club, National Y. M. C. A. champion, and Daniel Hogan, of Penn Athletic Club, who will battle 13 others in the junior national 150-yard back stroke event—feature race on the program.

Biggest Entry List.

The meet will begin at 8 o'clock, and a small admission fee of 25 cents will be charged.

There will be 22 contestants in the 100-yard dash, 20 in the national junior 150-yard back stroke race, 9 in the fancy diving, 10 in the boys' 50-yard free stroke, 12 in the girls' 100-yard free style, 10 in the 100-yard back stroke for girls, 4 in the 100-yard breast stroke for girls, and 4 in the 50-yard free style for girls.

Entries follow:

100-yard dash—Peter Fick, Staunton; Robert Jordan, Massanutten; Otto Schaffhauser, Broadwood; Charles Ives, Broadwood; Howard McAdoo, Broadwood; Albert Jacobsen, Massanutten; William Prew, Massanutten; R. out of the championship race, to all intents and purposes, for it is hardly possible that the champion will lose more than two games, and each of these teams has already lost that quota.

Wilson's chances of upsetting Tech increased considerably Tuesday, when the Green turned back Montgomery Blair High impressively. The victory did much to give the team faith in itself after half a dozen straight losses and the boys promise to be an improved lot today.

Tech, flushed with its upset of Central goes back into action with its six-man first team all set for duty, with Len Mills at center, the quick-thinking Dick See and Tommy Dobyns, at guard; Jimmy Vermillion, Johnny Williamson or Walton Merchant at forward.

Eleanor Holm Will Present Trophy to Winner Of Backstroke Exhibition Sponsored by Post

Eleanor Holm, beautiful stormy petrel of swimming, yesterday timidly tendered an olive branch to the American Athletic Union which declared her ineligible to compete in amateur sports following alleged breaking of training rules while en route to the Berlin Olympics last summer.

The olive branch was in the form of a trophy, to be known as the Eleanor Holm Award, to be competed for by the outstanding women backstroke speedsters of this section here next Monday afternoon at the Shoreham Hotel when Miss Holm will give an exhibition under the sponsorship of The Washington Post.

The District A. A. U. unhesitatingly sanctioned a special race for the award, thereby taking a step toward healing the breach between the backstroke star and the governing board of amateur sport, which she hopes some day will restore her amateur status.

To Write Series for Post.

Miss Holm, who is appearing in person with her husband, Art Jarrett, at Loew's Capitol Theater this week, is writing a series of intimate details of big-time swimming in general and Olympic competition in particular for The Washington Post. Her exhibition will serve as a climax to the series.

Following a display of the form that won her 11 national records, an Olympic championship and some world records, the girls will compete for the Holm trophy, with Miss Holm herself making the award to the winner.

When the Olympic star agreed to give the exhibition for The Post, she suggested that it might be beneficial to swimming if a special backstroke race could be arranged for a trophy to be donated by her. Joseph Aronoff, chairman of the registration committee, of the District A. A. U., readily agreed to sanction the competition and at a meeting of the District A. A. U. it was agreed that the race should be scheduled for 100 yards, to give all possible competitors a chance at the trophy.

Invite Philadelphia Ace.

It is expected that June Booth, Lydia Cort and Betty Strohecker, of the Shoreham; Ann Arnson, of the Ambassador, and Margaret Russell, of Baltimore, will be certain to compete.

Dorothy Forbes, of the Broadwood Swimming Club, of Philadelphia, also will be invited to compete. Miss Forbes was mentioned as a substitute for Miss Holm when Eleanor was ruled off the 1936 Olympic team and is generally considered one of the best backstroke performers in the country.

Louis to Battle Pastor Tonight

and that is a win by Pastor, who is controlled by the Johnston family.

Once before, under just such circumstances, Johnston master-minded himself right out of the difficulty by having Jimmy Braddock beat the ears off Max Baer to keep the heavyweight championship in his control. A shrewd judge of fights and fighters, Johnston publicly called the turn on that upset, followed up by insisting that Schmeling would spank Louis and now he is confidently predicting that Pastor will slap down the Brown Bomber.

Johnston has been angling to get Pastor in with Louis for many months, and no doubt during those months has been carefully coaching Bob in just what moves to make against the dangerous Negro knockerouter. Thus will Pastor enter the ring as well coached on how to take advantage of Louis' numerous weaknesses as was Schmeling.

If Pastor should sting Louis, or set him down with a right hand, it is probable that in the impetuosity of youth he will rush in for the kill—and Joe is not to be beaten that way. The most dangerous two-fisted puncher the ring has known, he must be carefully, scientifically dismantled, stripped of his weapons one by one, before the coup de grace is attempted.

For the sake of the record, let it be said that the writer—who hasn't picked a winner since the Spanish-American War—believes Louis will win, but only after one of the toughest fights he ever has had and only because Pastor will rush in for the kill before he has extracted the poison from the fangs that are Louis' two fists.

Touchdown Club Starts Drive To Give City Suitable Stadium

The Touchdown Club of Washington took a vigorous step forward yesterday in its effort to bring Washington a suitable stadium for sports events, sending letters to representative citizens and civic organizations inviting their co-operation in the club's campaign.

The Board of Trade, Hotel Men's Association, Restaurant Men's Association and Federation of Civic Clubs were among those receiving the letters which invited representatives of the organizations to a civic meeting at 8 p. m., Wednesday, at the Mayflower.

Explaining that the club feels a number of legislators in both houses of Congress are in favor of a stadium for the Capital, the Touchdown letter went on to urge the organizations to contribute whatever suggestions they might have.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the idea of a stadium, its practicalities, plans for financial support for it and whether the time is propitious for such a venture. President John F. McGovern, former quarterback of the University of Maryland, was in charge of drawing up the letter.

The prospect of tying up the Jefferson Memorial plan for an auditorium with the suggestion of a stadium also is under consideration by the Touchdown Club, which urges that all the civic and business groups "get together" to work toward the one common objective—a stadium for Washington.

A number of members of Congress, the letter said, are enthusiastically in support of the stadium proposals.

Maryland Bows To Wolfpack, 35 to 33

N. C. State Takes Overtime Tilt; Thomas, Wheeler, Guckeyson Star.

By the Associated Press.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 28.—North Carolina State College nosed out Maryland here tonight, 35 to 33, in an overtime basketball game to tie for second place in the Southern Conference championship race.

The Red Terrors watched Albert Waters and Fred Thomas put Maryland in a 4-point lead in the first two minutes of the game before Capt. Neil Dalrymple started State's scoring.

State then forged ahead after five minutes of play and kept in the lead through the first half.

Terps Tie Score.

The Maryland lads, with Capt. Thomas setting the pace, knotted the score at 27 to 27 after 12 minutes, but State pulled ahead as Dalrymple made two free shots. Thomas knotted the count, then Waverly Wheeler put Maryland ahead, 31 to 29. Two minutes before the game ended Dalrymple sank a long one for the regulation contest to end, 31 to 31.

Three minutes after the extra period started, Capt. Thomas tried a long shot which missed, but he took the ball on the rebound and rang the basket. Just 45 seconds remained to go when James Bennie hit the center of the State hoop from near midcourt to knot the count again, and 20 seconds later Connie MacBerry, State center, sewed up the game.

Thomas Paces Terps.

Dalrymple starred for State and was high scorer with 12 points. Hill played a powerful defensive game for State.

Capt. Thomas, Wheeler and Guckeyson did Maryland's best work.

The game was exceptionally free of fouls, only two being called on State and six on Maryland.

Berry and Thomas each scored 10 points, Thomas' work in breaking under the basket to recover rebounds and sink the ball being especially good.

The Maryland attack, consisting of a great deal of passing near the center of the court, with a quick break through to the basket, puzzled State most of the game. The height of Berry and Mann of State, however, was too much for the shorter Marylanders.

G. U. Prep Leaves For Gotham Games

Accompanied by a large section of the student body, Georgetown Prep's basketball team entrains for New York at 1 p. m. today for two week-end games in the metropolis.

The Little Hoyas will meet Brooklyn Prep tonight and Loyola of New York, Saturday. Players making the trip are Capt. Bob O'Shaughnessy, Tom Nurre, Ken Cummings, Harold Sheehan, Bill Byrd, Jim Murray, John Fahrendorff, Bill Heinbaugh, Walter Kelly, Manager William Flanagan, Coach Ed Hargaden and Robert E. Riley of the faculty.

The Prepsters will be seeking their fifth victory of the season, having defeated St. Paul's, of Washington; St. Paul's, of Baltimore; St. Alban's and Rockville High.

Rose Duckpin Team Victor In League

Rose Liquor's bid for the District League championship gained momentum last night when they took the Georgetowwn five over the hurdles for three games on the latter's home drives.

Joe Harrison and Maxie Rosenberg featured for the Liquormen, the former chipping the maples for a 163 game and 435 set and the latter counting eight pins on a last box mark for a 146 score and the match in the final game.

Amidst a spree of heavy pin-shooting the standings in the Daylight League were juggled considerably last night at Convention Hall with the league-leading Daily News aggregation taking a beating in six straight games, receiving shut-outs by Occidental Hotel and Washington Post, the former in a postponed set. The Post's win landed them into a tie with the News for first place and annexing pinfall honors with a season record set of 1,735 aided by a 603 game and a season record game of 163 by Gordon Scott.

Among the big games chalked up were Willie Edinger's 153, John Moore's and Elmer Bradley's 152's and Johnny Pape's and Chas. Kerley's 150.

Tommy Kines proved to be the dean of all anchormen when in the Coast & Geodetic Survey loop at Lucky Strike he slid Numbers 7, 8 and 10 for a last box spare to give Magnetics a 4-pin decision over Accounts.

Bill Kingsolver amassed games of 125, 153 and 148 for a season record set of 426 in the Department Store League at Recreation, to feature Woodward & Lothrop's odd game win over Palais Royal. Charles Fleishman of the defeated team witnessed the fall of his former record set of 400. Kanns protected it's own game advantage at the top of the standing with two wins over Hecht Co.

Eli Yale Comes From Behind to Win Gadsden Purse at Hialeah

Mrs. Whitney Horse Tops Sprinters

Idle Midget Is Second; Flood Relief Event Goes to Aftermath.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Payne Whitney's Eli Yale, which his stable considered a very promising colt early in his juvenile season, scored his first success of the winter in the featured Gadsden Purse, a six-furlong event for 3-year-olds, here this afternoon. The bay son of Bull Dog, one of the Greentree quintet of nominees for the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes of February 27, failed to take his usual early lead, but instead came from behind to win by two length, easily, in 1:11 flat.

F. L. Tyler's Idle Midget had no trouble saving the place by four lengths from P. Andolino's Gay Balko, a colt recently claimed from Johnny Bejshak. Eli Yale, which had failed in two previous Florida outings, was a $4.10 for $2 choice. He carried topweight of 117 pounds.

Charlie Stevenson, who is riding in fine form here, was intrusted with the job of piloting Eli Yale. He found Idle Midget a tough customer for a while, that gelding having his best running shoes on and outfooting the Greentree colt into the stretch.

Benjam, a son of Jean Valjean, with two very promising efforts behind him, survived a desperate drive to carry the Detroit-owned Bomar Stable silks to a head victory in the opening event on today's program.

Company Hollow Winner.

Company was a hollow winner of the second race, in which 3-year-old $1,500 platers clashed at six furlongs. The Cohort gelding, well played at $7.30 for $2, romped home by four lengths, with Balance Step daylight before Corker for the place award.

Out of Step, which had not performed in public since last July, came up to the third race in prime condition for his winter debut. Hirsch Jacobs saddled the colt and his charge led home nine other 3-year-olds, clicking by a length and a half to return $15.50. Manda's Baby was a fast closing second, a head before Marinella, the choice. Out of Step, after a long duel, ran Fairemus into the ground and drew away with ease.

Former Jockey Frank Coltiletti, who trains Sandy Boot for his wife, found the right spot for the 4-year-old gelding in the 7 furlong fifth contest. Breaking last and picking up the faster beginners with every stride, Sandy Boot won by three lengths under George Watson and paid his comparatively few backers $45.10 for a $2 straight ticket. Saturn and Miss Monoa, two other long shots, followed the winner home as named, a length and a half apart.

The sixth race, called the American Red Cross and from which the proceeds will be used for flood relief purposes, resulted in another upset when Mrs. Emil Denemark's Aftermath, A. J. E. Widener castoff, scored in a photo finish over Noel H. to pay $42.60.

The seventh race, over the grass, saw Peedeeque, coupled with Thirteen Stars and favorite at 2 to 1, scoring a photo decision over Play Chance.

Inasmuch as the turf course distances recently were discovered to be short and had to be newly measured and corrected, Peedeeque's time of 2:00 4-5 automatically became a turf course record, it being the first time the exact distance had been used.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COMPANY, $7.30, $3.40, $2.90; BALANCE STEP, $5.50, $4.00; CORKER, $4.90.

COMPANY broke fast, but was allowed to rate along back of the pace to stretch, where he moved into lead and won going away. BALANCE STEP closed with a rush in final furlong. CORKER came from far back. HAITY had plenty of speed, but stopped badly in closing strides. LANDSCAPE ran a fair race.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE, FIRST AND SECOND RACES. PAID $37.60.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:04. Winner, Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' (3), by Flag Pole—Notime. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUT OF STEP, $15.50, $7.80, $4.00; MANDA'S BABY, $11.10, $5.60; MARINELLA, $3.20.

OUT OF STEP broke fast, followed early pace to top of stretch, where he took command and won nicely in hand. MANDA'S BABY worked her way up in between horses and finished fast. MARINELLA was shuffled back around turn, but came with a rush. TOBACCO BUYER was taken very wide all the way. RUBY PETO was the victim of a very poor and timid ride, never had a chance to run. FAIREMUS stopped badly after showing early speed.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Gadsden. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:40. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. c. (3), by Bull Dog—Lady in Grey. Trained by J. M. Gaver. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELI YALE, $4.10, $3.70, $3.00; IDLE MIDGET, $4.50, $4.00; GAY BALKO, $10.50.

ELI YALE, running a game race, broke in a tangle, but went up fast in between horses, was taken around IDLE MIDGET in stretch, closed gamely and won going away. IDLE MIDGET ran into a long lead quickly, but weakened suddenly. GAY BALKO, well up all the way. CONSERVATIVE had no mishap. HIGH LANDMARK was closing fast.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:05½. Winner, Mrs. W. P. Coltiletti's b. g. (4), by Boot—Sonda. Trained by F. P. Coltiletti. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:23 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANDY BOOT, $45.10, $21.70, $11.70; SATURN, $13.70, $5.70; MISS MONOA, $7.70.

SANDY BOOT, showing smart improvement, trailed far back in early part, was steered to the outside in stretch, where he got clear passage and, closing with a good burst of speed, assumed lead at furlong pole and was drawing away. SATURN moved up with a determined bid, but weakened suddenly. MISS MONOA, well ridden, had no mishap. CHIMNEY TOP was the victim of a poor-judged ride. PELERINE had speed for six furlongs, then quit. BRIGHT HAVEN ran well for half a mile.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The American Red Cross. For 3-year-olds. Start bad. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:34½. Winner, Mrs. E. Denemark's b. g. (3), by High Time—First Play. Trained by B. S. Michell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:11 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AFTERMATH, $42.60, $11.60, $5.20; NOEL H., $6.30, $4.00; CLAMOROUS, $3.10.

AFTERMATH broke good, was hustled along all the way, was taken to the outside and, closing with a rush, got up to win in last stride. NOEL H. opened wide gap early, saved ground and held on gamely. CLAMOROUS was away badly, closed very fast and would have won with a better start. BAIN MARIE ran good race. HARP O' GOLD had speed for half a mile. ANGLO SAXON stopped out of it early.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles (turf). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:03½. Winner, H. Sokol's ch. g. (6), by Vespasian—Alma Ata. Trained by B. Evans. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:00 4-5. (Turf course record.)

†H. Sokol entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PEEDEEQUE, $6.00, $4.10, $3.10; PLAY CHANCE, $21.70, $10.50; WATCH HIM, $4.20.

PEEDEEQUE went sent to the front going around first turn, opened wide gap, tired and just lasted to win. PLAY CHANCE, badly outrun for the first six furlongs, came to the outside and finished with a rush and would have won in another stride. WATCH HIM was hustled along all the way and ran good race. THE SINGER was on the extreme outside all the way. MY PETER made his bid in last half mile, but faltered at end.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:35½. Winner, W. N. Adrians' b. g. (6), by Sir Gallahad III—Priscilla Ruler. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROUND TABLE, $4.40, $3.60, $2.50; MOTLEY, $4.80, $3.40; MATCH PLAY, $3.60.

ROUND TABLE, mean at the gate, finally broke a length or so back of the field, moved up gradually, took lead at far turn and gamely stood a long drive. MOTLEY broke slow as usual, came around field on turn, and finished fast. MATCH PLAY, away fast, showed good speed and ran a good race. GLITTERING displayed keen speed for seven furlongs, then tired. CEALLAIGH was outrun.

Selections at Hialeah Park.

Dear Al:

I was beginning to believe I had broken all the Benningites when the checks started rolling in for the Bill Bennings-Flat Tire Flood Fund. One of the first to arrive was addressed "Puddin' Head Bennings." That's all right by me. Call me anything but send in checks, money orders or cash. It all goes to aid those poor unfortunate victims of Old Man River. Make your checks and money orders payable to The American Red Cross. Tell me your racing troubles; let me know if you liked "Bred to Run" but inclose that money so badly needed by the flood sufferers. I want to hear from the bookies. It looks as if I've been on their side this week. Anything from a dime to a million. Get 'em in, folks. Jockey Ira Hanford has decided to take a vacation. The boy who rode Bold Venture to victory in the last Kentucky Derby is stale and he believes that a few days off may help him regain his stride. He is going fishing in the Everglades. Trainer Bert Mitchell has clinched the trainer's prize of $500 for the first 15 days of the meeting. Has anybody seen Clocker Mike.

BILL.

First race—This small field of juveniles may come through with a truly run race for a change. Barring mishaps. Septime should take the chief part of purse. Singing Slave and Conniption should be keen contenders.

Second race—Seventh Inning should graduate from the maiden ranks in this group if he is not slated to remain a maiden for all time. I see no reason for mistakes. Marfeu, a great second horse, may be in the customary position. Sceneshifter for the show end.

Third race—Quickly is as speedy as the name and breaks out of the No. 1 post position. Black River and Dixie Princess will be ready to fight it out if the top one falters.

Fourth race—Daytonian is a fair sort and has been improving. Seems capable of defeating this kind if properly handled. Ipso Facto and Golden Thought for the place and show.

Fifth race—Jackie D. may step away from these rivals. He gets a nice shift in the weights and will like the route. Prairie Dog is a threat despite the heavy weight. Early Settler is a possible surprise.

Sixth race—Reminding seems to have found the right spot here and any price will be a good one. Stocks is on the improve and may edge Brown Feathers out of the place award.

Seventh race—The Queen gets the call in this rather open event. Beautiful gets in with a feather assignment and is dangerous. Scotch Boy to lead the others to the wire.

Eighth race—Lightheeled, Ross and Play Vote is the way I prefer them in the day's finale.

Best bet—Quickly.

Beth. Steel 1936 Profits Six-Year Peak

Business Now on Hand Is Largest Since the World War.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Jan. 28.—Bethlehem Steel Corporation reported today the best fourth quarter profit since 1929 and the best annual earnings since 1930. Earnings in the final quarter were $5,291,492, or $1.08 a common share, compared with $2,396,026, in the like quarter of 1935.

For all last year net profit was $13,901,006, or $2.09 a common share. In 1935 net income was $4,291,923, or $4.60 a share on the preferred stock. Share earnings for the final quarter and year, 1936, are calculated after the usual charges and preferred dividends on the 7 per cent and 5 per cent preferred stocks. The figures, the company announced, are on a preliminary basis.

The 1930 annual earnings were $23,843,406, or $5.26 a common share. Earnings in the final quarter of 1929, the last exceeding those reported today for a comparable period, were $10,046,197, or $2.75 a common share.

Directors declared regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share on the new 5 per cent preferred and $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent preferred, both payable April 1 to holders of record March 5.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the company, said the amount of business on hand at the end of the year was the best since the World War. Current operations, he said, were 82 per cent of capacity and the backlog of orders was not being reduced by that operating rate.

Brokers' Loans Drop $2,000,000 for Week

By the Associated Press.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers, held by weekly reporting member banks in New York City, were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve board to have totaled $1,016,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday, a decrease of $2,000,000 for the week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $924,000,000.

Excess Reserves Rise $20,000,000

The Federal Reserve Board reported last evening that excess bank reserves climbed again during the week ended January 27. This report, contained in the board's weekly statement, served to sharpen the question of whether it would act to reduce the excess.

Excess reserves rose $20,000,000 during the week ended January 27 to $2,150,000,000—an increase of $200,000,000 since December 30.

These reserves are idle funds in addition to those required as a reserve behind deposits, and provide the foundation for credit expansion. Under the law, the board can increase funds required behind deposits by a maximum of 33 1-3 per cent, which would "freeze" about $1,500,000,000 of loanable funds.

Last August, the board raised requirements when excess reserves reached $3,000,000,000, tying up about $1,470,000,000. It said the increase was designed to prevent "unhealthy" credit expansion. Since then, excess reserves have increased by almost $500,000,000.

McGraw-Hill Earns $1.59 a Common Share

New York, Jan. 28.—McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., trade and technical periodicals and books, report that consolidated net earnings for 1936, after all charges including reserve for Federal taxes, totaled $954,660, equivalent to $1.59 a common share. This compares with $609,691, or $1.01 per share earned in 1935.

An offering of 58,200 shares of the common stock, priced at the market, has been sold, according to an announcement today by F. Eberstadt & Co., investment bankers.

Bank of France Doubles Rate To 4 Per Cent

Move Is Made to Check Borrowing Funds for Speculation.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Jan. 28.—The Bank of France, attempting to discourage borrowing for speculative purposes, boosted its discount rate from 2 to 4 per cent today.

British bankers with whom the government is negotiating a $25,-000,000 loan demanded the curb on speculative borrowing. French financial sources declared banks had been "dumping" collateral into the Bank of France for discount with a consequent heavy drain on the national currency.

The first changes in money rates since October 15 also applied to 30-day loans and loans on securities, followed disclosure by informed sources that Georges Bonnet, new French Ambassador to the United States, probably will seek permanent stabilization of the franc, dollar and pound.

The bank increased its 30-day rate from 2 to 4 per cent and the rate on advances on securities from 3½ per cent to 5 per cent.

A new alignment of franc, pound and dollar was declared in parliamentary circles to be a likely outcome of current negotiations as a stimulus to the tri-power stabilization of currencies.

Bank Clearings Rise 14.5 Per Cent

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities totaled $6,002,580,000 in the week ended January 27, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. This was a gain of 14.5 per cent over $5,243,782,000 in the same week a year ago.

Clearings at New York City totaled $3,890,245,000, a gain of 10.6 per cent over $3,517,506,000 in the same week last year. The total of $2,112,335,000 at outside centers was an improvement of 22.4 per cent. All cities reported increases, including Buffalo, 50.2 per cent; Pittsburgh, 43.8; Richmond, 44.8; Atlanta, 40.7, and Cleveland, 39.9.

Washington Clearings.

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings of $24,745,-933.04 for the week ended January 27, which compares with $16,336,-692.03 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 51.47 per cent. Compared with a total of $20,170,328.68 for the previous week, clearings increased 22.68 per cent.

Steel Shares Advance Sharply; Other Groups Are Backward

U. S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Reach Highest Prices in Six Years; Railroad Bonds Higher; Commodities Irregular.

By Frederick Gardner.
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Jan. 28.—Steels took the play away from the rest of the stock market today and vaulted up 1 to about 5 points, some to the best levels for the recovery period. Many groups were backward, however, and prices were highly mixed at the close.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem touched 93 and 81½, respectively, tops for the last six years or longer. The majority of the favorites ended considerably under their peaks of the day and losers were numerous.

Tension over floods and strikes seemed to have eased in the financial district, but there apparently were still sufficient handicaps present in the speculative and investment field to inspire sizable offerings on the advance.

Spurring the steels, which were out in front throughout the session, were hopes of sharply expanding earnings in this field when the automotive labor conflict ends and rehabilitation work gets under way in the inundated districts of the Midwest.

Bethlehem Upturn.

After the close Bethlehem directors announced the largest fourth quarter and 1936 profits since 1929 and 1930. Business on the books of the company at the year-end was ahead of any period since the World War.

Notwithstanding the showing made by steels, together with selected oils, rubbers and specialities, declines were plentiful enough to put the Associated Press average of 60 issues down .4 of a point at 71. Transfers totaled 2,343,430 shares against 1,935,836 yesterday.

Aiding the oils were estimates of better consumption. Rubbers were given a whirl on expectations of a general rise in tire and other finished product prices. Rails and utilities kept in the background, and motors were rather indifferent throughout.

Emerging on the upside were U. S. Steel at 91⅝; Bethlehem, 80⅞; Youngstown Sheet & Tube, 80; National Steel, 75¾; Republic, 32⅛; Chrysler, 120½; Barnsdall, 32¾; Houston Oil, 16½; Texas Corporation, 54⅜; Boeing, 38⅛; Goodyear, 33¼; Goodrich, 33⅝; Lee Rubber, 24, and U. S. Rubber, 34⅝.

Narrow were General Motors, N. Y. Central, American Telephone, General Electric, Consolidated Edison, American Radiator and Paramount.

Down fractions to around 2 were Westinghouse at 157¾; American Can, 110; Western Union, 80; Santa Fe, 72; Southern Pacific, 45⅝; Anaconda, 52⅝; Woolworth, 61½; Loew's, 71¼; Douglas Aircraft, 72⅛; J. I. Case, 151¾, and Continental Can, 62.

Wheat at Chicago was off ½ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn, 1⅜ to 2 lower. Cotton was unchanged to up 40 cents a bale.

The Bank of France boosted its discount rate from 2 to 4 per cent, but the franc was ahead only slightly.

Bonds Work Higher.

Subsiding waters in the Midwest coupled with a number of impressive industrial developments inspired fresh support in the bond market today. Rehabilitation of the flood areas was seen in some quarters as accelerating the heavy goods markets, while improved earnings, for some concerns, higher dividends declarations and a better outlook for respect to strike situations contributed to the better feeling.

Domestic corporations attracted most interest with rail and industrial liens making the best headway. Baltimore & Ohio 5s "F" moved up 91¼ to 91½, Wabash 5s "B" and "D" each added 1½ to 39½, Mobile & Ohio 4½s rose 2¾ to 33¾ and St. Paul 4s "A" gained 1⅞ to 62½. The 5s of 1972 of the latter road, however, lost 1⅜ to 32¼ and recessions of a point or slightly less were suffered by Illinois Central 4¾s and Great Western 4s.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube 3½s were among the more rapid rising industrials and moved up 3½ to 128, following publication of sharply higher earnings in 1936. Other convertibles making wide upswings included Pure Oil 4¼s, Central Foundry 6s and 5s and Republic Steel 4½s. The utility section presented a dull appearance except for Abitibi 5s which gained 1¼ to 96.

U. S. Governments moved along uneven paths with setbacks to five-thirty-seconds of a point and gains to ⅛.

Foreign loans loitered along most of the session and closed slightly uneven with gains and losses about balanced. Japanese 6½s, recently reactionary, rallied 1⅞ to 95.

The Associated Press averages for 20 rails advanced .1 of a point to 97.8 and 10 industrials .2 of a point to 104.4. Other groups closed even on the day.

Volume for all bonds totaled $13,-209,000, face value, compared with $13,810,000 Wednesday.

Penn. R. R. Net Gains $13,785,951 in Year

Pennsylvania Railroad reports for last year net railway operating income of $84,180,592, an increase of $13,785,951 over 1935. Freight revenues gained $61,302,-804, totaling $333,350,239. Passenger revenues were $67,552,238, an increase of $7,755,059. Operating expenses were $314,087,701, or $50,987,517 more than in 1935.

D.C. Bond Club Holds Initial Winter Dinner

Nat'l Elec. Supply Co. to Be Sold to Subsidiary of Gen. Electric Co.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Attended by more than 100 active and associate members and guests, the first midwinter dinner of the Bond Club of Washington last night at the Mayflower Hotel was one of the most enjoyable affairs in the club's social history. Club members had decided to add a midwinter dinner as a second important annual event to their social calendar, the original being the spring outing.

Last night's innovation was a successful one and will be continued. The guest list included numerous bankers and brokers from New York and Baltimore and among associate members attending were several prominent local bankers. The dinner was an informal one, talks being dispensed with. Entertainment was furnished by performers from various night clubs.

The committee in charge was composed of Charles C. Ailes, of Brown, Goodwyn & Co., who served as chairman; Thomas W. Brahany, of E. A. Pierce & Co.; Harvey Gram, of Johnston, Lemon & Co.; Myles H. Quail, of Y. E. Booker & Co., and G. F. Cramer, of Waggaman, Brawner & Co. Officers of the club are: Thomas C. Montgomery, of Waggaman, Brawner & Co., president; L. Clark Brown, of Brown, Goodwyn & Co., vice president; Chauncey G. Parker, jr., of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, secretary-treasurer. The foregoing officers with George M. Ferris, of George M. Ferris & Co., and Frank M. Hall, of Hall, Peters & Bryson, comprise the board of governors.

General Electrical Supply Corp.

Negotiations incidental to the sale of the entire electrical business of the National Electrical Supply Co., 1328-1339 New York avenue northwest, to the General Electrical Supply Corporation, Bridgeport, Conn., a subsidiary of General Electric Co., are expected to be completed next week.

The local company was organized in 1897, succeeding the pioneer Washington electrical firm of Royce & Marean, located at 1410 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and later, at 1437 New York avenue northwest, which was the location, at the time of organization, of the National Electrical Supply Co.

E. C. Graham, president of the company, entered the electrical business with Royce & Marean and has been chief executive of National Electrical Supply Co. for 35 years. He is also president of Hamilton National Bank.

It is understood the entire personnel of National Electrical Supply Co. will be continued under the new management. General Electrical Supply Corporation will continue its business in the former company's building at 1328-1330 New York avenue northwest.

Ourisman a Bank Director.

President Francis Addison, jr., announces that Benjamin Ourisman has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Security Savings and Commercial Bank. Mr. Ourisman is a native of Washington and has been in the automobile business since 1917. He is president of the Ourisman Chevrolet Sales Co., president of the Jewish Community Center and a member of the Washington Board of Trade, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, the Automotive Trade Association, the Woodmont Country Club, a director of the Community Chest and a Mason, Shriner and Elk.

Kansas City Life Report.

The annual report of the Kansas City Life Insurance Co. indicates substantial gains. Its insurance in force at the end of 1936 was $435,-702,000 as against $385,000,000 at the end of 1935. Its total resources reported at the end of 1936 are $101,-636,089.07. The company paid out to its policyholders and beneficiaries during 1936 a total of $8,165,-117.96, as against $6,853,645.23 during 1935.

There was considerable increase in the assets of the company as indicated by the total bond account at the end of 1936 of $39,277,524.18 as against $29,728,521.26 at the end of 1935. The mortgage loan account remains about the same at the end of 1936 as for the previous year. The total surplus for the protection of policyholders exclusive of legal reserve was $9,478,934.53. The legal reserve was $89,376,494 as against $71,173,106 at the end of 1935.

Lincoln Service Corporation.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Lincoln Service Corporation, industrial bankers, the following directors were reelected: Ellsworth C. Alvord, Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, William J. Byrne, Francis J. Crilley, William S. Culbertson, John F. Davies, Charles Delmar, H. Rozier Dulany, jr., Capt. John P. Jackson, L. E. Pope, Frank B. Severance and Durand W. Springer. The following new members were elected to the board: James H. Lemon and Walter R Tuckerman.

Thos. Cook & Son.

The Washington office of Thos. Cook & Son (Bankers) Ltd., has made public the latest balance sheet of the firm showing a high degree of liquidity. The following figures as of October 31, are given:

Total assets £4,332,009, as compared with £3,576,441, in the previous fiscal year. These assets include cash in hand and balances with banks on current account, £707,411; remittances in transit, £210,740; balances with bankers on deposit account, £1,953,124; deposits at call, £435,000; British, Indian and Dominion Government Securities, £554,618.

Adding Contest Winners.

Leaders in the Burroughs Adding Machine Contest held this week by Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, were the following: First, William M. Offutt; second, Charles M. Penn; third, John Warner; fourth, Smith Blair. Messrs. Offutt, Penn and Blair are of Washington Loan & Trust Co., and Mr. Warner, Union Trust Co. There were 30 contestants representing nine banks. George M. Rowzee, jr., Lincoln National Bank, was in charge of arrangements.

Business Notes.

Teunis Bros., opticians, announce the association of William G. Atherholt, formerly with Edmonds, as a member of their firm.

John F. Hillyard, attorney at law, and formerly assistant trust officer, of the National Bank of Washington, announces the opening of an office in Suite 2, Central National Bank Building, for general practice of law.

In their weekly Bond Review distributed to clients and branch offices, J. S. Bache & Co. have attached a supplement listing a group of defaulted roads which are interesting in view of the generally improved trend of railroad earnings.

Trade Reaches Recovery High In December

Tool Orders and Output of Oil Set All-Time Records.

New York, Jan. 28.—Industrial activity, on a se: ally adjusted basis, rose to a new high point for the recovery period during December, according to the regular monthly business survey of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Orders for machine tools and output of crude petroleum were the highest ever recorded. Automobile output, based on preliminary estimates, was about 15 per cen: higher than a year ago. Activity in the iron and steel industry continued to increase. Textile activity advanced, with cotton consumption higher than at any time except in March, 1927, and June, 1933. Bituminous coal production rose sharply, reaching a new high for the recovery period. Indexes of trade and distribution with the exception of that for department store sales increased. The only notable decline during December was in total building contracts awarded, and this was seasonal in character.

Steel Production.

Steel ingot production in December, on a seasonally adjusted basis, advanced to the highest level since the middle of 1929. Total output in December, 1936, was 4,431,645 gross tons, or about 77.7 per cent of rated operating capacity. The most recently reported operating rate is about 80.6 per cent of capacity.

The construction industry has failed to expand as rapidly as activity in most other leading industries. The year 1936, however, provided a gain of 45 per cent in total building awards over the figure reported in 1935. Total construction in 37 Eastern States, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation, amounted to $2,675,000,000 last year, compared with $1,845,000,000 in 1935. Increases were especially pronounced in residential building, which showed a gain of 67 per cent bringing the 1936 figure to approximately $802,000,000.

Security prices showed little net change during December and closed the year with substantial gains over 1935. Common stocks, as measured by Standard Statistics Co., average of 90 stocks, registered a gain of 27.8 per cent during the year. Corporate issues in 1936 amounted to $4,632,000,000, an increase of 154 per cent over 1935.

Retail Advertising 4% Over Year Ago

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Retail advertising linage in newspapers during the week ended January 16 was 4 per cent greater than in the corresponding week of last year, Advertising Age reported today.

Total retail advertising in 72 major cities used for compiling this index was 16,298,750 lines for the week, against 15,667,286 lines for the corresponding week in last year.

World Cotton Estimate Up 300,000 Bales

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday an increase of 300,000 bales in its estimate of world cotton production for 1936-37. At the same time it said the world cotton textile industry was operating at near peak speed.

World production for this season was placed at 30,200,000 bales of 478 pounds net, compared with an earlier estimate of 29,900,000. The department said the increase resulted from a gain in Russian production.

Texas Corp. Doubles Annual Dividend

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Directors of Texas Corporation today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on its capital stock, payable April 1 to holders of record February 15. This places the stock on a $2 annual basis, compared with $1 previously.

T. Rieber, chairman of the board, estimated, on the basis of preliminary figures, consolidated net earnings for 1936 would be approximately $38,000,000, or slightly more than $4 a share of the outstanding stock. Consolidated net income in 1935 was $17,065,037, or $1.83 a share.

Ches. & Ohio Plans 2% Equipment Issue

The Chespeake & Ohio Railroad Co. has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $4,000,000 of 2 per cent equipment trust certificates. The proceeds will be used to purchase new rolling stock.

The certificates will be dated March 1, 1937, and will mature in ten installments begining March 1 1938.

Food Brokers' Business 2½ Billion in Year

Business done by food brokers in the domestic market in 1936 exceeded $2,500,000,000, on the basis of preliminary estimates of total food sales for the year, Clarence M. Huber, president of the National Food Brokers Association, reported.

D. C. Oil Men Meet and Form Organization

District Petroleum Group to Fight Increases in Gas Taxes.

Wholesale and retail oil men of the District met last night at the Willard Hotel to perfect an organization, the purpose of which will be combating "present tendencies to increase the tax burden borne by motorists and the business concerns supplying them with necessities in the District."

The 186 men who attended heard the plan outlined by B. D. Friedman, chairman, and voted to form the District of Columbia Petroleum Association. The organization is affiliated with petroleum industries' committees throughout the Nation. The program of the association deals exclusively with matters of taxation, regulation and restriction of the customers and products of the petroleum industry.

"The petroleum industry in the District," said Friedman, "is now in a most favorable position to render assistance to the motorists of the District and other organizations having their interests at heart."

A resolution embodying several points was adopted at the meeting. In it the association opposed further increases in gasoline taxes, and advocated reduction of such taxes "disproportionately high," urging that gasoline tax receipts should be spent only for highway construction and maintenance, and asking a drive against gasoline tax evasion.

Col. Smith Transferred To Marine Headquarters

Col. Holland M. Smith, U. S. Marine Corps, has been assigned to headquarters, Marine Corps, here according to orders issued yesterday. He will leave his present station, chief of staff at headquarters, Department of the Pacific, San Francisco, in time to report here by April 1. From 1933 to 1935 he was fleet marine officer of the U. S. Fleet.

Col. Smith has been assigned to Washington twice before. In 1923, following duty as fleet marine officer, scouting fleet, he was at headquarters here; in 1933 he was commanding officer of the Marine Barracks in the Navy Yard here. Since enlistment in 1905 he has served in the Philippines, Panama, Haiti, San Domingo and various stations in continental United States. During the war he was attached to the Fifth Marines, Second Division, participating in every engagement of the Second Division including the march to Coblenz.

JUST LIKE
Wrapping a Blanket
AROUND YOUR HOUSE

It's Easy
to INSULATE YOUR Present HOME

No matter what the weather outside—you don't have to worry when your home is insulated by our method. Asphalt roofing . . . asbestos and asphalt siding . . . Certainteed insulating board . . . all these spell protection against Jack Frost. And it's a small investment that pays big dividends in fuel savings, increased comfort and safeguarding the family's health. And when summer rolls around, you'll be doubly thankful for this protection, and amply repaid by the added coolness of your home.

We suggest that you allow us to come out and inspect your house, advise you of necessary repairs an quote an estimate. Naturally there is no charge for this service, nor need you feel an obligation.

Midwinter Dances Are Opened at W. & L.

The series of mid-winter dances, which continue through Saturday, opened tonight with the junior prom, led by Chester Shively, of Chambersburg, Pa., and Miss Janet Swinehart, of Pottstown, Pa., a student at Wilson College.

Highway Marking Proposal Opposed

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 28.—City Manager R. W. B. Hart, who suggested extension of white lines in the center of highways of the State at places other than on curves and hilltops, has drawn a reply from H. G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, who said the cost would be prohibitive.

Shirley stated that the cost of maintaining paint on highways is $30 a mile and would cost the State $900,000 a year if all highways were marked. He said present marking cost the department $200,000 ayear.

Traffic Group Opposes Plans For Art Gallery

Fear Proposed Mellon Center Will Congest Streets to Rock Creek Area.

Opposition to the new Mellon Art Gallery on the grounds it would interfere with traffic was voiced yesterday by the traffic committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

George V. Graham, chairman of a sub-committee on streets and avenues, announced to a group of 50 board members at the Harrington Hotel that his sub-committee recommended that a resolution be adopted which would voice a "hope" that architects would modify present plans so as to somehow accommodate traffic. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Graham pointed out that Sixth street, which the proposed gallery would span, is one of the few arteries left which feeds the Southwest. If it were eliminated there would be no thoroughfare between Seventh and Fourth streets. Other Federal buildings along Constitution ovenue plus the Mall parkway have severed many of the connecting links with that section. Five streets would remain available to all types of traffic between the Capitol and Rock Creek parkway.

It was suggested that a subway could be constructed beneath the $10,000,000 art gallery, carrying traffic out of Pennsylvania avenue and depositing it on Constitution avenue, without seriously marring the facade and other features of the gallery architecture. The committee heard also a suggestion that an archway be run through the gallery wide enough for a street.

The committee also heard a suggestion that the District Auditing Department be given charge of collecting traffic tickets on the theory that tickets are revenue. Discussion of the removal of traffic zone "buttons" or markers, which have been indirectly blamed for two fatalities, was held with no action taken.

Senate GroupSeeks Finance Bill Speed

A plan to expedite Senate consideration of appropriation measures, by confining senatorial debate strictly to the supply bills under consideration, has received the approval of the Senate Rules Committee, it was learned last night.

The proposal, sponsored by Chairman Carter Glass of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is now on the Senate calendar and may be called up by Glass within the next week.

Under the Senate's cherished rules of unlimited debate, each Senator may talk as long as he wishes on any subject, regardless of the measure before the chamber, unless a time limitation has previously been agreed on. The Virginian's plan would stop this practice on appropriation bills.

Cannon's Suit for $500,000 Opens as Tinkham Chuckles

Principals Are Absent as Long-Delayed Hearing Opens.

The $500,000 libel suit of Bishop Cannon against Representative George H. Tinkham ended its first day in District Supreme Court yesterday with both principals absent.

Tinkham, champion leopard hunter of Africa, puffing on an expensive cigar in his House office, laughed cheerily as he remarked on the half-million-dollar suit, "I have a hell of a time, don't I?" Saying he was anxious to have the case tried and get the facts thrashed out in court, he stroked his beard and ruminated, "Suppose I lose——? Ha, ha, ha! That would be something, eh? But I'm not afraid. I think the bishop will get licked."

Bishop Cannon, suffering with arthritis in Duke University Hospital, was unable to be present. His attorney, Robert McNeill, explained to the court that the bishop is barely able to walk. His testimony will be presented first thing this morning from a 160-page deposition taken in Sibley Hospital here last June.

Smith-Hoover Aftermath.

The case is the long-delayed upshot of a squabble between Tinkham and Cannon, which filled the newspapers during 1929, shortly after Hoover's election. Tinkham charged on the floor of the House that the bishop had received $63,500 in campaign contributions for his anti-Smith committee, most of which he had not accounted for.

Cannon, at that time a power in prohibition circles, immediately challenged Tinkham to repeat the charges outside the House, where the Congressman would no longer enjoy Congressional speech immunities. Cannon furthermore threatened to sue him for libel once he was outside the protection of "House privilege."

Tinkham lost no time in accepting the challenge. He in writing over his own signature said, in part:

"Lest Bishop Cannon shall delude his followers into thinking the charges I made against him are unfounded, I divest myself of my Congressional immunity.

Restates Charges.

"I restate that he is a shameless violator of the Federal corrupt practices act, a criminal statute. He received $63,500 mostly in cash from Mr. Jameson and illegally concealed the receipt of all this money until February 15, 1929, and has not yet accounted for $48,300 of this amount."

Cannon filed suit for libel as he had promised. The case dragged through six years of court delay before it finally reached trial yesterday. It is being heard by Justice Jennings Bailey.

During the six years the bishop was brought to trial on some of several specific counts charged against him. He was acquitted. However, many of the allegations of Tinkham did not figure in the trial for the reason Cannon's alleged misdeeds had occured so long ago as to render him no longer liable under the corrupt practices statute. It is expected all these charges will be aired during the present suit in Tinkham's efforts to prove the truth of his charges, which is his defense against the libel action.

Pope, Improved, Reassumes Duties

Vatican City, Jan. 28 (AP).—Pope Pius felt sufficiently improved tonight to reassume powers he had delegated to subordinates a month ago.

He revoked the extraordinary authority he had conferred on a small group of cardinals, heads of congregations and executive officers on December 28 and instructed them to resume conferences with him on all matters of importance.

The 79-year-old Pope passed his third successive night of "reasonably good rest" last night, a Vatican statement said.

Night Blindness.

Boston, Jan. 28 (AP).—Dr. Harold Jeghers, an instructor at the Boston University School of Medicine, today reported that lack of an adequate amount of vitamin A in a person's diet may lead to "night blindness" and cause automobile operators difficulty in seeing in dimly lighted roadways.

Judge Ousted In Bitter Row With Officials

Prosecutor, Court Heads Held in Contempt by Pittsburgh Jurist.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28.—Judge M. A. Musmanno's crusade against drunken drivers ended abruptly today with his removal as head of the criminal court, three days before his appointment would have expired.

He was reassigned to the Common Pleas Court by his 13 associates, whom he defied in calling a night session of court. They had declared that move "unwarranted."

Revocation of the appointment came after a stormy ten-minute session which Musmanno left, shouting over his shoulder to his colleagues:

"You'll be sorry for this!"

He had attempted yesterday to hold a night session to clear the docket of drunken driving cases, but the failure of District Attorney Andrew T. Park and three court officials to serve blocked his plans.

Before he sent the jury home, he cited Park and three others in contempt and assailed Judge Ambrose T. Reid, president of the Common Pleas Court, for instructing the four not to carry out their duties.

9,000,000 Return To Jobs in 4 Years

By the Associated Press.

The American Federation of Labor found yesterday that almost 9,000,000 unemployed have gone back to work since March, 1933, but that about the same number remained without jobs.

"This fact is of tragic import to our Nation," the federation said in its monthly business survey.

As remedies, it proposed a shorter work week, increased wages to raise purchasing power and a huge Federal works program to tide the unemployed over until industrial adjustments are made.

House Group to View Drill at Fort Myer

The Military Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives will be guests of honor at the exhibition drill to be presented by the officers and enlisted men of the Third Cavalry and Sixteenth Field Artillery in the riding hall at Fort Myer this afternoon.

Representative Lister Hill, of Alabama, chairman of the committee, will be brought to the post by Col. J. M. Wainwright, commanding officer of Fort Myer, where a 17-gun salvo will be fired. As a special feature of the exhibition, the three-gun batteries of the Sixteenth Field Artillery will parade with their full complement of guns, remaining in position during the concluding ceremony of "Retreat" and the firing of the sunset gun.

Rachael Maynard Funeral Rites Held

Funeral services for Miss Rachael A. Maynard, 71, of Arlington, Va., who died Sunday at her residence, were held yesterday in Frederick, Md.

She was descended from an old Maryland family, whose land grants were received from the Calverts during the reign of King Charles II, of England.

After a brief period of teaching school here, Miss Maynard entered the Garfield Hospital School of Nursing in 1857. She achieved a citywide reputation in the medical profession for her outstanding work, and was retired in 1925 with high testimonials from the hospital board and the staff.

Surviving Miss Maynard are a sister, Miss Eleanor Maynard, of Washington, and two brothers, John Newton Maynard and Benjamin Thomas Maynard.

Harry E. Wilken

Speaking of enjoying yourself—

wait till you taste our own Family's Whiskey!

The same whiskey us folks in the distilling business drink when we want to enjoy ourself

If you want to sample something real extra tasty and that's got a grand warm glow to it without its ever being the least bit strong tasting, I just wish you'd take a little swallow of our own Family's Recipe. For slow sipping on these long winter evenings I don't know of any whiskey anywhere that's so grateful like and pleasant as this Family's Recipe of ours.

As most probably you know—us Wilkens have been a family of whiskey making people since I couldn't just say how far back. Pa Wilken worked for Grandpa Wilken in his distillery, and Pa gave William and Tom and me all our schooling. And the old timers like Dan Coyle and Pop Easley in the picture up there have been working with the Wilken Family ever since they can remember. As Pa Wilken was always saying—you can't have mellow whiskey without your having mellow whiskey men to make it. Well we got them both all right!
